IN TWO POSTHUMOUS BOOKS.

BOOK TWO.
OF THE WORSHIP OF GOD.

CHAPTER I.
OF GOOD WORKS.

THE subject of the first Book was FAITH, or THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD. The second treats of THE WORSHIP OF LOVE OF GOD.

The true worship of God consists chiefly in the exercise of 5 good works. Matt. xvi. 27. "then he shall reward every man according to his works." Rom. ii. 13. "not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." Philipp. i. 11. "being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ." iv. 8. "whatsoever 10 things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things:

distis, et vidistis in me, hæc facite; et Deus pacis erit vobiscum.
 2 Tim. iii. 17. ut perfectus sit homo Dei ad omne opus bonum perfecte instructus. Tit. ii. 11, 12. illuxit gratia illa Dei salu- tifera omnibus hominibus: erudiens nos ut abnegata impietate 5 et mundanis cupiditatibus, temperanter et iuste et pie vivamus in præsentis sæculo. et iii. 8. certus est hic sermo, et hæc volo te asseverare, ut qui crediderunt Deo, curent bene agendo præ-cedere. Iacob. i. 22. effectores estote sermonis, nec estote audi- tores solum. 2 Pet. i. 5, &c. ad hoc ipsum vos omnes studium 10 conferentes adiicite fidei vestræ virtutem—. hæc enim si vobis
adsint et abundant, non inertes vos nec infructuosos efficient in Domini nostri Iesu Christi agnitione.

 FIDEM FACIMUS, AD DEI GLORIAM, SALUTIS NOSTRÆ SPEM CERTAM, 15 ET PROXIMI ÆDIFICATIONEM.

AGENTE IN NOBIS DEI SPIRITU. Ioan. iii. 21. ut manifesta fiant opera ipsius, quod in Deo facta sint. 1 Cor. xv. 10. gratia Dei sum id quod sum: et gratia eius, quæ in me collata est, non fuit inanis, sed amplius quam illi omnes laboravi: non ego 20 tamen, sed gratia Dei quæ mecum est. et 2 Cor. iii. 5. non quod idonei sumus per nos ipsos ad cogitandum quicquam, velut ex nobis ipsis; sed quod idonei sumus ex Deo est. Gal.
 v. 22. fructus spiritus est charitas—, benignitas, bonitas, fides.

those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you." 2 Tim. iii. 17. "that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." Tit. ii. 11, 12.

5 "the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us, that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world." iii. 8. "this is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have

10 believed in God may be careful to maintain good works." James i. 22. "be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves." 2 Pet. i. 5, &c. "besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge," &c. "for if these things be in you, and abound,

15 they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

GOOD WORKS ARE THOSE WHICH WE PERFORM BY THE SPIRIT OF GOD WORKING IN US THROUGH TRUE FAITH, TO THE GLORY OF GOD, THE ASSURED HOPE OF OUR OWN SALVATION, AND THE 20 EDIFICATION OF OUR NEIGHBOR.

BY THE SPIRIT OF GOD WORKING IN US. John iii. 21. "that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." 1 Cor. xv. 10. "by the grace of God I am what I am; and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain,

25 but I labored more abundantly than they all; yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me." 2 Cor. iii. 5. "not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God." Gal. v. 22. "the

Eph. ii. 10. ipsius sumus opus, creati in Christo Iesu ad opera bona, quæ præparavit Deus, ut in iis ambulemus. et v. 9. fructus spiritus in omni bonitate, et iustitia et veritate. Philipp. ii. 13. Deus is est qui effecit in vobis et ipsum velle et ipsum
 5 agere pro benevola voluntate sua.

PER FIDEM. Ioan. xv. 5. qui manet in me et ego in eo, hic fert fructum multum; nam seorsim a me nihil potestis facere. Heb. xi. 6. fieri non potest ut absque fide quisquam Deo sit gratus. Iacob. ii. 22. vides quod fides cooperatur operibus
 10 eius; et ex operibus fides perfecta reddita est: id est, ut forma informat ipsa opera ut possint esse bona, et ab ipsis operibus ut fine et fructibus suis perficitur.

Quod enim affirmant theologi, formam bonorum operum esse congruentiam cum præceptis decalogi, quatenus decalogi
 15 sunt, id quo pacto esse verum sub evangelio possit, videndum: dedocet enim id Paulus tota epistola ad Romanos alibique passim, et diserte, Rom. xiv. 23. quicquid ex fide non est; peccatum est: non ibi ait apostolus quicquid non est ex decalogo, peccatum est, sed quicquid non est ex fide. congruentia 20 igitur cum fide, non cum decalogo, bonorum operum statuenda forma est. Itaque si sabbathum ex præcepto decalogi observavero, fide mihi interim aliud dictante, congruentia illa cum decalogo exactissima mihi quidem peccatum et ἀνομία fruit of the Spirit is love . . . gentleness, goodness, faith."

Eph. ii. 10, "we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." v. 9. "the fruit of the Spirit is in all
5 goodness, and righteousness, and truth." Philipp. ii. 13. "it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure."

THROUGH FAITH. John xv. 5. "he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me 10 ye can do nothing." Heb. xi. 6. "without faith it is impossible to please him." James ii. 22. "seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?" that is, how faith, to use a logical expression, constitutes the form of the works, and endows them with 15 the quality of goodness; and how it is itself consummated by the works, as by its end and natural product.

As to the position of divines, that the essential form of good works is their accordance with the decalogue, so far as they are there prescribed, it is not easy to discover how this can be 20 the case under the gospel. St. Paul certainly teaches a different doctrine, throughout the whole of Romans and elsewhere; declaring explicitly, Rom. xiv. 23. that "whatsoever is not of faith is sin." He does not say "whatsoever is not of the decalogue, is sin," but "whatsoever is not of faith"; it is therefore 25 an accordance with faith, not with the decalogue, that ought to be considered as the essential form of good works. Hence, if I observe the sabbath in compliance with the decalogue, but contrary to the dictates of my own faith, conformity with the reddetur. Etenim fides iustificat, non congruentia cum decalogo: quod autem iustificat, id solum perficere potest ut unumquodque opus sit bonum: bonum igitur nisi per fidem nullum opus nostrum esse potest; fides ergo bonorum operum

5 est forma; sic enim forma definitur, per quam res est id quod est. Quod autem 1 Ioan. ii. 4. et iii. 24. et alibi sæpius de præceptis Dei servandis mentio fit, de præceptis Dei evangelicis id rectius intelligitur, quæ fidem ubique legis operibus anteponunt. Quod si fides operibus legis in evangelio præ-
10 ponitur, erit certe eadem etiam præceptis legis anteponenda; opera enim præceptorum finis et impletio sunt. Siquis igitur sub evangelio licet accuratissime præcepta totius legis Mosaicæ observaret, sine fide tamen nihil proficeret, certe bona opera ex fide non ex decalogi præceptis, definienda sunt. Ex 15 quo sequitur, congruentiam non cum lege scripta sed cum lege non scripta, id est, cum lege spiritus qui dux nobis veritatis a patre datus est, bonorum operum formam esse potius dicen-
dam. opera enim fidelium ipsius spiritus sancti opera sunt, quæ tametsi amoris Dei et proximi, quæ summa legis est, nun-20 quam sunt contraria, a littera tamen specialium præsertim mandatorum etiam evangelicorum, habita potissimum charitatis ratione, deflectere nonnunquam possunt; ut Christus ipse cum in sabbathismo abolendo tum sæpe alias ostendit. Vide supra I[ib]. 1. cap. xxvii. de evangelio.

decatalogue, however exact, becomes in my case sin, and a violation of the law. For it is faith that justifies, not agreement with the decatalogue; and that which justifies can alone render any work good; none therefore of our works can be good, but 5 by faith; hence faith is the essential form of good works, the definition of form being, that by which a thing is what it is.
With regard to the passages in which mention is made of keeping God's commandments, 1 John ii. 4. iii. 24. and elsewhere, it seems reasonable to understand this of the precepts
10 of the gospel, in which faith is uniformly put before the works of the law. If then in the gospel faith be above the works of the law, it must be equally above its precepts; for works are the end and fulfilling of precepts. Since therefore under the gospel, although a man should observe the whole Mosaic law
15 with the utmost punctuality, it would profit him nothing without faith, it is evident that good works must be defined to be of faith, not of the decatalogue; whence it follows that conformity, not with the written, but with the unwritten law, that is, with the law of the Spirit given by the Father to lead
20 us into all truth, is to be accounted the true essential form of good works. For the works of believers are the works of the Spirit itself; and though such can never be in contradiction to the love of God and our neighbor, which is the sum of the law, they may occasionally deviate from the letter even of the 25 gospel precepts, particularly of those which are merely special, through a predominating regard to the law of love; as was shown by Christ himself in the abolition of sabbatical observances, as well as on several other occasions. See Book I. chap. xxvii. on the gospel.

AD DEI GLORIAM. Matt. v. 16. ita splendeat lux vestra coram hominibus, ut videant vestra bona opera, glorificentque patrem vestrum qui est in cœlis. 1 Cor. x. 31. omnia ad gloriam Dei facite. Philipp. i. 11. repleti fructibus iustitiæ, qui sunt

TO THE GLORY OF GOD. Matt. v. 16. "let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." 1 Cor. x. 31. "do all to the glory of God." Philipp. i. 11. "being filled with the fruits of 5 righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God."

THE ASSURED HOPE OF OUR OWN SALVATION. Gen. xv. 1. "thy exceeding great reward." Prov. x. 9. "he that walketh uprightly, walketh surely." v. 25. "the righteous is an ever-
10 lasting foundation." v. 29. "the way of Jehovah is straight to the upright." xi. 18, 19. "to him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward." xii. 3. "the root of the righteous shall not be moved." xiii. 21. "to the righteous good shall be repaid." xv. 24. "the way of life is above to the wise, that he
15 may depart from hell beneath." xvi. 17. "he that keepeth his way preserveth his soul." xx. 7. "the just man walketh in his integrity; his children are blessed after him." Psal. xv. 1, 2. "Jehovah, who shall abide in thy tabernacle?" &c. Isa. xxxiii. 14, &c. "who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire?
20 . . . he that walketh righteously." 2 Cor. vii. 1. "having therefore these promises, let us cleanse ourselves—" Gal. vi. 8. "he that soweth to his flesh, shall of his flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Philipp. iii. 14. "I press toward the 25 mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Heb. xi. 6. "he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." v. 26. "he had respect unto the recompense of the reward."

butionem. et xii. 2. pro sibi proposito gaudio toleravit crucem.

 10 ut sint maritorum ac liberorum amantes. et v. 7. per omnia teipsum præbens exemplar bonorum operum. 1 Pet. ii. 12. pro eo quod obtreçant vobis ut facinorosis ex bonis operibus quæ conspexerint glorificent Deum die visitationis.

Ex bono enim exemplo nascitur in bonis æmulatio bona.
 15 Rom. xi. 14. ut experiar siquo modo ad æmulationem provocem consanguineos meos, et servem aliquos ex ipsis.

Ex malo exemplo nascitur æmulatio mala. Prov. xxiii. 17. ne æmuletur animus tuus peccatores— et xxiv. 1. ne æmuletur malignos— et scandalum, quo quis vel firmus merito 20 offenditur, vel infirmior aut ad peccandum inducitur, aut ad bene faciendum fit remissior. 1 Cor. x. 32, 33. estote sine offendiculo et Iudæis et Græcis et ecclesiæ Dei; sicut et ego per omnia omnibus placeo, non quærens meam ipsius utilitatem,

xii. 2. "who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross."

THE EDIFICATION OF OUR NEIGHBOR. Hence we are admonished so to act, that we may become examples to others. 2
5 Sam. xxi. 11, 12. "it was told David what Rizpah had done," &c. 2 Cor. viii. 24. "wherefore show ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf." Rom. xii. 17. "provide things honest in the sight of all men." 1 Tim. iv. 12. "be thou an example of the 10 believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." Tit. ii. 4. "that they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children." v. 7. "in all things showing thyself a pattern of good works." 1 Pet. ii. 12. "that whereas they speak against you 15 as evil doers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation." For a virtuous example excites, in the virtuous, an emulation of that virtue; Rom. xi. 14. "if by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them": a 20 vicious example, on the contrary, is productive of vicious emulation; Prov. xxiii. 17. "let not thine heart envy sinners";
xxiv. 7. "be not thou envious against wicked men"; as well as of offences, by which the strong are scandalized, and the weaker brethren, if not absolutely led into sin, rendered more 25 remiss in the performance of good works. 1 Cor. x. 32, 33.
"give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God; even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they sed multorum, ut servantur. Matt. xviii. 6, 7. quisquis offendiculo fuerit uni ex parvis istis, qui in me credunt, præstiterit —. Marc. ix. 42. idem. Rom. xiv. 21. in quo frater tuus impingit, vel offenditur, vel infirmus est.

- 5 Quo sensu etiam sibi quilibet offendiculo esse potest, dum in aliquo vitio cui addictior est, ipse sibimet indulget. Matt. v. 29, 30. quod si oculus tuus dexter facit ut tu offendas, erue eum —. et xviii. 7, 8. idem.

Sin autem non nostra culpa, sed aliena morositate aut
10 malitia scandalum acciderit, non hoc datum est, sed acceptum. Matt. xv. 12, 13. nosti Phariseos audito isto sermone offensos fuisse? ipse vero respondens dixit, Omnis planta—: omitte illos; sunt viæ duces cæci cæcorum —.

Sic Christus propter Phariseos non destitit cum publicanis
15 versari: tantummodo rationem reddidit cur id faceret. Matt. ix. 10, &c. iis qui valent, non est opus medico —. Luc. xix. 7, &c. venit filius hominis ut quærat et servet quod perierat. et xx. 18. quisquis ceciderit super illum lapidem, confringetur; super quem autem ceciderit, dissipabit eum. Vide supra I [ib].

- 20 1. cap. xxvii. ubi de Libertate Christiana.

Opera quæ vocant Supererogationis Pontificii, quibus præstari plus aiunt quam in lege præscribitur, Unde nonnullos e sanctis adeo meritis abundare, ut vitam æternam et sibi et aliis promereantur, nulla esse possunt. Cum enim Deum totis may be saved." Matt. xviii. 6, 7. "whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him," &c. See also Mark ix. 42. Rom. xiv. 21. "it is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy 5 brother stumbleth, or offendeth, or is made weak." In this sense a man is said to be a stumbling-block to himself, when he indulges himself in any vice to which his nature inclines him. Matt. v. 29, 30. "if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out," &c. See also xviii. 7, 8.

10 Where however the offence does not proceed from any fault of ours, but from the frowardness or malignity of the other party, the guilt rests not with him who gives, but with him who takes the offence. Matt. xv. 12, 13. "knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended after they heard this saying?
15 but he answered and said, Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up: let them alone, they be blind leaders of the blind." Thus Christ did not break off his intercourse with the publicans through fear of scandalizing the Pharisees, but contented himself with giving 20 reasons for his conduct: Matt. ix. 10, &c. "they that be whole need not a physician—" Luke xix. 7, &c. "the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." xx. 18. "whosoever shall fall upon that stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." See 25 Book I. chap xxvii. on Christian liberty.

As to what the Papists call works of supererogation, whereby more is done than the law prescribes, insomuch that some of the saints, through the superabundance of their works, viribus, toto ex animo amare et colere, proximum tanquam nosmetipsos tam in evangelio quam in lege iubeamur, pietatisque et charitatis excessus nullus esse queat, quid potest adeo officiose erga Deum præstari, quod ultra debitum immo vel

5 par officio nostro censendum sit? Luc. xvii. 10. quum feceritis omnia quæ edicta sunt vobis, dicite, servi inutiles sumus: nam quod debuimus facere, fecimus. Quæ igitur consilia in evangelio præceptis graviora esse asserunt Papistæ, quæ si sequatur cum necesse non sit, supererogare dicitur, revera neque con-
10 silia sunt neque præceptis graviora; sed præcepta potius particularia, certis hominibus, non omnibus, certis de causis certisque sub conditionibus existimari debent. Sic, Matt. xix. 11. celibatus iis qui continentia dono præditi suscipere possunt præcipitur, quoties id ad Dei gloriam et ecclesiæ utili-
15 tatem conducere appareat: et v. 21. sive præceptum sive consilium iuveni datum dicas, si is maxime Christo paruisset, nihil tamen egregie præter id quod debuit perfecisset; uti nec Abrahamus cum filium suum immolatum ibat: Dei enim

have been enabled to purchase eternal life not only for themselves, but for others, such works are clearly impossible. For since we are commanded, under the gospel as well as under the law, to love and serve God with all our strength and with 5 all our mind, and our neighbor as ourselves, and since, consequently, there can be no excess in piety and charity, it follows that no act which we are capable of performing can be of such excellence as to fulfil, still less to transcend the requisitions of duty. Luke xvii. 10. "when ye shall have done all
10 those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants, we have done that which was our duty to do." Those counsels of the gospel, therefore, which the Papists affirm to be of a higher nature than its precepts, insomuch that if a man follow them, not being compelled so to do, he
15 performs a work of supererogation, are not in reality counsels, as distinguished from precepts, nor of a higher nature than the latter; but are to be considered as particular precepts, given, not to all mankind, but to certain individuals, for special reasons and under special circumstances. Thus we are
20 told, Matt. xix. 11. that it is good for those who have the gift of continence and can receive the saying, not to marry, whenever by remaining single they can more effectually promote the glory of God and the good of the church. Again, v. 21. whether the words of Christ are to be considered as precept
25 or as simple counsel, it is certain that, had the young man to whom they were addressed fulfilled them in their utmost extent, he would have done nothing beyond what duty required, any more than Abraham when he led forth his son erat ut bona omnia venderet, quod sine charitate nonnulli fece-

liberrimæ prudentiæ pro temporum ratione relinquitur. De-

to sacrifice: for the commands of God, whether addressed to mankind in general, or to a particular class, or to an individual, are equally obligatory on the kind, or class, or individual to whom they are addressed. In the example just cited, obedience to the general precept of loving God above all things was singled out as an instance of duty to be required from the self-sufficient young man, for the purpose of exposing his folly and unfounded confidence, and of showing him how far he was from the perfection to which he pretended. For it was not the selling all he had, which has been done without charity, but the leaving his possessions and following Christ, which was to be the test of his perfection. With regard to the other instance of celibacy, 1 Cor. vii. this is neither made expressly a matter of precept nor of counsel, but is left free to the discretion of individuals, according to seasons and circumstances. To the above may be added, that, if there be any such works as are here described, those precepts must needs be imperfect, which require to be amended by supplementary admonitions. If, moreover, these latter are, as is alleged, of a higher order of excellence than the precepts themselves, who shall be sufficient to fulfil them? seeing that no one is able to perform entirely even the requisitions of the law. Not to mention, that the name of counsels is sometimes applied to precepts of universal application, and of the most imperative necessity; as Rev. iii. 18. "I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire." Lastly, that prayer for forgiveness, which by Christ's command we all daily offer, is utterly irreconcilable with the vain boasting of works implied in this doctrine.

Potest quidem opus opere perfectius esse quibus in rebus Christiana libertas versatur; 1 Cor. vii. 38. bene facit, melius facit; et 2 Ep. xi. 23. ministri Christi sunt? superior sum ego: at non idcirco indebitum quicquam est quo Dei gloria
5 aut proximi ædificatio maiorem in modum promoveri videatur posse. Licebat Paulo non gratuito evangelizare, 1 Cor. ix. 7, &c. cum autem visum esset ei calumniis hominum facilius posse occurri, ecclesiam Dei felicius ædificari si gratis evangelio operam dedisset, 1 Cor. ix. 18. et 2 Ep. xi. 12. nihil ultra
10 debitum fecit, quod gratis evangelizavit. ne Zacchæus cum dimidium bonorum suorum iniussus pauperibus dedit. Luc. xix. 8. Nec vidua illa quæ iniecit in ærarium sacrum quod nummi in diem illam habebat, Marc. xii. 42. Nec discipuli illi, Act. iv. 34. qui venditis agris suis, pecuniam quam rede-
15 gerant communem fratribus reddiderunt, quicquam supere-rogarunt, proximum tantummodo et præsertim fideles tanquam se ipsos dilexerunt, ita tamen ut singulare dilectionis illius specimen liberum cuique fuerit, Act. v. 4. summa enim perfectio proponitur quidem, non tamen ab omnibus exigitur.
20 Atque hinc meritorum etiam inanitas nostrorum facile cognoscitur; cum neque nostra sint quæ recte facimus, sed agentis in nobis Dei, neque nostra maxime ut sint, indebita tamen, neque officii nostri quæcunque ratio magnitudinem propositi præmii ulla ex parte æquiparare possit: Rom. vi. 23. donum

It is true that in matters of choice and Christian liberty, one work may be more perfect than another: 1 Cor. vii. 38. "he doeth well . . . he doeth better." 2 Cor. xi. 23. "are they ministers of Christ? I am more"; but it is not less the duty of 5 every one to do whatever may most effectually promote the glory of God and the edification of his neighbor. St. Paul, had he so chosen, needed not have preached the gospel without charge, 1 Cor. ix. 7, &c. but believing, as he did, that a gratuitous service would be less open to suspicion, and tend 10 more to the edification of the church, he did nothing more than his duty in preaching gratuitously. No work of supererogation was performed by Zaccheus, when he voluntarily gave half his goods to the poor, Luke xix. 8. nor by the poor widow, when she cast into the treasury all that she had, Mark
15 xii. 42. nor by the disciples, when they sold their lands and divided the produce among the brethren, Acts iv. 34; those who did such actions only proved that they loved their neighbors, and especially the believing part of them, as themselves. They were not however under any absolute obligation to give 20 such extraordinary proofs of their love, Acts v. 4. for although perfection is proposed to all men as the end of their endeavors, it is not required of all.

Hence may be easily discerned the vanity of human merits; seeing that, in the first place, our good actions are not our 25 own, but of God working in us; secondly, that, were they our own, they would still be equally due; and, thirdly, that, in any point of view, there can be no proportion between our duty and the proposed reward. Rom. vi. 23. "the gift of God is eternal life." viii. 18. "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Hence although Hezekiah asserts his uprightness in the sight of God, Isa. xxxviii. 3.

5 "remember now, O Jehovah, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which was good in thy sight," he is so far from considering this as constituting any claim to reward, that he acknowledges himself indebted to the free mercy of God

10 for the pardon of his sins: v. 17. "thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption, for thou hast cast all my sins behind my back." So likewise Nehemiah, xiii. 22. "remember me, O my God, concerning this also, and spare me according to the greatness of thy mercy." The declaration

15 of God himself, Exod. xx. 6, is to the same purpose. Lastly, that of which God stands in no need, can deserve nothing of him. Job xxii. 2, &c. "can a man be profitable with God?" xxxv. 7. "if thou be righteous, what givest thou him?" Luke xvii. 10. "we are unprofitable servants." Rom. xi. 35. "who

20 hath first given him—?" See Book I. chap. xxii. on Justification.

Opposed to good works are evil works; the vanity and bitterness of which are forcibly described by Isaiah, lix. 4, &c. "they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity; they hatch 25 cockatrice' eggs—" Prov. xi. 3. "the perverseness of transgressors shall destroy them." v. 5. "the wicked shall fall by his own wickedness." xiii. 15. "the way of transgressors is hard." xxii. 5. "thorns and snares are in the way of the froward."

Ex operibus bonis agnoscitur vir bonus. Matt. xii. 35. bonus homo e bono thesauro cordis profert bona. 1 Ioan. iii. 7. qui exercet iustitiam, iustus est, sicut ille iustus est. Describitur, Iob. xxix. a v. 11. nam auris audiens beatum prædicabat

Ita tamen temporariæ quædam virtutes improbis inesse reperiantur; vel simulacra saltem virtutum nonnunquam ut Sauli, 1 Sam. xix. et Iudæis, Ier. xxxiv. et in rege Sodomitico videre erat liberalitatis, gratitudinis, æquitatis umbram quam

 15 iter improborum ne ingreditor—. et xxviii. 5, &c. homines dediti malo non animadvertunt ius—.

A good man is known by his works. Matt. xii. 35. "a good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth good things." 1 John iii. 7. "he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous." He is described Job xxix.
5 11-25. "when the ear heard me, then it blessed me," &c. and elsewhere.

Sometimes, however, certain temporary virtues, or semblances of virtues, are discernible even in the wicked; as in Saul, 1 Sam. xix, and in the Jews, Jer. xxxiv. An outward 10 show of liberality, gratitude, and equity, with a regard for the interest of his subjects, are visible in the king of Sodom, Gen. xiv. 21. See also the instance of Eglon, Judges iii. and of Belshazzar, Dan. v. 29.

The wicked man is described Psal. x. 3, &c. "the wicked 15 boasteth of his heart's desire," &c. xiv. 1, &c. "the fool hath said in his heart—" Prov. i. 11, &c. "if they say, Come with us, let us lay wait for blood—" iv. 14, &c. "enter not into the path of the wicked—" xxviii. 5, &c. "evil men understand not judgment."

PROXIMIS.

BONORUM operum causa prima efficiens est Deus, ut supra dictum est.

CAUSÆ PROXIMÆ utpote bonarum actionum fere sunt habitus boni, quæ VIRTUTES nominantur; quibus officii nostri tota ratio et erga Deum et erga homines continetur. 5 Philipp. iv. 8. si qua virtus, si qua laus est—. 2 Pet. i. 5. suppeditate fidei vestræ virtutem.

Suntque vel GENERALES quæ ad universum officium pertinent, vel SPECIALES quæ ad aliquam eius partem.

10 GENERALES sunt in intellectu aut in voluntate.

In intellectu sunt SAPIENTIA et PRUDENTIA.

SAPIENTIA EST VIRTUS QUA VOLUNTATEM DEI STUDIOSE INDAGAMUS, OMNI DILIGENTIA COGNITAM HABEMUS, EAMQUE AD NORMAM FACTA NOSTRA OMNIA DIRIGIMUS.

15 QUA VOLUNTATEM DEI. Deut. iv. 6. observabitis ergo atque facietis: nam hæc est sapientia vestra—. Psal. cxix. 66. præstantiam rationis et scientiæ doce me; nam præceptis tuis credo. et v. 98, 99, 100. inimicis meis sapientiozem me reddidit præceptis tuis— doctoribus meis: senibus. Prov. xxviii. 5.

GOOD WORKS.

THE primary efficient cause of good works, as has been stated above, is God.

The PROXIMATE CAUSES OF GOOD WORKS are naturally, in ordinary cases at least, good habits, or, as they are 5 called, VIRTUES; in which is comprised the whole of our duty towards God and man. Philipp. iv. 8. "if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise." 2 Pet. i. 5. "add to your faith virtue." These are partly general, or such as pertain to the whole duty of man; and partly special, or such as apply to the 10 particular branches of that duty.

The general virtues belong partly to the understanding, and partly to the will.

Those which belong to the understanding are WISDOM and PRUDENCE.

15 WISDOM IS THAT WHEREBY WE EARNESTLY SEARCH AFTER THE WILL OF GOD, LEARN IT WITH ALL DILIGENCE, AND GOVERN ALL OUR ACTIONS ACCORDING TO ITS RULE.

THE WILL OF GOD. Deut. iv. 6. "keep therefore and do them, for this is your wisdom—." Psal. cxix. 66. "teach me good
20 judgment and knowledge, for I have believed thy commandments." v. 98–100. "thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies . . . than my teachers

5 transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." xvi. 19. "I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil." Eph. v. 15. "see that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise." James iii. 13. "who is
10 a wise man, and endued with knowledge among you? let him show out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom." v. 17. "the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without
15 hypocrisy." 1 John ii. 3. "hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments." Hence the fear of the Lord is called wisdom, Job xxviii. 28. Psal. xxv. 14. "the secret of Jehovah is with them that fear him." cxi. 10. "the fear of Jehovah is the beginning of wisdom." See also Prov.
20 i. 7. Eccles. xii. 15. "let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter," &c. So also Christ, 1 Cor. i. 30, "is made unto us wisdom." Col. ii. 3. "in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom."

EARNESTLY SEARCH. Prov. ii. 4, &c. "if thou seekest her as 25 silver—" James i. 5. "if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." Wisdom is readily found of such as seek her, and discloses herself to them of her own accord.

scendam offert: Prov. i. 20, &c. summa sapientia foris cantat, in plateis—. et viii. 1, &c. idem.

Laudatur, Iob. xxviii. 15, &c. non posset dari aurum pro ea—. Prov. iii. 13, &c. beatus homo qui consequitur sapientiam—. et iv. 5, &c. acquire sapientiam—. et viii. 6, &c. audite; nam præstantia eloquar—. Eccles. ix. 20. meliores esse sapientiam armis bellicis.

Temere effutienda non est indignis. Prov. xxiii. 9. audiente stolido, ne loquaris; nam spernet te cum intelligentia dictorum tuorum. Matt. vii. 6. ne date quod sanctum est canibus—. Marc. iv. 34. absque parabola non loquebatur iis—. 1 Cor. ii. 6. sapientiam vero loquimur inter adultos; sapientiam autem non sæculi huius—.

Huic opponitur stultitia quæ maxime quidem est, voluntatis Dei ignoratio. Isa. i. 3. agnoscit bos possessorem suum—. et v. 13. idcirco migrat populus meus quod expers sit scientiæ. Ier. v. 4. stulte agunt, quia ignorant viam Iehovæ, ius Dei sui. et viii. 7, &c. etiam ciconia in cælo novit stata tempora sua—. Ioan. xvi. 2, 3. veniet tempus quum quisquis vos interemerit, putet se cultum præstare Deo: et hæc facient vobis quia non noverunt patrem neque me. Ioan. xii. 10. consultarunt etiam primarii sacerdotes, ut Lazarum interimerent. Eph. iv. 17, 18. abalienati a vita Dei, propter ignorantiam quæ est in ipsis. et v. 17. ne estote insipientes, sed intelligentes quæ sit

Prov. i. 20, &c. "wisdom crieth without, she uttereth her voice in the streets." See also viii. 1, &c.

Wisdom is praised, Job xxviii. 15, &c. "it cannot be gotten for gold—" Prov. iii. 13, &c. "happy is the man that 5 findeth wisdom." iv. 5, &c. "get wisdom—" viii. 6, &c. "hear, for I will speak of excellent things." Eccles. ix. 18. "wisdom is better than weapons of war."

The treasures of wisdom are not to be rashly lavished on such as are incapable of appreciating them. Prov. xxiii. 9.
10 "speak not in the ears of a fool, for he will despise the wisdom of thy words." Matt. vii. 6. "give not that which is holy unto the dogs." Mark iv. 34. "without a parable spake he not unto them." 1 Cor. ii. 6. "howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world."

15 To wisdom is opposed folly; which consists, first and chiefly, in an ignorance of the will of God. Isa. i. 3. "the ox knoweth his owner." v. 13. "therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge." Jer. v. 4. "they are foolish, for they know not the way of Jehovah, nor 20 the judgment of their God." viii. 7, &c. "yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times—" John xvi. 2, 3. "the time cometh that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service; and these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me." xii. 10.
25 "the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death." Eph. iv. 17, 18. "being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them." v. 17. "be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is."

1 Cor. ii. 8. "had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory." 1 Tim. i. 13. "I did it ignorantly in unbelief."

Secondly, in a false conceit of wisdom. Num. xv. 39. "that 5 ye seek not after your own heart." 1 Kings xviii. 17. "art thou he that troubleth Israel?" Prov. iii. 7. "be not wise in thine own eyes; fear Jehovah." xiv. 6. "a scorner seeketh wisdom and findeth it not." v. 12. "there is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways
10 of death." xxi. 2. "every way of a man is right in his own eyes; but Jehovah pondereth the hearts." xxvi. 12. "seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? there is more hope of a fool than of him." xxviii. 26. "he that trusteth in his own way is a fool; but whoso walketh wisely he shall be delivered."
15 Isa. v. 21. "woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes." John ix. 39. "that they which see not might see, and that they which see might be made blind." Rom. i. 22. "professing themselves to be wise, they became fools." 1 Cor. viii. 2. "if any man think that he knoweth anything, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know." Yet folly cries aloud, and invites 20 mankind to her instructions, as if she were the sole depositary of wisdom. Prov. ix. 16. "whoso is simple, let him turn in hither."

Thirdly, in a prying into hidden things, after the example 25 of our first parents, who sought after the knowledge of good and evil contrary to the command of God; and of Lot's wife, Gen. xix. 26. xxxii. 29. "wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name?" Exod. xix. 23. "set bounds about the

15 PRUDENTIA est virtus qua prospicimus quo quidque tempore et loco sit agendum. Prov. xxix. 11. totum spiritum suum profert stolidus; at sapiens reprimit eum. Eccles. iii. 1, &c. cuique sua est tempestas et tempus cuique voluntati sub cælis—. et v. 11. ipsum unumquodque facere pulchrum of the resurrection from the dead, some mocked." xxvi. 24.
 20 suo tempore—. Matt. x. 16, 17. ecce, ego mitto vos ut oves in medium luporum: estote igitur prudentes ut serpentes, et simplices ut columbæ. Cavete vero ab hominibus—. Philipp. i. 9, 10. ut charitas vestra adhuc magis ac magis exundet in cognitione et omni sensu: ut exploretis quæ discrepant—.

 "Paul, thou art beside thyself." 1 Cor. i. 19, 20. "it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise." v. 23. "we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto 5 the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called," &c.
 iii. 19. "the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."
 vi. 4. "if then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church."
 Col. ii. 8. "beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy."
 10 Luke xii. 56, 57. "ye can discern the face of the sky, and of the earth . . . and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?" Hence we are frequently permitted to be deceived with false shows of human wisdom, in requital for our contempt of that which is true and divine. Psal. lxxxi.
 15 11-13. "my people would not hearken to my voice . . . so I gave them up unto their own heart's lusts, and they walked in their own counsels."

PRUDENCE is that virtue by which we discern what is proper to be done under the various circumstances of time and place.
 20 Prov. xxix. 11. "a fool uttereth all his mind; but a wise man keepeth it in till afterwards." Eccles. iii. 1. "to every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." v. 11. "he hath made every thing beautiful in his time." Matt. x. 16, 17. "behold, I send you forth as sheep in 25 the midst of wolves; be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves: but beware of men—" Philipp. i. 9, 10. "that your love may abound yet more and more, in knowledge and in all judgment, that ye may approve things that are

Heb. v. 14. sed adultorum est solidus cibus; eorum videlicet qui propter habitum sensus habent exercitatos ad discretionem boni ac mali.

Prudentia hæc quasi condimentum est omnis virtutis; ut
5 sal olim omnis sacrificii fuit. Marc. ix. 49. omnis homo igne salietur. et omnis victima sale salietur.

Huc illa regula referri solet: ex malis culpæ nullum, ex malis pœnæ minimum esse eligendum.

Hoc de malis culpæ si verum sit, quam inepte legem inter-
10 pretentur doctores illi quorum hoc commentum est; usuras, divortia, polygamas et similia, velut minora vitia, vel saltem infracta legibus aut moderata Iudæis fuisse concessa, cuivis facile perspicuum esse potest: cum non magis concedere lex aut tolerare vel minimum vitiorum quam bonus quisquam 15 eligere possit.

Hactenus de virtutibus intellectus generalibus: voluntatis sunt SINCERITAS, PROMPTITUDO et CONSTANTIA.

SINCERITAS, quæ et integritas et bona conscientia nominatur, est cum sincero animi studio et proposito unumquodque bene
20 agimus. Gen. xvii. 1. indesinenter ambula coram me, et esto integer. Deut. xviii. 13. integer esto cum Iehova Deo tuo. Iob. xxvii. 5, 6. quoad exspiravero non amovebo integritatem meam a me—. Psal. xxvi. 1. iudicem meum age Iehova, quoniam ego in integritate mea ambulo. Prov. iv. 23. supra
25 omnem observationem custodito cor tuum: ex eo prodeunt actiones vitæ. Matt. xii. 35. bonus homo ex bono thesauro

excellent." Heb. v. 14. "strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil." This quality is an indispensable seasoning to every virtue, as salt was to 5 the ancient sacrifices. Mark ix. 49. "every one shall be salted with fire; and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt."

Hence the maxim, "of the evils of sin choose none, of those of punishment the least." If this be true with regard to the evils of sin, it is obvious how preposterously they interpret
10 the law, who hold that usury, divorce, polygamy, and the like, were conceded to the hardheartedness of the Jews as venial infirmities, or as evils which were to be abated or regulated by law; whereas the law can no more concede or tolerate the smallest degree of moral evil, than a good man can voluntarily choose it.

Thus much of the general virtues which belong to the understanding; those which belong to the will are SINCERITY, PROMPTITUDE, and CONSTANCY.

SINCERITY, which is also called integrity, and a good conscience, consists in acting rightly on all occasions, with a sincere desire and a hearty mental determination. Gen. xvii. 1. "walk before me, and be thou perfect." Deut. xviii. 13. "thou shalt be perfect with Jehovah thy God." Job xxvii. 5, 6. "till I die I will not remove mine integrity from me." Psal. xxvi.
20 1. "judge me, O Jehovah, for I have walked in mine integrity." Prov. iv. 23. "keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Matt. xii. 35. "a good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth good things—."

Acts xxiii. 1. "I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day." xxiv. 16. "to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men." 2 Tim. i. 3. "I thank God, whom I serve from my forefathers with pure conscience." 1 Cor. iv. 4. "I know nothing of myself; yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord." Philipp. ii. 15. "that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation." Col. iii. 23. "whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." 1 Tim. i. 19. "holding faith, and a good conscience, which some having put away concerning faith have made shipwreck." 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course." Heb. xiii. 18. "we trust we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly." 1 John iii. 19. "hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him." v. 21. "if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God." Properly speaking, however, a good conscience is not in itself sincerity, but rather an approving judgment of the mind respecting its own actions, formed according to the light which we have received either from nature or from grace, whereby we are satisfied of our inward sincerity. Rom. ii. 15. "which show the work of the law written in their hearts," &c. This feeling is described Job xiii. 15, &c. "I will maintain mine own ways before him." xxiii. 3, &c. "O that I knew where I might find him—!" xxxi. 6. "let me be weighed in an even balance, that God may know mine integrity." v. 35. "O that one would hear me!" 2 Cor.

gloratio nostra hæc est, testimonium conscientiæ nostræ, quod cum simplicitate et sinceritate Dei, non cum sapientia carnali, sed cum gratia Dei versati sumus in mundo.

- Huic contraria est conscientia mala; lata quidem significatione accepta, ex lumine scilicet vel naturæ vel gratiæ iudicium mentis cuiusque de operibus suis malis, eorumque improbatio: quæ mali potius Conscientia dicenda est. Gen. xlii. 21. dicebant alter alteri, immo rei sumus de fratre nostro: idcirco angustia hæc obvenit nobis. Hos. x. 8. dicent montibus, tegite nos, et collibus, cadite super nos. cum Apoc. vi. 16. dixerunt montibus et petris, cadite in nos; occultate nos a conspectu eius qui insidet throno et ab ira agni. Luc. xx. 5, 6. ratiocinati sunt apud se dicentes, si dixerimus, E cælo; dicet, Quare ergo non creditis ei—? Act. xxiv. 25. disserente ipso de iustitia,— expavescit Felix. Rom. ii. 15. una testimonium Reddente ipsorum conscientia et Cogitationibus sese mutuo accusantibus, aut etiam defendentibus. Heb. x. 22. Aspersione purgatis Cordibus a conscientia mala. Ioan. viii. 9. a conscientia convicti—. Strictius autem et magis proprie
- Conscientia mala Dicitur quæ ex errore aut pravo affectu iudicium fert, non ex Lumine vel Naturæ vel gratiæ. 1 Cor. viii. 7. Conscientia eorum infirma quum sit, inquinatur. 1 Tim. iv. 2. Adusti conscientias cauterio—. Tit. i. 15. polluta est eorum et mens et conscientia.

i. 12. "our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world."

- 5 The opposite to this is an evil conscience; that is to say, allowing some latitude of signification to the word, the judgment of each individual mind concerning its own bad actions, and its consequent disapproval of them, according to the light enjoyed from nature or grace; which may be more properly
- 10 called a consciousness of evil. Gen. xlii. 21. "we are verily guilty concerning our brother . . . therefore is this distress come upon us." Hos. x. 8. "they shall say to the mountains, Cover us, and to the hills, Fall on us," compared with Rev. vi. 16. "they said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and
- 15 hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb." Luke xx. 5, 6. "they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say, Why then believed ye him not?" Acts xxiv. 25. "as he reasoned of righteousness . . . Felix trembled."
- 20 Rom. ii. 15. "their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the meanwhile accusing or else excusing one another." Heb. x. 22. "having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience." John viii. 9. "being convicted by their own conscience." Strictly speaking, however, an evil conscience
- 25 is one which judges erroneously or with a wrong bias, and not according to the light derived from nature or grace. 1 Cor. viii. 7. "their conscience being weak, is defiled." 1 Tim. iv. 2. "having their conscience seared with a hot iron." Tit. i. 15. "even their mind and conscience is defiled."

Contrariæ sunt sinceritati et cogitationes malæ. Matt. v. 28. iam adulteravit eam in corde suo. et xv. 18, 19. quæ profiscuntur ex corde, illa polluant hominem: nam ex corde egrediuntur cogitationes improbæ, cædes—.

- 5 Et hypocrisis: quæ opera vel speciosa pro bonis facit; vel bona quæ sunt, fini non bono agit. Matt. vi. 1, &c. attendite ne iustitiam vestram exerceatis coram hominibus; ut spectemini ab iis: alioqui mercedem non habebitis apud patrem vestrum qui est in cælis—. et xxiii. 25, 26. væ vobis scribæ
 10 et Pharisæi hypocritæ qui purificatis exteriorum poculi patinæque partem; intus autem plena sunt rapina et intemperantia—.

- PROMPTITUDO seu Alacritas est virtus cum sponte et libenter bene agimus. Psal. i. 2. cuius oblectatio est in lege Iehovæ.
 15 et xl. 9. facere voluntatem tuam, Deus mi, delector: et lex tua est in visceribus meis. et cx. 3. populus tuus, populus voluntarius. Prov. xxi. 15. lætitiæ est iusto facere ius. 2 Cor. viii. 12. si prius adsit promptus animus, aliquis acceptus est pro eo quod habet—. et ix. 7. hilarem datorem diligit Deus.
 20 Opponitur ei præcipitantia. Matt. viii. 19. sequar te quocunque iveris.

- Et officium coactum vel minime spontaneum. Deut. xxviii. 47. propterea quod non servieris Deo tuo in lætitiâ et in hilaritate cordis. 2 Cor. ix. 7. non ex tristitia aut necessitate.
 25 Gal. vi. 9. ne quod bonum est faciendo segnes simus: præstituto enim tempore metemus, si non frangamur animo. 2 Thess. iii. 13. ne segnes sitis in bene faciendo. Heb. v. 11.

Contrary to sincerity are, first, evil thoughts. Matt. v. 28. "he hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." xv. 18, 19. "those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart, and they defile the man; for out
5 of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders—" Secondly, hypocrisy; the deeds of which, though plausible, are not good, or if good, are not done with a good design. Matt. vi. 1, &c. "take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them, otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is 10 in heaven." xxiii. 25, 26. "woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess."

PROMPTITUDE or alacrity is that which excites us to act with a ready and willing spirit. Psal. i. 2. "whose delight is in the 15 law of Jehovah." xl. 8. "I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart." cx. 3. "thy people shall be willing." Prov. xxi. 15. "it is joy to the just to do judgment." 2 Cor. viii. 12. "if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath—" ix. 7. "God loveth a cheer-20 ful giver."

Its opposites are, first, precipitancy. Matt. viii. 19. "I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest."

Secondly, a forced and not spontaneous discharge of duty. Deut. xxviii. 47. "because thou servedst not Jehovah thy God 25 with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart." 2 Cor. ix. 7. "not grudgingly, or of necessity." Gal. vi. 9. "let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." 2 Thess. iii. 13. "be not weary in well doing."

segnes facti estis auribus. et xii. 3. reputate quis ille sit qui talem toleravit a peccatoribus adversus se contradictionem, ne vestris animabus fracti, fatiscatis. et v. 12. manus remissas et genua soluta surrigite. 1 Pet. v. 2. non coacte, sed libenter.

- 5 CONSTANTIA est virtus qua in proposito bene agendi perseveramus, neque ab eo ulla ratione dimovemur. Psal. cxix. 44, 45. observabo legem tuam iugiter, in sæculum et sempiternum: indesinenterque ambulabo in ipsa latitudine. et v. 51. superbis deridentibus me admodum, a lege tua me non 10 declinare. et 61. turmis improborum dispoliantibus me, legis tuæ non obliviscor. 95. me expectantibus improbis ad perdendum me, testimonia tua considero. 110. ponentibus improbis laqueum mihi, a mandatis tuis non aberro. 112. inclino animum meum ad faciendum statuta tua in sæculum, 15 ad finem usque. 157. ut multi sint persequentes me et hostes mei, a testimoniis tuis non declino. Eccles. vii. 14. tempore boni versare in bono: tempore autem mali utere. Matt. xxiv. 13. qui perseveraverit usque ad finem, hic salvus erit. 2 Cor. vi. 3, &c. in omnibus nos approbantes, ut Dei ministri; tole-
 20 rantia multa in afflictionibus, in necessitatibus, in angustiis— et viii. 11. illud ipsum facere absolvite, ut sicut adfuit promptus ille animus ad volendum, ita etiam adsit ipsum perficere quod habetis.

Huic opponitur inconstantia Ier. xxxiv. 8, &c. postquam
 25 pepigisset fœdus de promulganda libertate—, iterum postea

Heb. v. 11. "ye are dull of hearing." xii. 3. "consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds." v. 12. "lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees." 1 Pet. 5 v. 2. "not by constraint, but willingly."

CONSTANCY is that virtue whereby we persevere in a determination to do right, from which nothing can divert us. Psal. cxix. 44, 45. "I shall keep thy law continually for ever and ever; and I will walk at liberty." v. 51. "the proud have had me greatly in derision, yet have I not declined from thy law." 10 v. 61. "the bands of the wicked have robbed me, but I have not forgotten thy law." v. 95. "the wicked have waited for me to destroy me, but I will consider thy testimonies." v. 110. "the wicked have laid a snare for me, yet I erred not from thy 15 precepts." v. 112. "I have inclined mine heart to perform thy statutes alway, even unto the end." v. 157. "many are my persecutors and mine enemies; yet do I not decline from thy testimonies." Eccles. vii. 14. "in the day of prosperity be joyful; but in the day of adversity consider." Matt. xxiv. 13. 20 "he that shall endure to the end, the same shall be saved." 2 Cor. vi. 4, &c. "in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses—" viii. 11. "now therefore perform the doing of it, that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a 25 performance also out of that which ye have."

The opposites of these are, first, inconstancy. Jer. xxxiv. 8, &c. "after that the king Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people . . . to proclaim liberty unto them . . .

recepissent servos illos—. et v. 15, 16. reversi quidem vos hodie fecistis quod rectum—; sed rursus profanasti—. Luc. ix. 66. nemo admovens manum suam aratro et respiciens ad ea quæ retro sunt, idoneus est ad regnum Dei. Matt. xiii. 5 20, 21, 22. sermonem audit—. non habet autem radicem in sese, sed temporarius est: orta que compressione vel persecutione propter sermonem statim offenditur. sermonem audit: sed sollicitudo sæculi huius et fallacia divitiarum—.

Et pertinacia in errore seu proposito malo. Psal. xix. 14.
10 a contumaciis subtrahe servum tuum, ne dominantur in me, tunc integer et insons ero a defectione magna. Ier. ii. 35. ecce ego disceptaturus sum tecum, eo quod dicas, non peccavi. Act. vii. 51. duri cervice, et incircumcisi corde et auribus, vos semper spiritui sancto obnitimini.

afterwards they turned and caused the servants and the handmaids whom they had let go free to return." v. 15, 16. "ye were now turned and had done right in my sight . . . but ye turned and polluted my name." Luke ix. 62. "no man
5 having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." Matt. xiii. 20-22. "he heareth the word . . . yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while; for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended . . . he heareth the 10 word, and the care of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word."

Secondly, obstinacy in error, or in a wrong purpose. Psal. xix. 13. "keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, 15 and I shall be innocent from the great transgression." Jer. ii. 35. "behold, I will plead with thee, because thou sayest, I have not sinned." Acts vii. 51. "ye stiff-necked, and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost."

CHAPTER III.

OF THE VIRTUES BELONGING TO THE WORSHIP OF GOD.

SPECIAL virtues are those which pertain only to a particular branch of our duty; namely, to our duty towards God, or towards man.

OUR DUTY TOWARDS GOD relates to HIS IMMEDIATE WORSHIP
5 or SERVICE; which is either internal or external.

Internal worship consists mainly in the acknowledgment of the one true God, and in the cultivation of devout affections towards him. Deut. vi. 4. "hear, O Israel; Jehovah our God is one Jehovah"; as in the first book, on God.

10 Opposed to this is, first, atheism. Psal. xiv. 1. "the fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." also liii. 1. See more on this subject in the first book, as above.

Secondly, polytheism, or the acknowledgment of more Gods than one, except in the sense authorized by Scripture
15 itself. Gal. iv. 8. "when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no Gods."

DEVOUT AFFECTIONS TOWARDS GOD are LOVE, TRUST, HOPE, GRATITUDE, FEAR, HUMILITY, PATIENCE, OBEDIENCE. Deut. x. 12, 13. "what doth Jehovah thy God require of thee, but to fear 20 Jehovah thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve Jehovah thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul; to keep the commandments of Jehovah and his statutes."

THE LOVE OF GOD is that by which we prefer him above all diligimus, eiusque gloriæ studemus. Deut. vi. 5. diliges Iehovam Deum tuum ex toto corde tuo—. Matt. xxii. 37. idem.

Eiusque gloriæ studemus. Num. xiv. 15, 16. loquerentur gentes istæ—; propterea quod non poterat Iehova—. Ios. vii. 9. et quid facies nomine tuo maximo?

Opponitur huic odium Dei. Ioan. xv. 24. oderunt tum me tum patrem meum.

Et amor mundi aut rerum creatarum. Luc. xiv. 33. quis
 10 quis vestrum non valedicit omnibus bonis suis, non potest meus esse discipulus. 1 Cor. vii. 31. qui utuntur hoc mundo, ut non abutentes—. Philipp. iii. 7, 8. certe duco omnia damnum esse propter eminentiam notitiæ Iesu Christi Domini mei: propter quem omnibus istis meipsum multavi, eaque
 15 duco pro stercoribus ut Christum lucrifaciam. Iacob. iv. 4. an nescitis amicitiam mundi inimicitiam esse adversus Deum? Quicumque ergo voluerit amicus esse mundi, inimicus Dei constituitur. 1 Ioan. ii. 15. ne diligite mundum—.

De fide dictum est supra ut de causa iustificationis instru-20 mentali: hic de FIDUCIA ut amoris effecto et cultus interni parte; cum ea omnis collocatur in Deo. 2 Chron. xx. 20. firmæ credite Iehovæ, et confirmabimini. Psal. xviii. 2, 3, &c. Deus fortis meus rupes mea, ad quem me recipiam, clypeus meus et cornu salutis meæ, editus locus meus—. Sic Psal. xxvii. et other objects of affection, and desire his glory. Deut. vi. 5. "thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thine heart—." See also Matt. xxii. 37.

Desire his glory. Num. xiv. 15, 16. "then the nations will 5 speak, saying, Because Jehovah was not able to bring this people into the land—." Josh. vii. 9. "what wilt thou do unto thy great name?"

Opposed to this is a hatred of God: John xv. 24. "they have hated both me and my Father"; and a love of the world or 10 of created things. Luke xiv. 33. "whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." 1 Cor. vii. 31. "they that use this world, as not abusing it." Philipp. iii. 7, 8. "what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ; yea doubtless, and I count all things
15 but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Christ." James iv. 4. "know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is 20 the enemy of God." 1 John ii. 15. "love not the world."

Of faith, in its primary sense, and as the instrumental cause of justification, I have spoken above; I now speak of TRUST IN God, considered as an effect of love, and as a part of internal worship, whereby we wholly repose on him. 2 Chron. xx. 20.
25 "believe in Jehovah your God, so shall ye be established." Psal. xviii. 2, 3, &c. "Jehovah is my rock and my fortress . . . in whom I will trust, my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower." So also Psal. xxvii. xxviii. 7.

xxviii. 7. et xxxii. 10. et xxxvii. 5. devolve super Iehovam viam tuam, et confide in eo, nam ipse efficiet. Sic lxi. et lxii. et lxxiii. 26. et lxxxiv. 12. et cxii. 7. et cxv. 9, &c. et cxxiii. et cxxx. 6. Prov. xiv. 26. in reverentia Iehovæ est fiducia
 5 valida, qui filiis suis esse solet receptui. et xvi. 3. devolve in Iehovam facta tua, et comparabuntur cogitationes tuæ. Sic cap. xviii. 10. et xxx. 5. Isa. lix. 1, &c. en non est brevior manus Iehovæ quam ut servet—. Ier. xvii. 7. benedictus vir ille qui fiduciam habet in Iehova, et cuius confidentia est Ie-

xxxii. 10. xxxvii. 5. "commit thy way unto Jehovah, trust also in him, and he shall bring it to pass." So also lxi. lxii. lxxiii. 26. lxxxiv. 12. cxii. 7. cxv. 9, &c. cxxiii. cxxx. 6. Prov. xiv. 26. "in the fear of Jehovah is strong confidence, and his children shall have a place of refuge." xvi. 3. "commit thy works unto Jehovah, and thy thoughts shall be established." See also xviii. 10. xxx. 5. Isa. lix. 1. "behold, Jehova's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save." Jer. xvii. 7. "blessed is the man that trusteth in Jehovah, and whose hope Jehovah is." Mal. iii. 16-18. "then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked," &c.

Opposed to this is, first, distrust of God. Gen. xii. 13. "say, I pray thee, thou art my sister—" xxxii. 7. "then Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed." Num. xiv. 1, &c. "all the congregation lifted up their voice and cried—" xx. 10, 11. "must we fetch you water out of this rock? . . . with his rod he smote the rock twice." 2 Kings vii. 2. "if Jehovah would make windows in heaven, might this thing be?" Isa. vii. 12. "I will not ask, neither will I tempt Jehovah."

Secondly, an overweening presumption. Num. xiv. 44. "they presumed to go up unto the hill top." xv. 30. "the soul that doeth ought presumptuously—" Prov. xxvii. 1. "boast not thyself of to-morrow—" Amos v. 18. "woe unto you that desire the day of Jehovah." Mic. iii. 11. from the wrath to come?" iv. 6, 7. "thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Rom. ii. 4. "despisest thou the riches of his goodness—?"

Thirdly, carnal reliance. 2 Chron. xvi. 7. "because thou
5 hast relied on the king of Syria—" v. 12. "in his disease he sought not to Jehovah, but to the physicians." Psal. xiv. 6. "ye have shamed the counsel of the poor, because Jehovah is his refuge." See also cxviii. 8, 9. cxlvi. 3. "put not your trust in princes." cxlvii. 10. "he delighteth not in the strength of 10 the horse." Prov. xxix. 26. "many seek the ruler's favor." Isa. xxx. 2. "to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh," &c. iii. 1. "the Lord doth take away . . . the stay and the staff." xxii. 8. "thou didst look in that day to the armor of the house of the forest." xxxi. 1. "woe to them that 15 go down to Egypt for help—" Jer. xvii. 5. "cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from Jehovah." Amos vi. 13. "ye which rejoice in a thing of nought."

Fourthly, a trust in idols. 2 Kings i. 2. "go, enquire of 20 Baalzebub—" More will be said on this subject hereafter, under the head of idolatry.

HOPE is that by which we expect with certainty the fulfilment of God's promises. Job xiii. 15. "though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." Psal. xxxi. 24. "be of good courage, 25 and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in Jehovah." xxvii. 14. "wait on Jehovah—" cxix. 116. "let me not be ashamed of my hope." Prov. x. 28. "the hope of the righteous shall be gladness." Isa. xl. 31. "they that wait upon vires, ascendunt pennis velut aquilæ— Rom. v. 4, 5. experientia autem spes: porro spes non pudefacit eo quod charitas Dei effusa est in cordibus nostris.

Et Huic et fidei etiam opponitur dubitatio; quæ piis non-
 5 nunquam ad tempus accidit. 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. dixit David cum animo suo, iam consumar aliquo die manu Saulis. Matt. xiv. 31. exigua fide prædite, quare dubitasti? et xxi. 21. si habueritis fidem, ne addubitaveritis: Marc. xi. 23. nec dubitaverit in corde suo, sed crediderit.

10 Et desperatio; quæ in reprobos tantum cadit. Gen. iv. 13. dixit Cain Iehovæ, maior est pœna mea quam ut sustinere possim. Matt. xxvii. 5. ipse proiectis nummis argenteis—, strangulavit sese. Act. i. 18. et præcipitatus crepuit medius—.

GRATITUDO erga Deum est quæ agnoscimus dona Dei in nos
 15 indignos collata. Psal. ciii. 2, &c. ne obliviscaris ullius beneficiorum eius—. et cxvi. 12. quid rependerem Iehovæ—? 1 Cor. vi. 20. empti estis pretio; glorificate igitur Deum in corpore vestro et in spiritu vestro quæ sunt Dei. Heb. xii. 28. teneamus gratiam per quam ita colamus Deum, ut ei grati
 20 simus, cum verecundia et reverentia. 1 Pet. ii. 9. ut virtutes prædicetis illius qui vos vocavit—. 1 Ioan. iv. 19. nos diligimus eum, quoniam ipse prior dilexit nos.

Jehovah shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings as eagles." Rom. v. 4, 5. "experience worketh hope; and hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts."

- 5 Opposed to this virtue, as well as to faith, is doubt; to which even the pious are sometimes liable, at least for a time. 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. "David said in his heart, I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul." Matt. xiv. 31. "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" xxi. 21. "if ye have faith and 10 doubt not—." Mark xi. 23. "whosoever shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe—."

Secondly, despair; which takes place only in the reprobate. Gen. iv. 13. "Cain said unto Jehovah, My punishment is greater than I can bear." Matt. xxvii. 5. "he cast down the 15 pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself." Acts i. 18. "falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst."

- GRATITUDE towards God is that whereby we acknowledge his goodness in conferring benefits upon creatures so un-20 worthy as ourselves. Psal. ciii. 2. "forget not all his benefits." cxvi. 12. "what shall I render unto Jehovah—?" 1 Cor. vi. 20. "ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." Heb. xii. 28. "let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with 25 reverence and godly fear." 1 Pet. ii. 9. "that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness—." 1 John iv. 19. "we love him, because he first loved us."

Opponitur huic ingratitudo erga Deum. Isa. i. 2. filios educavi et extuli, ipsi autem deficientes rebellaverunt contra me. Hos. xiii. 6. prout erant pascua eorum saturati sunt, simul ac saturati sunt, elatus est animus eorum; idcirco obliti sunt mei. Rom. i. 21. quum Deum cognoverint, tamen ut Deum non glorificaverunt, neque gratias ei egerunt.

Et gratitudo erga idola aut res creatas præ Deo. Ier. xlv. 17. adolendo rebus cœlestibus, et libando iis libamina, satiamur cibo, et eramus hilares, ac malum non experiebamur. 10 Abac. i. 16. impius sacrificat plagis suis et suffitum facit retiiculo suo.

TIMOR Dei est quo Deum sicut summum patrem omnium et iudicem reveremur, eiusque offensionem summe timemus. Deut. xxviii. 58. timendo nomen gloriosissimum et summe reverendum istud, Iehovam Deum tuum. Psal. ii. 11. colite Iehovam cum reverentia, et exultate cum tremore. et xxxiv. 12. reverentiam Iehovæ docebo vos. et cxxx. 4. apud te est condonatio ut reverenter colaris. Prov. xix. 23. reverentia Iehovæ vitalis est. Mal. i. 6. si pater sum, ubi est honor meus? 20 et si Dominus sum, ubi reverentia mei? cum 1 Pet. i. 17. si patrem nominatis cum qui citra personarum respectum iudicat ex cuiusque opera, cum timore versamini commorationis vestræ tempore. Matt. x. 28. timete potius eum qui potest et animam et corpus perdere in gehenna. Philipp. ii. 12. 25 cum timore ac tremore vestram ipsorum salutem conficite.

Opposed to this is, first, ingratitude towards God. Isa. i. 2. "I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me." Hos. xiii. 6. "according to their pasture, so were they filled; they were filled, and their heart was 5 exalted: therefore have they forgotten me." Rom. i. 21. "when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful."

Secondly, the bestowing on idols, or on created things, that gratitude which we owe to God. Jer. xlv. 17. "to burn 10 incense unto the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her . . . then had we plenty of victuals, and were well, and saw no evil." Hab. i. 16. "they sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their drag."

The FEAR OF GOD is that whereby we reverence God as the 15 supreme Father and Judge of all men, and dread offending him above all things. Deut. xxviii. 58. "that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, Jehovah thy God." Psal. ii. 11. "serve Jehovah with fear, and rejoice with trembling." xxxiv. 11. "I will teach you the fear of Jehovah." cxxx. 4. "there is 20 forgiveness with him, that thou mayest be feared." Prov. xix. 23. "the fear of Jehovah tendeth to life." Mal. i. 6. "if I be father, where is mine honor? if I be a master, where is my fear?" 1 Pet. i. 17. "if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, 25 pass the time of your sojourning here in fear." Matt. x. 28. "rather fear him which is able to destroy both body and soul in hell." Philipp. ii. 12. "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling."

- Huic opponitur securitas carnalis. Iob. v. 3, &c. ego vidi stultum radicatum—. et xxiv. 23, &c. si dat ei securitatem—. et xxxiv. 22. nullæ sunt tenebræ, nullaque umbra lethalis ubi se abscondant operarii iniquitatis. Psal. x. 5, 6, &c. altissime absunt iudicia tua a conspectu eius—. et xxx. 7. dicebam in tranquillitate mea, non dimovebor in sæculum. et lxxiii. 6, &c. idcirco cingit eos torques superbix—. et xciv. 7, &c. dicentes, non respicit Iah—. Eccles. viii. 10. quia nullum efficitur decretum, compensatio istius mali cito; idcirco ferveret
 10 animus hominum in ipsis ut faciant malum. Isa. v. 19. dicentibus, festinet—. et xxviii. 15. quoniam dicitis, pepigimus fœdus cum morte—. et xxix. 15. væ abdentibus in profundum a Iehova consilium—. Ezech. viii. 12. non est Iehova qui videat nos, dereliquit Iehova terram hanc. Amos. vi. 1, 3.
 15 væ tranquillis—. Zeph. i. 12. dicentes cum animo suo, non benefacit Iehova, neque malefacit. Matt. xxv. Virgines fatuæ. Luc. xii. 2, 3. nihil opertum est, quod non detegatur—. et xii. 19. dicam animæ meæ—. et v. 45. si dixerit servus ille—. 1 Cor. xi. 31. si nos ipsos diiudicaremus, non iudicaremur.
 20 Et timor servilis. 1 Ioan. iv. 18. metus non est in charitate: integra charitas foras eiicit metum; quoniam metus cruciatum habet: qui autem metuit, non est consummatus in charitate.
 Et idololatricus. 2 Reg. xvii. 33. Iehovam reverebantur, et deos suos colebant ex ritu gentium quas deportaverant inde.

Opposed to this is, first, carnal security. Job v. 3, &c. "I have seen the foolish taking root." xxiv. 23, &c. "though it be given him to be in safety, whereon he resteth—" xxxiv. 22. "there is no darkness, nor shadow of death, where the 5 workers of iniquity may hide themselves." Psal. x. 5, 6. "thy judgments are far above out of his sight." xxx. 6. "in my prosperity I said, I shall never be moved." lxxiii. 6. "therefore pride compasseth them about as a chain." xciv. 7. "yet they say, Jah shall not see." Eccles. viii. 11. "because sentence
10 against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." Isa. v. 19. "that say, Let him make speed and hasten his work." xxviii. 15. "because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death." xxix. 15. "woe unto them that seek deep to hide
15 their counsel from Jehovah." Ezek. viii. 12. "Jehovah seeth us not, Jehovah hath forsaken the earth." Amos vi. 1. "woe to them that are at ease." Zeph. i. 12. "that say in their hearts, Jehovah will not do good, neither will he do evil." Matt. xxv. "the foolish virgins." Luke xii. 2, 3. "there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed—" v. 19. "I will say to my 20 soul," &c. v. 45. "if that servant say in his heart," &c. 1 Cor. xi. 31. "if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged."

Secondly, a slavish fear. 1 John iv. 18. "there is no fear in 25 love; but perfect love casteth out fear, because fear hath torment: he that feareth is not made perfect in love."

Thirdly, a fear of idols. 2 Kings xvii. 33. "they feared Jehovah, and served their own gods, after the manner of the nations whom they carried away from thence."

- 5 1 Chron. xxix. 14. quis sum ego aut quis populus meus, ut obtineamus vim sponte offerendi huiusmodi? nam ex te sunt omnia, et a manu tua acceptum reddimus tibi. Psal. li. 19. sacrificia Dei sunt spiritus fractus. et cxv. 1. non nobis Iehova, non nobis; sed nomini tuo da honorem—. Isa. lxvi. 2.
 10 in hunc intueor, in pauperem et contritum spiritu, ac trepidantem ad verbum meum. Matt. v. 3. beati pauperes spiritu—. Luc. ix. 48. qui minimus est inter vos, is erit magnus. 1 Pet. v. 5, 6. submittite vos—. 1 Tim. i. 15. ut peccatores servaret; quorum primus sum ego.

- 15 Huic opponitur superbia coram Deo. Iob. xv. 25, 26, 27. qui intendit adversus Deum fortem manum suam—. Prov. iii. 34. derisores ipse deridet, humilibus autem dat gratiam. Iacob. iv. 6. et 1 Pet. v. 5. idem. Prov. xvi. 5. abominationi est Iehovæ omnis altus animo. Act. xii. 23. percussit eum 20 angelus Domini, eo quod non tribuisset gloriam Deo. Apoc. iii. 17. dicis dives sum, et ditatus sum, et nulla re mihi est opus: neque nosti te esse ærumnosum, et miserabilem, et pauperem, et cæcum, et nudum.

- Et humilitas superstitiosa. Col. ii. 23. rationem quidem 25 habent sapientiæ in cultu voluntario, et submissione animi,

And lastly, a fear of anything whatever except God. Matt. x. 28. "fear not them which kill the body."

HUMILITY is that whereby we acknowledge our unworthiness in the sight of God. Gen. xxxii. 10. "I am not worthy of 5 the least of all the mercies," &c. 1 Chron. xxix. 14. "who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort? for all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee." Psal. li. 17. "the sacrifices of God are a broken spirit." cxv. 1. "not unto us, O Jehovah, 10 not unto us, but unto thy name give the praise." Isa. lxvi. 2. "to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word." Matt. v. 3. "blessed are the poor in spirit." Luke ix. 48. "he that is least among you all, the same shall be great." 1 Pet. v. 5, 6. "submit your-
15 selves," &c. 1 Tim. i. 15. "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."

To this is opposed, first, pride towards God. Job xv. 25. "he stretcheth out his hand against God." Prov. iii. 34. "he scorneth the scorner; but he giveth grace unto the lowly."
20 See also James iv. 6. 1 Pet. v. 5. Prov. xvi. 5. "every one that is proud of heart is an abomination to Jehovah." Acts xii. 23. "the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory." Rev. iii. 17. "thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that 25 thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

Secondly, a false or superstitious humility. Col. ii. 23. "which things have indeed a show of wisdom in will worship, et in eo quod corpori non parcant: nec tamen ullius sunt pretii quum ad ea spectent: quibus farcitur caro.

PATIENTIA est qua providentiæ, potentiæ, et bonitatis divinæ fiducia suffulti, Dei promissis acquiescimus, et quæ necessario and humility, and neglecting of the body; not in any honor to the satisfying of the flesh."

PATIENCE is that whereby we acquiesce in the promises of God, through a confident reliance on his divine providence, power, and goodness, and bear inevitable evils with equanimity, as the dispensation of the supreme Father, and sent for our good. Job i. 22. "in all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly." ii. 10. "shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" 2 Sam. xvi. 10. 10 "because Jehovah hath said unto him, Curse David, who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?" Isa. xxviii. 16. "he that believeth shall not mistake." Lam. iii. 29, &c. "he putteth his mouth in the dust, if so be there may be hope; he giveth his cheek to him that smiteth him." Matt. xvi. 24. 15 "let him take up his cross, and follow me." Luke xxi. 19. "in your patience possess ye your souls." Rom. viii. 25. "if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it." xv. 4. "that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." 2 Cor. xii. 10. "therefore I take 20 pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake." Col. i. 11. "unto all long-suffering." 2 Thess. iii. 5. "the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ." Heb. x. 36. "ye have need of patience, that after ye have done 25 the will of God, ye might receive the promise." James v. 7, 8. "be patient unto the coming of the Lord; behold, the husbandman waiteth . . . be ye also patient, stablish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." 1 Pet. ii.

si quis propter conscientiam Dei, suffert molestias iniuste afflictus. Si bene agentes patienter sufferatis, hæc est gratia apud Deum. Nam ad hoc etiam vocati estis, quoniam et Christus passus est pro nobis, relinquens nobis exemplar, ut subsequamini vestigia ipsius—. Qui convitiis affectus, non vicissim convitiabatur, quum pateretur non minabatur, sed committebat causam suam ei qui iuste iudicat.

Huic opponitur impatientia erga Deum: quo peccato sancti nonnunquam tentantur. I Reg. xix. 4. expetebat apud se mori. Iob. iii. 2, &c. utinam periisset dies—. et vii. 11, &c. proinde ego non cohibeo os meum—. et xix. 6, &c. en exclamans violentiam, non tamen exaudior; vociferanti non adest iudicium—. Eccles. vii. 7, &c. cum oppressio adigat ad insaniam—. Ier. xx. 15, &c. maledictus ille vir qui nunciavit patri meo—. et xlv. 3, &c. dixisti, Eheu iam mihi, quia addit Iehova mœrorem dolori meo. Ion. iv. 3. præstat mori me quam vivere.

OBEDIENTIA est qua voluntatem Dei nobis ante omnia sequendam proponimus, Deoque servimus. Sic Abrahamus, Gen. xii. 1. profectus est Charane, sicut edixerat ei Iehova. et xxii. 3. mane itaque surgens Abraham, eodem matutino, instravit—. I Sam. xv. 22. an delectatus Iehova holocaustis et sacrificiis, ut quum auscultatur voci Iehovæ? ecce auscultare est melius sacrificio. Psal. lxxxi. 14, 15. o si populus meus auscultasset—. Eccles. v. 1. paratus ad audiendum

19, &c. "this is thank-worthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully . . . if when ye do well and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God: for even hereunto were ye called; because Christ
 5 also suffered for us, leaving us an example that ye should follow his steps . . . who when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

Opposed to this is impatience under the divine decrees; a 10 temptation to which the saints themselves are at times liable. 1 Kings xix. 4. "he requested for himself that he might die." Job iii. 2, &c. "let the day perish wherein I was born." vii. 11. "therefore I will not refrain my mouth." xix. 7. "behold, I cry out of wrong, but I am not heard; I cry aloud, but there
 15 is no judgment." Eccles. vii. 7. "surely oppression maketh a wise man mad." Jer. xx. 15. "cursed be the man who brought tidings to my father, saying—" xlv. 5. "thou didst say, Woe is me now, for Jehovah hath added grief to my sorrow." Jonah iv. 3. "it is better for me to die than to live."

20 OBEDIENCE is that virtue whereby we propose to ourselves the will of God as the paramount rule of our conduct, and serve him alone. Thus Abraham, Gen. xii. 4. "departed from Canaan, as Jehovah had spoken unto him." xxii. 3. "Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass—" 25 1 Sam. xv. 22. "hath Jehovah as great delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of Jehovah? behold, to obey is better than sacrifice." Psal. lxxxi. 13, 14. CHAPTER IV.

OF EXTERNAL WORSHIP.

THUS much of the internal worship of God. We are now to speak of his external worship, which is commonly denominated RELIGION; not that internal worship is not also religion, but that it is not usually called so, except as it manifests itself in outward actions. Although external worship is, for the convenience of definition, distinguished from internal, it is our duty to unite them in practice, causa distinguitur, usu tamen coniungi semper cum interno debet, nec nisi impiorum vitio separatur.

Vera religio est qua Deus ritu et ratione ab ipso præscripta sincere colitur. Micæ vi. 6, &c. quamam re instructus veniam
 5 ante Iehovam—?

Appellatur in scripturis λατρεύειν, Matt. iv. 10. et δουλεύειν, cap. vi. 24. Gal. iv. 8.

Errant igitur pontificii qui λάτρειαν Deo, δούλειαν sanctis angelis et hominibus tribuunt.

- 10 Huic opponitur superstitio, seu ἐθελοθρησκεία, cultus ab hominibus confictus. Sic Nadab et Abiu obtulerunt ignem alienum coram Iehova, quod morte statim luerunt, Lev. x. 1, 2. 1 Sam. xiii. 12, 13. tandem obtuli holocaustum—. Stulte fecisti—. et xv. 15, 16. ad sacrificandum Iehovæ Deo
 15 tuo—. Desine, ut renuntiem tibi—. 1 Reg. xii. 31, 32. paravit domum excelsorum—. 2 Reg. xvi. 10, &c. quum vidisset altare—. 1 Chron. xv. v. 13. cum irrumpit Iehova Deus noster in nos, cum non requireremus eum rite—. Et tulerunt Levitæ arcam Dei quemadmodum præceperat—. Isa. xxix.
 20 13. est reverentia eorum erga me, quam præcepto hominum edocti sunt. Marc. vii. 7, 8. frustra me colunt, docentes doctrinas quæ sunt præcepta hominum—. et Matt. xv. 3, &c. quare vos transgredimini—? Gal. vi. 12. quicunque volunt speciosi apparere in carne, ii cogunt vos—. Quod grave pecnor are they ever separated, except by the impiety of sinners.

True religion is that by which God is worshipped with sincerity after the form and manner which he has himself prescribed. Mic. vi. 6. "wherewith shall I come before Jehovah—?" Worship is expressed in Scripture by the verb λατρεύειν, Matt. iv. 10. and δουλεύειν, vi. 24. Gal. iv. 8. The Papists therefore err in explaining λατρεία of the worship paid to God, δουλεία of that paid to holy men and angels.

Opposed to this is, first, superstition or will worship
 10 (ἐθελοθησκαία), the offspring of man's invention. Thus Nadab and Abihu offered strange fire before Jehovah, for which they were forthwith punished with death, Levit. x. 1, 2. 1 Sam. xiii. 12. "I forced myself therefore, and offered a burnt-offering . . . thou hast done foolishly." xv. 15, 16. "they have 15 brought them . . . to sacrifice unto Jehovah thy God . . . stay and I will tell thee what Jehovah hath said to me." 1 Kings xii. 31, 32. "he made an house of high places." 2 Kings xvi. 10. "he saw an altar that was at Damascus," &c. 1 Chron. xv. 13, 15. "Jehovah our God made a breach upon 20 us, for that we sought him not after the due order . . . so the children of the Levites bare the ark of God . . . according to the word of Jehovah." Isa. xxix. 13. "their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men." Mark vii. 7, 8. "in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the command-
 25 ments of men." Matt. xv. 3, &c. "why do ye also transgress the commandment of God—?" Gal. vi. 12. "as many as desire to make a fair show in the flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised." Some of the early teachers of the church

catum veterum in ecclesia doctorum merito notatur: qui ut Paganos ad Christianam religionem eo faciliiori transitu allicerent, eosdem ritus levi duntaxat vel rerum vel nominum mutatione retinuerunt cum summo religionis detrimento; 5 contra illud præceptum, Deut. xii. 30, 31. cave tibi ne sequendo eas, illaqueeris—, et ne exquiras de diis earum, dicendo, quomodo coluerunt gentes istæ deos suos, ut sic faciam ego quoque? Ne facito sic Iehovæ Deo tuo—.

Et cultus hypocriticus: cum externus quidem cultus rite 10 observatur, sed sine interno animi affectu; id quod Deo graviter offensum est. Lev. xxvi. 31. desolabo sanctuaria vestra—. 1 Sam. iv. 3. assumamus ad nos Silunte arcam fœderis Iehovæ. 2 Chr. xii. 9. ascendens Sesacus, accepit thesauros—. Sic Ioas templum exstruxit, cap. xxiv. 4, 6. et Herodes ipse 15 Christi hostis. Et xxxvi. 7. etiam ex instrumentis domus Iehovæ. Ezræ i. 7. idem. Prov. xv. 8. sacrificium improborum, abominationi est Iehovæ. Et xxi. 27. idem. Isa. i. 11, &c. quorsum mihi multitudo sacrificiorum vestrorum—? et Ier. vii. 4. ne habetote fiduciam vestram in rebus falsis, 20 dicendo, templi Iehovæ ista sunt. et v. 12. ite in locum meum qui erat Silunte—. et 14. idem. et Isa. xxix. 13. propterea quod appropinquat populus iste ore suo, et labiis suis honorant me, cor autem suum procul—. Matt. xv. 8, 9. idem. et

- are chargeable with this grievous error, in that they, to facilitate the conversion of the heathen to Christianity, retained the pagan rites with a slight alteration of names or things, to the infinite detriment of religion, and in direct violation
- 5 of the precept, Deut. xii. 30, 31. "take heed to thyself that thou be not snared by following them . . . and that thou inquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise: thou shalt not do so unto Jehovah thy God."
- 10 Secondly, an hypocritical worship, in which the external forms are duly observed, but without any accompanying affection of the mind; which is a high offence against God. Lev. xxvi. 31. "I will make your cities waste," &c. 1 Sam. iv. 3. "let us fetch the ark of the covenant of Jehovah out of
- 15 Shiloh unto us." 2 Chron. xii. 9. "so Shishak . . . came up against Jerusalem, and took away the treasures of the house of Jehovah." Thus Joash repaired the temple, xxiv. 4-6.; as did also Herod, although the enemy of Christ. xxxvi. 7. "Nebuchadnezzar carried of the vessels of the house of Je-
- 20 hovah, and put them in his temple at Babylon." See also Ezra i. 7. Prov. xv. 8. "the sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to Jehovah." See also xxi. 27. Isa. i. 11. "to what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me?" Jer. vii. 4. "trust ye not in lying words, saying, The temple of
- 25 Jehovah . . . are these." v. 12. "go ye now unto my place which was in Shiloh." See also v. 14. Isa. xxix. 13. "forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their heart far

Ier. xviii. 18. dicunt, agite, cogitemus contra Ieremiam cogitationes; nam non est peritura lex a sacerdote. Ezech. xxxiii. 5 30, 31, 32. sedentes coram te quasi populus meus—, quæstum suum animus ipsorum persequitur—. Amos. v. 21. odi, sperno dies festos vestros—. et vi. 5. modulantibus ad præscriptum nablii, sicut David—. Susceptam temere et ob rationes politicas religionem, cæde et excidio luunt Sichemitæ, Gen. xxxiv.

- Contra, cultus internus, id est, sincerus, etiamsi externus non rite obeatur, Deo tamen acceptus est: 1 Reg. iii. 3, &c. 25 amabat Solomon Iehovam—; tantummodo in istis excelsis

 5 perish from the priest." Ezek. xxxiii. 30-32. "they sit before thee as my people . . . but their heart goeth after covetousness." Amos v. 21. "I hate, I despise your feast days." vi. 5. "that chaunt to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music, like David." Mic. vi. 7, &c. "will
 10 Jehovah be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? he hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth Jehovah require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk
 15 humbly with thy God?" Matt. xii. 44. "he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished." xxi. 30, &c. "he answered and said, I go, sir; and went not." xxiii. 3. "they say and do not." v. 15. "woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites—." Luke xi. 40, 42. "ye fools, did not he that made that which 20 is without, make that which is within also?" Philipp. i. 15, 16. "some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife."

The Shechemites, Gen. xxxiv. were punished with slaughter and destruction for having adopted a new religion inconsiderately, and from secular motives.

25 On the contrary, internal worship, or the worship of the heart, is accepted of God, even where external forms are not in all respects duly observed. 1 Kings iii. 3. "Solomon loved Jehovah . . . only he sacrificed and burnt incense in high

*ipse sacrificabat. 2 Chron. xxx. 18, 19, 20. magna pars illius populi— non mundaverant se quum comederent pascha—: Sed oravit Ezechia pro iis, dicendo, Iehova optimus expiationem faciat pro eo quisquis animum suum comparaverit ad

Religionis veræ seu cultus Dei cum partes tum circum-

PARTES RELIGIONIS SUNT INVOCATIO SEU ADORATIO, ET NOMINIS DIVINI IN OMNI VITA SANCTIFICATIO.

INVOCATIO EST VEL PETITIO ET GRATIARUM ACTIO, VEL IUSIURANDUM ET SORS.

15 PETITIO EST QUAE RES QUASVIS LICITAS AUCTORE SANCTO SPIRITU REVERENTER A DEO EX FIDE IN CHRISTO PRO NOBIS PROQUE ALIIS PETIMUS. Psal. l. 15. invoca me tempore angustia, eripiam te ut honore afficias me. et lxxxvi. 4, 5. ad te Domine animam meam attollo. Tu enim Domine bonus es et condonans, multusque benignitate omnibus invocantibus te. Matt. vii. 7, 9, 10. petite, et dabitur vobis; quærite, et invenietis; pulsate, et aperietur vobis. Philipp. iv. 6. de nulla re solliciti estote; sed omni in re orationibus et deprecatione cum gratiarum actione petitiones vestrae innotescant apud Deum.

places." 2 Chron. xxx. 18-20. "a multitude of the people . . . had not cleansed themselves, yet did they eat the pass-over . . . but Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, The good Jehovah pardon every one that prepareth his heart to seek 5 God, Jehovah God of his fathers, though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary: and Jehovah hearkened to Hezekiah, and healed the people." John vii. 14. "now about the midst of the feast, Jesus went up into the temple and taught."

- 10 The parts and circumstances of true religion, or of the worship of God, are next to be considered.

THE PARTS into which RELIGION is divided, are THE INVOCATION OF ADORATION OF GOD, and THE SANCTIFICATION OF HIS NAME IN ALL THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF LIFE.

- 15 Under INVOCATION are included, first, SUPPLICATION and THANKSGIVING; secondly, OATHS and THE CASTING OF LOTS.

SUPPLICATION is that act whereby UNDER THE GUIDANCE OF THE HOLY SPIRIT WE REVERENTLY ASK OF GOD THINGS LAWFUL, EITHER FOR OURSELVES OR OTHERS, THROUGH FAITH IN CHRIST.

- 20 Psal. l. 15. "call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me." lxxxvi. 4, 5. "unto thee, O Jehovah, do I lift up my soul; for thou, Jehovah, art good and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee." Matt. vii. 7-10. "ask, and it shall be given 25 you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Philipp. iv. 6. "be careful for nothing, but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your request be made known unto God."

"how then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed?" 1 Tim. ii. 8. "without doubting." James i. 6, 7. "let him ask in faith, nothing wavering; 5 for he that wavereth," &c.

IN CHRIST. John xiv. 13, 14. "whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son." xvi. 23. "whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my 10 name, he will give it you." Rev. v. 8. "having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odors, which are the prayers of saints." viii. 3, 4. "there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne; and the 15 smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God."

THINGS LAWFUL; and above all, the best things. 1 Kings iii. 11, 12. "because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life, neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies, but hast asked for 20 thyself understanding to discern judgment; behold, I have done according to thy words." Matt. vi. 33. "seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

25 UNDER THE GUIDANCE OF THE HOLY SPIRIT. Zech. xii. 10. "I will pour upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and of supplications." Rom. viii. 26, 27. "likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities, Est et oratio Dominica documentum potius quam formula precandi ab apostolis olim aut nunc ab ecclesiis verbatim recitanda: unde perspicitur quam nihil opus sint in ecclesia Liturgiæ; cum auctores adiutoresque precumstrarum divinos, non humanos habeamus.

REVERENTER. Reverentia autem complectitur cum internum
10 animi affectum tum vocem et corporis gestum.

Internus affectus est, 1. ut unumquodque bene sive bono fini petamus: Iacob. iv. 3. petitis et non accipitis, eo quod male petatis, ut in voluptates vestras insumatis. 2. ut animo puro et resipiscente: hinc illi, 2 Sam. xxii. 42. circumspectant, sed non est qui servet, ad Iehovam, sed non exaudit eos:

for we know not what we should pray for as we ought." Eph. vi. 18. "praying always . . . in the Spirit." Jude 20. "praying in the Holy Ghost"; that is, quickening and calling into action, as much as possible, the gift of the Holy Ghost 5 within us.

The Lord's Prayer was intended rather as a model of supplication, than as a form to be repeated verbatim by the apostles, or by Christian churches at the present day. Hence the superfluosness of set forms of worship; seeing that, with 10 Christ for our master, and the Holy Spirit for our assistant in prayer, we can have no need of any human aid in either respect.

REVERENTLY. Reverence comprehends, first, the internal affection of the mind, and secondly, the voice and outward 15 deportment of the body.

Under the former is included, first, that we ask every thing aright, that is to say, to a right end. James iv. 3. "ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts." Secondly, that our supplications 20 proceed from a pure and penitent heart. Hence 2 Sam. xxii. 42. "they looked, but there was none to save; even unto Jehovah, but he answered them not." Psal. lxvi. 18. "if I regard iniquity in my heart, Jehovah will not hear me." Isa. i. 16-18. "wash you, make you clean . . . come now, and 25 let us reason together—" Ezek. viii. 18. "though they cry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them." xx. 30, 31. "are ye polluted, after the manner of your fathers? . . . and shall I be inquired of by you?" John ix. 31. "God heareth not sinners." Thirdly, that we pray in a spirit of kindness and forgiveness towards our brethren. Matt. v. 24. "leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother—" vi. 12. "forgive us our debts, 5 as we forgive our debtors." See also xviii. 23. the parable of the two debtors. 1 Tim. ii. 8. "I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting." Fourthly, that we seek the Lord early. Prov. i. 24-28. "because I have called, and ye refused . . . they 10 shall call upon me, but I will not answer." Psal. xxxii. 6. "for this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found." Isa. lv. 6. "seek ye Jehovah, while he may be found." Fifthly, that we pray with all humility. Luke xviii. 9, &c. "standing afar off . . . saying, 15 God be merciful to me a sinner." Sixthly, that we pray earnestly; see the parable of the man who came to borrow bread of his friend, Luke xi. 5. and of the unjust judge, xviii. 2, &c. Lastly, that we persevere in prayer. Col. iv. 2. "continue in prayer."

20 It is not necessary that our prayers should be always audible; the silent supplication of the mind, whispers, even groans and inarticulate exclamations in private prayer, are available. Exod. xiv. 15. "Jehovah said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me?" though he was saying nothing with his lips, 25 and only praying inwardly. 1 Sam. i. 13. "now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard." Thus, too, our devotions will be less conspicuous; according to the command, Matt. vi. 6.

Sed precamur nunc soli, nunc cum aliis. Et solus quidem Christus et seorsim fere legitur orasse; sive præsens discipulis, sive absentibus. Orandi etiam præcepta quæ dedit, Matt. vi. privatim duntaxat orantibus dedisse, perspicuum
 5 est. Cum autem discipulos orare docuit, id solis faciendumne esset an cum aliis, nihil præcepit. Discipuli quidem coniunctim solebant sæpe Deum precari; idque vel singulis, eodem licet in loco, quacunque de re inter ipsos convenerat, preces apud se suas concipientibus, Matt. xviii. 19. vel uno aliquo
 10 pro cæteris verba faciente: utrovis autem modo, nunc hoc illo oratum fuisse olim videtur. Act. ii. 42. in fractione panis et orationibus. Et iv. 24. concorditer sustulerunt vocem ad Deum, dixeruntque. et xii. 12. ubi erant non pauci congregati et orantes. et xvi. 13. ad flumen ubi solebat esse oratio.
 15 et xx. 36. positis genibus, oravit cum illis omnibus. et xxi. 5. in littore oravimus. I Cor. xiv. 15, 16. orabo etiam intelligentia—. Quomodo dicturus est Amen ad tuam gratiarum actionem?

In precibus itaque publicis lingua ignota non est utendum, 20 I Cor. xiv. 15, 16. ut supra. Consensus enim ibi sit oportet: Matt. xviii. 19. si duo ex vobis consenserint in terra, de omni re quam petierint—.

Prayer may be offered either alone, or in company. Christ appears seldom to have prayed in conjunction with his disciples, or even in their presence, but either wholly alone, or at some distance from them. It is moreover evident that the 5 precepts, Matt. vi. have reference to private prayer alone. When however he inculcated on his disciples the duty of prayer in general, he gave no specific direction whether they should pray alone, or with others. It is certain that they were in the frequent practice of praying in assemblies; sometimes
10 individually, each framing within himself his own particular petition relative to some subject on which they had agreed in common, Matt. xviii. 19. sometimes by the mouth of one chosen from their number, who spoke in the name of the rest; both which modes of prayer appear to have been used indis-
15 criminate by the primitive Christians. Acts ii. 42. "in breaking of bread and in prayers." iv. 24. "they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said—." xii. 12. "where many were gathered together praying." xvi. 13. "by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made." xx. 36. "he kneeled
20 down and prayed with them all." xxi. 5. "we kneeled down on the shore and prayed." 1 Cor. xiv. 15, 16. "I will pray with the understanding . . . how shall he . . . say Amen at thy giving of thanks?"

Hence the impropriety of offering up public prayer in an 25 unknown tongue, 1 Cor. xiv. 15, 16. as above; inasmuch as in public prayer consent is necessary. Matt. xviii. 19. "if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them."

Tautologia etiam et futilitas tam in privatis quam in publicis precibus est vitanda: Matt. vi. 7. Eccles. v. 2. ne acceleres ore tuo, et animus tuus ne festinet proferre quicquam coram ipso Deo: nam Deus ipse in cœlis est, tu autem super 5 terram; idcirco sunt verba tua pauca.

Verborum tamen repetitio ex vehementi commotione animi profecta, pro futili habenda non est: Marc. xiv. 39. et cum rursus abiisset, oravit, eundem sermonem locutus.

Gestus corporis inter precandum etiam sub lege liberior
 10 fuit. 2 Sam. vii. 18. ingressus rex David, sedit coram Iehova, ac dixit. et xii. 16. pernoctavit, et cubavit humi. Psal. xcv. 6. venite, incurvemus nos et procumbamus, flectamus genua coram Iehova. et cxlix. 5. cantent in cubilibus suis. 1 Reg. viii. 22. stetit Solomon. et v. 54. surgens ab inflexione sua
 15 in genua. cum 2 Chron. vi. 12, 13. et xx. 5. stans Iehosaphat. et v. 13. stabant Iudæi. Dan. vi. 11. ipse procumbens in genua sua, orabat— Luc. xviii. 13. publicanus procul stans.

Ad gestum corporis habitus quoque est referendus: de quo Paulus 1 Cor. xi. 4. omnis vir orans aut prophetans operto
 20 capite, dedecorat caput suum: omnis vero mulier orans aut prophetans non operto capite, dedecorat caput suum— Quid ita? quia capitis opertio subiectionis signum erat eo tempore cum foeminis tum viris: viri igitur aperto capite tum orabant

Both in private and in public prayer, vain repetitions and empty words are to be avoided. Matt. vi. 7. Eccles. v. 2. "be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter anything before God, for God is in heaven, and thou
5 upon earth, therefore let thy words be few." Such repetitions, however, as proceed from vehement emotion of mind, are not to be accounted vain. Mark xiv. 39. "again he went away and prayed, and spake the same words."

No particular posture of the body in prayer was enjoined,
10 even under the law. 2 Sam. vii. 18. "then went king David in, and sat before Jehovah, and he said—" xii. 16. "he lay all night upon the earth." Psal. xcv. 6. "O come, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before Jehovah our maker." cxlix. 5. "let them sing aloud upon their beds." 1 Kings viii.
15 22. "Solomon stood before the altar of Jehovah." v. 54. "he arose from kneeling on his knees." See also 2 Chron. vi. 12, 13. xx. 5. "Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah—" v. 13. "all Judah stood before Jehovah." Dan. vi. 10. "he kneeled upon his knees and prayed." Luke xviii.
20 13. "the publican standing afar off."

Connected with the posture of the body, is the deportment to be observed in prayer. On this subject St. Paul says, 1 Cor. xi. 4. "every man praying or prophesying having his head covered, dishonoreth his head; but every woman that pray-25 eth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoreth her head." Why was this? Because at that time covering the head was, with both sexes alike, a token of subjection; on which account it was usual for men to pray or prophesy with

- 15 Ad locum orandi quod attinet, omnis est idoneus: 1 Tim. ii. 8. volo viros precari in omni loco. In privatis etiam precibus ubi occultius esse possumus: Matt. vi. 6. introito in conclave tuum. et xiv. 23. ascendit in montem seorsim ad orandum. In publico enim privatim orare, hypocriticum est:
- 20 Matt. vi. 5. amant in synagogis, et in angulis platearum stantes orare, ut appareant hominibus. In sacrario tamen et templo Hierosolymis privatas concipere preces olim licebat: exemplo Hannæ, Davidis, aliorumque, ut supra. Tempus orandi nul-

their heads uncovered. Now, on the contrary, since the covering the head has become a token of authority, and the uncovering it of submission, it is the custom with most churches, especially those of Europe, in compliance not so much with 5 the letter as with the spirit of the law, which is always to be preferred, to worship God uncovered, as being the mark of reverence prescribed by modern custom; but to prophesy covered, in token of the authority with which the speaker is invested; and likewise to listen to his instructions covered, as the
10 deportment most emblematic, according to modern ideas, of our freedom and maturity as sons of God. On the other hand, it will be easily inferred from hence that in countries where the cold is intense, as Livonia or Russia, or where custom will not allow the head to be uncovered without great impropriety, 15 as in Asia or Africa, it is allowable to pray covered; as has been shown by Cappellus in a learned note on this passage, and by other commentators.

With regard to the place of prayer, all are equally suitable.
1 Tim. ii. 8. "I will therefore that men pray every where."
20 For private prayer, a retired place is most proper. Matt. vi. 6. "enter into thy closet." xiv. 23. "he went up into a mountain apart to pray." To offer private prayer in public is hypocritical. Matt. vi. 5. "they love to pray standing in the synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen 25 of men." It was lawful however to offer private prayer in the sanctuary, and afterwards in the temple at Jerusalem, as in the instances of Hannah, David, and others, quoted above. Neither is there any time at which prayer may not be properly

"there is a sin unto death; I do not say that he shall pray for it."

We are even commanded to call down curses publicly on the enemies of God and the church; as also on false brethren,
 5 and on such as are guilty of any grievous offence against God, or even against ourselves. The same may be lawfully done in private prayer, after the example of some of the holiest of men. Gen. ix. 25. "cursed be Canaan." Deut. xxvii. 13-26. "these shall stand upon mount Ebal to curse—" Judges v. 23. "curse
 10 ye Meroz, said the angel of Jehovah." Psal. v. 10. "destroy thou them, O God." cix. 6, &c. "set thou a wicked man over him, and let Satan stand at his right hand." cxl. 10. "let burning coals fall upon them." Similar imprecations occur in many other Psalms. 2 Kings ii. 24. "he cursed them in the 15 name of Jehovah." Jer. xviii. 19, &c. "deliver up their children to the famine . . . for they have digged a pit to take me—" Neh. iv. 4, &c. "give them for a prey in the land of captivity." vi. 14. "think thou upon Tobiah and Sanballat according to these their works." xiii. 25. "I contended with 20 them, and cursed them." Acts viii. 20. "thy money perish with thee." Gal. v. 12. "I would they were even cut off that trouble you." 2 Tim. iv. 14. "the Lord reward him according to his works."

It is expressly promised that supplications offered in a spirit 25 of faith and obedience shall be heard. Psal. cxlv. 18. "Jehovah is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth." Isa. lix. 1, 2. "neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear; but . . . your sins have hid his face from 5 me," &c. x. 12. "from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand . . . thy words were heard." John ix. 31. "if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth."

Hence our knowledge of God's will, or of his providence
 10 in the government of the world, ought not to render us less earnest in deprecating evil and desiring good, but the contrary. Exod. xxxii. 10. "now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them, and I will make of thee a great nation: and Moses be-
 15 sought Jehovah his God, and said—" 1 Chron. xvii. 25, 26. "thou, O my God, hast told thy servant that thou wilt build him an house; therefore thy servant hath found in his heart to pray before thee." John xvii. 1. "Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son." v. 5. "O Father, glorify thou me."

20 It frequently happens, however, that believers are not heard in all that they ask for themselves or others; namely, when they seek what is contrary to their own good, or to the glory of God. Deut. iii. 25, 26. "I pray thee, let me go over and see . . . but Jehovah said unto me, Let it suffice thee, speak
 25 no more unto me of this matter." 1 Sam. xv. 11. "it grieved Samuel, and he cried unto Jehovah all night." 2 Sam. xii. 16-18. "David besought God for the child—" 1 Kings xix. 4. "he requested for himself that he might die." Ezek. xiv.

The prayers even of unbelievers sometimes prevail with God, to the obtaining of bodily comforts or worldly advantages; for he is kind to all, and "maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good," Matt. v. 45. Hence he occasionally 10 grants the requests even of devils. Job i. 11, 12. "put forth thy hand now . . . and Jehovah said unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power." See also ii. 5, 6. Matt. viii. 31, 32. "the devils besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the herd of swine; and he said unto 15 them, Go." See also Mark v. 10-13.

Sometimes he complies with our prayers in anger; as when the Israelites asked flesh, Num. xi. 18, &c. "ye shall eat flesh, for ye have wept in the ears of Jehovah, saying," &c. "ye shall eat . . . until it come out at your nostrils." See also Psal.
20 lxxviii. 30. So likewise when they asked a king, Hos. xiii. 11.

Among errors under the head of prayer may be classed rash imprecations, whereby we invoke God or the devil to destroy any particular person or thing: Rom. xii. 14. "bless and curse not"; an intemperance to which even the pious are 25 occasionally liable; Job iii. 2, 3. "let the day perish wherein I was born—." Jer. xx. 14. "cursed be the day wherein I was born." Undeserved curses, however, are of no force, and therefore not to be dreaded. Gen. xii. 3. "I will curse him

- 5 Prayer is assisted by fasting and vows. Matt. ix. 15. "the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast."

A religious fast is that whereby a man abstains, not so much from eating and drinking, as from sin, that he may be enabled to devote himself more closely to prayer, for the obtaining some good, or deprecating some evil. Isa. lviii. 5, 6. "is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and 10 an acceptable day unto Jehovah? is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burthens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?" Joel ii. 12, 13. "turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and mourning;
15 and rend your heart, and not your garments—" Jonah iii. 6-9. "word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him . . . saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock taste anything . . . but let them cry mightily unto God; yea, let them turn every 25 one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands." Zech. vii. 5. "when ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh month, did ye at all fast unto me, even unto me?"

Ieiunium religiosum privatum est aut publicum.

Religious fasts are either private or public.

A private fast is one imposed by an individual on himself or his family, for private reasons. 2 Sam. xii. 16. "David besought God for the child; and David fasted, and went in, and 5 lay all night upon the earth." Psal. xxxv. 13. "as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth; I humbled my soul with fasting." Neh. i. 4. "it came to pass when I heard these words that I sat down and wept, and mourned certain days, and fasted, and prayed before the God
10 of heaven." Dan. ix. 3. "I set my face unto the Lord God to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting and sackcloth and ashes." x. 2, 3. "in those days I Daniel was mourning full three weeks; I ate no pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, neither did I anoint myself at all." Luke 15 ii. 37. "she served God with fastings and prayers night and day." 1 Cor. vii. 5. "except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer." To this head belongs the precept, Matt. vi. 16-18. "when ye fast, be not 20 as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance; for they disfigure their faces that they may appear unto men to fast: verily I say unto you, They have their reward: but thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; that thou appear not unto men to fast."

A public fast is that which is proclaimed by the church or 25 civil power for public reasons. Lev. xvi. 29. "this shall be a statute for ever unto you, that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all—" 1 Sam. vii. 6. "they fasted on that day, and

 5 before our God, to seek of him—" Esther iv. 3, 15, 16. "there was great mourning among the Jews, and fasting, and weeping, and wailing, and many lay in sackcloth and ashes . . . then Esther bade them return Mordecai this answer; Go, gather together all the Jews that are present in Shushan,
 10 and fast ye for me, and neither eat nor drink three days, night nor day; I also and my maidens will fast likewise." ix. 31, 32. "to confirm those days of Purim in their time appointed . . . the matters of the fastings and their cry"; to which allusion is made Zech. vii. 5. viii. 19. Joel ii. 15, 16. "blow the trumpet
 15 in Zion, sanctify a fast." Acts xiii. 2, 3. "as they ministered to the Lord, and fasted—" xiv. 23. "when they had prayed with fastings, they commended them to the Lord."

To fasting were anciently added various inflictions for the mortification of the body, conformably to the customs of those 20 nations. Compare Ezra ix. 3. Jonah iii. 6. and the passages quoted above.

Even outward fasting sometimes averts the anger of God for a season. 1 Kings xxvii. 29. "because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring the evil in his days."

25 There is also a fasting which works miracles. Matt. xvii. 21. "this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting."

A vow is a promise respecting some lawful matter, solemnly made to God, sometimes with the sanction of an oath, vel etiam gratitudinem si id quod petimus impetramus. Gen. xxviii. 20, &c. vovit Iacob dicendo—. 1 Sam. i. 11. vovitque votum, dicendo—. Psal. cxix. 106. iuravi, et præstabo illud: me servaturum iura iustitiæ tuæ. Neh. x. 30. incuntes ex-

Cavendum tamen est nequis vovendo interdicat vel sibi vel aliis earum rerum usu quarum usu Deus interdici nos noluit, and by which we testify our readiness and hearty resolution to serve God, or the gratitude with which we shall receive the fulfilment of our prayers. Gen. xxviii. 20. "Jacob vowed a vow, saying—" 1 Sam. i. 11. "she vowed a vow, and 5 said—" Psal. cxix. 106. "I have sworn, and I will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments." Neh. x. 29. "they entered into a curse and into an oath to walk in God's law."

Vows are general or special.

- 10 General vows relate to things which God has commanded; and are either public or private.

A public vow is one which is vowed by the whole church; and is usually called in Scripture a covenant. Josh. xxiv. 22, 23. "ye are witnesses against yourselves, that you have chosen 15 you Jehovah to serve him; and they said, We are witnesses." 2 Chron. xv. 12-14. "they entered into a covenant to seek Jehovah God of their fathers . . . and they swore unto Jehovah." Ezra x. 5. "he made the chief priests, the Levites, and all Israel to swear that they should do according to this 20 word."

A private vow is one which is vowed by an individual; as for instance the baptismal vow.

Special vows relate to things lawful, but not expressly commanded; and are undertaken for special reasons. Acts xviii.
25 18. "having shorn his head in Cenchrea; for he had a vow." xxi. 23. "we have four men which have a vow on them."

We must be careful, however, not to interdict ourselves or others from those things which God intended for our use, as meat or drink; except in cases where the exercise of our liberty may be a stumbling-block to any of the brethren. Matt. xv. 17, 18. "do not ye yet understand that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?" Mark vii. 15, 16. "there is nothing from without a man that entering into him can defile him," &c. The reason is given v. 19. "because it entereth not into his heart, but into his belly," &c. Rom. xiv. 14. "I am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean of itself." v. 17. "for the kingdom of God is not meat and drink—" 1 Cor. vi. 13. "meats for the belly, and the belly for meats; but God shall destroy both it and them." viii. 8. "meat commendeth us not to God; for neither if we eat, are we the better, neither if we eat not, are we the worse." Col. ii. 20, &c. "if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world, why as though living in the world are ye subject to ordinances? touch not, taste not, handle not; which all are to perish with the using—" 1 Tim. iv. 3, 4. "forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth; for every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused." Heb. xiii. 9. "not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein." Acts x. 13. "rise, Peter, kill and eat." v. 15. "what God hath cleansed, that call not thou common." The same rule applies to marriage: Matt. xix. 11. "all men cannot receive this saying, save them to whom it is given." 1 Cor. vii. 9. "but if they cannot contain, let them marry." v. 26. "I suppose therefore that this is good for 20 cum theologorum recepta regula sit, mirum quam non me-mores ipsi suæ doctrinæprehenduntur, cum speciale votum baptismi ab infantibus poscunt.

Votum speciale cuivis homini, modo is vovendi ius habeat, liberum est: nuncupatum autem revocare non est integrum, 25 sed omnino est solvendum. Deut. xxiii. 21. si voveris votum

the present distress." v. 36, 37. "if any man think that he becometh himself uncomely towards his virgin," &c. 1 Tim. iv. 3. "forbidding to marry"; and to other subjects of a similar nature. 1 Tim. iv. 8. "bodily exercise profiteth little; but 5 godliness is profitable unto all things."

Vows of voluntary poverty are also to be accounted superstitious: Prov. xxx. 8. "give me neither poverty nor riches"; inasmuch as poverty is enumerated among the greatest evils: Deut. xxviii. 48. "in hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, 10 and in want of all things." Acts xx. 35. "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Eph. iv. 28. "rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth."

No one can make a special vow who is not his own master,
15 and exempt from subjection to any other authority; as a son or a daughter to a parent, a wife to her husband, a male or female servant to their lord. See Num. vi. and xxx. 13. "every vow, and every binding oath to afflict the soul, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void."
20 Neither can a general or special vow be made by one who has not yet arrived at the full use of his judgment. Considering how generally this rule is received among divines, it is strange that they should so far forget their own doctrine, as to require the special vow of baptism from infants.

25 Any one, who is in these respects qualified, may bind himself by a special vow; when once made, however, he is not at liberty to recall it, but must fulfil it at all hazards. Deut. xxiii. 20. "when thou shalt vow a vow unto Jehovah thy God, thou sceret illud Iehova Deus tuus abs te, et esset in te peccatum. et Num. xxx. 2. vir quum voverit votum Iehovæ—, ne profanato verbum suum: secundum omne verbum quod prodiderit ex ore suo facito. Eccles. v. 4, 5. quum nuncupaveris votum

 5 Deo, ne differto persolvere illud: nam non oblectatur stolidis: id quod voveris persolve. Melius ut non voveas, quam ut voveas ac non persolvas.

Votum tamen impium non magis est solvendum quam iusiurandum iniustum: Matt. xv. 5. vos dicitis, Quicumque
 10 dixerit patri aut matri, donum est quocunque a me iuvari posses, insons erit; et nequaquam honoraverit patrem suum aut matrem suam. Id enim Deo voverat quod alendis parentibus impendere debuerat: aut ergo votum non erat solvendum aut parentes non alendi: alendos esse parentes instat
 15 Christus, votum impium non solvendum.

Opponitur voto sacrilegium; cum quis aut vota ab se facta non persolvit, aut res Deo devotas ac dedicatas compilat. Ios. vii. 11. acceperunt de anathemate, et furati sunt, et mentiti sunt. Prov. xx. 25. tendicula est homini deglutire sacrum, et 20 post vota requirere. Mal. iii. 8, &c. an spoliet homo Deum, quod vos spoliastis me? Et dicitis qua in re spoliamus te? decimis et oblatione. Maledictione estis maledicti, eo quod vos me spoliastis, gens ipsa tota—. et C[ap]. i. 8. quum affertis animal cæcum ad sacrificandum—.

shalt not slack to pay it; for Jehovah thy God will surely require it of thee, and it would be sin in thee." Num. xxx. 2. "if a man vow a vow unto Jehovah . . . he shall not break his word, he shall do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth." Eccles. v. 4, 5. "when thou vowest a vow unto God, defer not to pay it; for he hath no pleasure in fools: pay that which thou hast vowed: better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay."

An impious vow, however, is not binding, any more than an unjust oath. Matt. xv. 5. "ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; and honor not his father or his mother, he shall be free." Here that which ought to have been applied to the support of the parents, had been vowed as a gift to God; so that either the vow could not be fulfilled, or the support of the parents must be withdrawn. Christ therefore decides that the parents are to be supported, and that the impious vow is of no force.

The opposite of a vow is sacrilege; which consists in the non-performance of a vow, or in the appropriation to private uses of things dedicated to God. Josh. vii. 11. "they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also." Prov. xx. 25. "it is a snare to the man who devoureth that which is holy, and after vows to make enquiry." Mal. iii. 8, &c. "will a man rob God? yet ye have robbed me: but ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? in tithes and offerings: ye are cursed with a curse, for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation." i. 8. "if ye offer the blind for sacrifice, is it not evil?"

Thus far of prayer and its auxiliaries.

Thanksgiving consists in returning thanks with gladness for the divine benefits. Job i. 21. "Jehovah gave, and Jehovah hath taken away; blessed be the name of Jehovah." Eph. 5 v. 20. "giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Addresses to God, and particularly thanksgiving, are frequently accompanied by singing, and hymns in honor of the divine name. Mark xiv. 26. "when they had sung an 10 hymn—" Eph. v. 19, 20. "speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always." Col. iii. 16. "teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." James v. 13. "is any merry? let him 15 sing psalms."

CHAPTER V.

OF OATHS AND THE LOT.

ANOTHER species of Invocation consists in OATHS, and in the CASTING OF THE LOT.

AN OATH is that whereby we call God to WITNESS THE TRUTH OF WHAT WE SAY, WITH A CURSE UPON 20 OURSELVES, EITHER IMPLIED OR EXPRESSED, SHOULD IT PROVE FALSE. Ruth i. 17. "Jehovah do so to me and more also." See also 1 Kings ii. 23, 24. 2 Cor. i. 23. "I call God for a record upon my soul." See also Philipp. i. 8.

The lawfulness of oaths is evident from the express commandment, as well as example of God. Deut. vi. 13. "thou shalt fear Jehovah thy God, and serve him, and shalt swear by his name." See also x. 20. Isa. lxv. 16. "he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth." Jer. xii. 16.

5 "if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name." Gen. xxii. 16. "by myself have I sworn, saith Jehovah." Exod. vi. 8. "concerning the which I did swear to give it." Deut. xxxii. 40. "I lift up my hand to heaven and say, I live for ever." Psal. xcv. 11. "unto whom I swear
10 in my wrath—." cx. 4. "Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent." Heb. vi. 13. "because he could swear by no greater, he sware by himself."

Agreeable to this is the practice of angels and holy men. Dan. xii. 7. "he held up his right hand and his left hand unto 15 heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever." Rev. x. 5, 6. "the angel sware by him that liveth for ever and ever." Gen. xiv. 22, 23. "I have lifted up mine hand unto Jehovah . . . that I will not take a thread," &c. xxxi. 53. "Jacob sware by the fear of his father Isaac"; that is, by God.

20 It is only in important matters, however, that recourse should be had to the solemnity of an oath. Exod. xx. 7. "thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain." Heb. vi. 16. "men verily swear by the greater, and an oath for confirmation is to them the end of all strife."

25 An oath involving a promise is to be observed, even contrary to our interest, provided the promise itself be not unlawful. Josh. ix. 19. "we have sworn unto them by Jehovah God of Israel; now therefore we may not touch them."

non possumus tangere eos. Iudic. xxi. 7. quid facturi sumus istis—? nos enim iuramento obstrinximus per Iehovam, ut non daremus illis—? Psal. xv. 4. iuratus in damnum suum non tamen mutat.

- 5 At oritur hic quæstio, an iusiurandum sive de silentio sive de pretio redemptionis latroni datum servandum sit. Respondent nonnulli, promissione de pretio teneri hominem, de silentio non item: ut qui prius sit et arctius magistratui obstrictus, ut latronem, siquem cognovisset, deferret, quam la-
10 troni potuit obstringi ut reticeret: proinde re ad magistratum delata, iuramentum illud ab invito expressum auctoritate publica iurisiurandi prioris dissolvi, et firmiori vinculo infirmius cedere. Verum hoc si licitum est, cur non alterum quoque iuramentum de sese redimendo pari ratione solvitur? cum
15 etiam arctissimo boni viri officio devinctus unusquisque sit, ne sua pecunia latrones alat: id enim cum sit indignum, nemo re indigna, uti eam vel iuratus præstare debeat, tenetur: quod et ipsa vox iurisiurandi a iure ducta, significare videtur. Unde si latronem ita consideremus, ut cum quo nulla neque reli-
20 gionis, neque iuris civilis, neque privati officii ratio in ipso saltem latrocinio, intercedere queat, cum latrone pactionem ullam inire legitime non possumus. Quicquid igitur huius-

Judges xxi. 7. "how shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have sworn by Jehovah that we will not give them of our daughters to wives?" Psal. xv. 4. "he that swear-eth to his own hurt, and changeth not."

- 5 In connection with this subject, it has been made matter of discussion whether an oath sworn to a robber for the observance of secrecy, or for the payment of a stipulated ransom, is binding. Some answer, that the oath only which relates to ransom is to be observed, not that which relates to 10 secrecy; inasmuch as every man is bound by a prior obligation to the civil magistrate to denounce any known robber, and that this obligation is of more force than the subsequent one of secrecy can possibly be. They conclude, therefore, that it is the duty of such person to give information to the magis-
15 trate, and to consider his compulsory oath as annulled by his prior engagement, the weaker obligation yielding to the stronger. If however this be just, why does it not apply equally to the oath respecting ransom? seeing that it is the positive duty of every good man not to support robbers with 20 his substance, and that no one can be compelled to do a dishonorable action, even though bound by oath to its performance. This seems to be implied in the word iusiurandum itself, which is derived from ius. Considering the robber, therefore, as one with whom, at least while in the act of robbery, we can 25 be under no engagement either of religious obligation, or civil right, or private duty, it is clear that no agreement can be lawfully entered into with one thus circumstanced. If then under the influence of compulsion we have sworn to modi per vim iuravimus, semel tantum peccavimus; si male iuratum religione commoti præstemus, non tam fidem liberamus, quæ danda non erat, aut honorem Deo habemus, quam peccatum duplicamus, et vinculo iniquitatis arctius nos obstringimus: itaque si non præstemus, non id utique peccatum censeri debet, quod fallentem aut opprimentem fallimus, et rei non præstandæ renuntiamus. Quocirca si quis erit ad iusiurandum huiusmodi a latrone adactus, prospiciendum videtur potius quo pacto vitæ possit consuli, quam quo pacto fides 10 aut religio ab latrone extorta debeat servari.

Opponitur iuramento, superstitiosa iuramenti improbatio. Illo enim Christi præcepto, Matt. v. 33, &c. ne iurate omnino, neque per cælum—, neque eodem illo Iacob. v. 12. per Deum iurare non prohibemur (nam iuraturam per Deum verum 15 etiam sub evangelio omnem linguam, Isa. xlv. 22, 23. et lxxv. 16. prædicitur) sed per cælum, per terram, per Hierosolymam, per caput cuiusquam omnino non iurare: deinde non in re gravi, sed in communi et quotidiano sermone, ubi nihil fere tanti incidit quamobrem testis Deus appellandus sit:
 20 postremo voluit Christus in sermone et consuetudine suorum tantum veritatis ac fidei, tantum inde auctoritatis inesse, ut perform any such act as that above described, we have only committed a single offence; but if from religious scruples we observe an oath extorted under such circumstances, the sin is doubled, and instead of giving honor to God, and acquitting ourselves of an obligation which we ought never to have incurred, we are only entangling ourselves more deeply in the bonds of iniquity. Hence, if we fail to perform such agreement, it ought not to be imputed to us as a crime that we deceive one who is himself guilty of deceit or violence towards us, and refuse to ratify an unlawful compact. If, therefore, a man has allowed himself to be involved in such an engagement, the point for consideration is, not whether a bond of faith extorted by a robber ought in conscience to be observed, but how he may best effect his escape.

To the fulfilment of oaths is opposed, first, a superstitious denial of their legality. For the precept of Christ, Matt. v. 33, &c. "swear not at all, neither by heaven," &c. does not prohibit us from swearing by the name of God, any more than the passage James v. 12. inasmuch as it was foretold that even under the gospel "every tongue should swear by the God of truth," Isa. xlv. 22, 23. and lxxv. 16. We are only commanded not to swear by heaven or by earth, or by Jerusalem, or by the head of any individual. Besides, the prohibition does not apply to serious subjects, but to our daily conversation, in which nothing can occur of such importance as to be worthy the attestation of God. Lastly, Christ's desire was that the conversation and manners of his disciples should bear such a stamp of truth and good faith, that their simple corum inter se potissimum, simplex asseveratio iurisiurandi pondus merito haberet.

Opponitur secundo periurium; cum quis fallendi proximi studio, aut falsum prudens sciensque iurat, aut sine proposito
 5 servandi, rem licitam iureiurando promittit, aut promissam non præstat. Lev. xix. 12. ne iurate per nomen meum ad fallaciam aliquam; sic profanaveris nomen Dei tui. In hoc crimen Petrus quoque est lapsus, Matt. xxvi. 72, 74.

Proximi mentionem fecimus superioris quæstionis causa.
 10 Latroni enim aut sicario ad quos neque pacis neque ulla belli iura in ipso facinore pertinent, omnino quidem iurasse, peccatum fuerit; iuratum præstando non prius peccatum tollitur, sed alterum potius adiungitur; vel saltem non præstando, nihil sceleris committitur. Pro forma tamen iurisiurandi
 15 magis vel minus solenni, variisque causis intercedentibus, fortasse aliter statuendum erit. Exemplo sint tres reges, Hosea, Hezechia et Zedechia: 2 Reg. xvii. 4. invenit rex Assyriæ in Hosea conspirationem—: quare coercuit eum rex Assyriæ et vincivit eum in carcerem: 2 Reg. xviii. 7. aderat Iehova
 20 Hezechia; quocunque prodibat, secundabatur; rebellavitque in regem Assyriæ, ut non serviret ei. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13. contra etiam in regem Nebuchadnezzarem rebellavit Zedechia, qui adiuraverat ipsum per Deum—. Hoseæ criminosum videtur fuisse, non tam rebellasse quam Ægyptio regi Soö

asseveration should be considered as equivalent to the oath of others.

Secondly, perjury; which consists in swearing to what we know to be false with the view of deceiving our neighbor, or 5 in making lawful promise under the sanction of an oath, without intending to perform it, or at least without actually performing it. Lev. xix. 12. "ye shall not swear by my name falsely, neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God." Peter was betrayed into this offence, Matt. xxvi. 72, 74.

10 I have said "our neighbor," with reference to the question discussed above. For as it would be a crime to make a sworn promise to a robber or assassin, who in committing the act has forfeited his title to the rights of social life, so to observe the oath would not be to repair the original offence, but to 15 incur a second; at any rate, there can be nothing wrong in refusing to ratify the promise. Cases however may occur in which a contrary decision will be necessary, owing to the degree of solemnity in the form of the oath, or to other accompanying circumstances. An instance of this occurs in the three
 20 kings, Hoshea, Hezekiah, and Zedekiah. 2 Kings xvii. 4. "the king of Assyria found conspiracy in Hoshea . . . therefore the king of Assyria shut him up, and bound him in prison." xviii. 7. "Jehovah was with Hezekiah, and he prospered whithersoever he went forth, and he rebelled against the king 25 of Assyria, and served him not." 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13. "Zedekiah also rebelled against king Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God." The fault of Hoshea seems to have been not so much his rebellion, as his reliance on So king of diffusus hosti est. Zedechiæ rursus crimini, primum, quod cum ab hoste defecisset, ad Deum se non convertit: deinde quod contra speciale Dei mandatum; versu eodem xiii. et Ier. xxvii. 6, &c. itaque ego trado omnes regiones istas in 5 manum Nebuchadnezzaris—: quamquam latronis atque hostis ratio dissimilis est; cum hoc ius belli saltem servandum; cum illo neque belli neque pacis ius ullum est quod servetur.

Opponitur 3. frequens deicratio: Lev. v. 4, 5, 6. quum quispiam iuraverit, effutendo labiis suis, se male aut bene facturum, secundum omnia quæ effutire solet homo iuramento,
 10 et abditum fuerit ab eo, deinde cognoverit se reum esse unius ex istis, tum erit, quia reus est unius ex istis, ut id confiteatur in quo peccavit; et adducet reatum suum Iehovæ propter peccatum suum quo peccavit. Et iuramentum temerarium: 1 15 Sam. xiv. 40. etiam illud fuerit in Ionathano filio meo—. et v. 45. ita faciat mihi Deus, et ita pergat; nam omnino moriturus es, Ionathan.

4. iuramentum iniustum: quod vel de re non licita, vel personæ non licitæ datur: de re non licita fuit illud Davidis,
 20 1 Sam. xxv. 22. de excindenda Nabalis domo; ubi et exemplo docuit, rescindi melius istiusmodi iuramenta quam servari, v. 33, 34. Qua in re peccavit Herodes, cum iuramenti

Egypt. In Hezekiah it was considered meritorious and praiseworthy that he trusted in the Lord, rather than in his enemy. To Zedekiah, on the contrary, it was objected, first, that his defection from the enemy was not accompanied by a return
 5 to the protection of God, and secondly, that he acted in opposition to God's special command, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13, and Jer. xxvii. 6. "now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar." There is, however, this difference between a robber and a national enemy, that with the one the 10 laws of war are to be observed, whereas the other is excluded from all rights, whether of war or of social life.

Thirdly, common swearing. Lev. v. 4, 5. "if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be 15 hid from him, when he knoweth of it then he shall be guilty in one of these: and it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing." To this may be added rash swearing. 1 Sam. xiv. 39. "though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely 20 die." v. 44. "God do so and more also, for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan."

Fourthly, unlawful oaths; that is to say, oaths of which the purport is unlawful, or which are exacted from us by one to whom they cannot be lawfully taken. Of the former 25 kind was the oath of David respecting the destruction of the house of Nabal, 1 Sam. xxv. 22. from which example we may also learn that the breach of such oaths is better than the performance, v. 33, 34. a rule disregarded by Herod, when he causa Ioannem obtruncavit. Personæ non licitæ est illud Davidis Semei datum 2 Sam. xix. 24. iuravit ei rex. Itaque tametsi ipse quod iuraverat servavit a filio tamen id servari noluit; 1 Reg. ii. 8, 9. maledixerat mihi maledictione acerrima—: iuravi ei—: nunc autem cum sontem ne absolvito, cum vir sapiens sis, sed cognosce quid sis facturus eo—. Filius itaque captata occasione fecit, non ut iusiurandum non servando violaret, sed ut Semeum ipsum iurisiurandi violati reum, morte bis merita puniret; 1 Reg. ii. v. 36, 37. cum v. 10 42, &c.

5. iuramentum idololatricum; cum per aliud præter Deum quis iurat; quod prohibetur, Matt. v. 33, &c. et Iacob v. 12.

Iuramento proxima est gravis asseveratio; cuiusmodi est illa Gen. xlii. 15, 16. ut vivit Pharaos. et 1 Sam. i. 26. ut vivit anima tua mi Domine: id est, quam vere tu vivis, teque ego vivere cupio: et illa Christi, amen amen dico vobis. et illa Pauli, 1 Cor. xv. 31. per gloriationem vestram: tametsi ὃ iurandi particula est.

Huc pertinet adiuratio, ut vulgo loquuntur, id est, iurandi, aut asseverationis gravissimæ adactio, quæ fit sub Dei nomine imperando vel obsecrando quenquam, ut de eo quod quæritur quantum in se est veritatem dicat. Sic Iehosua cap. vii. 19. Hacanem adiurat; fili mi, tribue nunc gloriam Iehovæ Deo Israelis, et ede ei confessionem. Gen. xxiv. 3. ut iure- beheaded John for his oath's sake. Of the latter David's oath to Shimei is an instance, 2 Sam. xix. 23. "the king sware unto him." Hence, although David himself did not violate his oath, he forbade his son to observe it, 1 Kings ii. 8, 9. "he 5 cursed me with a grievous curse . . . and I sware to him . . . now therefore hold him not guiltless, for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him." Solomon therefore committed no breach of faith in punishing Shimei with death, of which the latter was doubly deserving,

 10 as being himself guilty of perjury: 1 Kings ii. 36, 37. compared with v. 42, &c.

Fifthly, an idolatrous oath; which consists in swearing, not by God, but by some other object, contrary to the prohibition Matt. v. 33. and James v. 12.

15 Next in solemnity to an oath is a grave asseveration, as Gen. xlii. 15, 16. "by the life of Pharaoh"; or 1 Sam. i. 26. "as thy soul liveth, my lord"; that is, as surely as thou livest, or as I wish that thou mayest live. Such also is the expression of Christ, "verily, verily, I say unto you"; and that of Paul, 1 20 Cor. xv. 31. "I protest by your rejoicing"; although strictly speaking, the particle νῦν has the force of an oath.

To the same head belongs what is commonly called adjuration; that is to say, the charging any one in the name of God, by oath or solemn asseveration, to speak the truth to the 25 best of his knowledge respecting the subject of inquiry. Thus Joshua adjured Achan, vii. 19. "my son, give, I pray thee, glory to Jehovah God of Israel, and make confession unto him." Gen. xxiv. 3. "I will make thee swear by Jehovah, iurando obstringam te per Iehovam Deum cœli—. Num. v. 21. adiurans sacerdos mulierem illam adiuratione dirarum—. Ezræ x. 5. adiuravit principes sacerdotum—. Nehem. xiii. 25. iureiurando obstrinxi eos per Deum, dicens, dira impre-

 5 camini vobis, si—. 1 Thess. v. 27. adiuro vos per Dominum, ut recitetur—. Etiam fidelissimos et charissimos adiurare non est importunum: Gen. xlvii. 29. pone nunc manum tuam sub femore meo—.

Adiurationi parendum est in iis rebus quæ a religione aut
 10 æquitate non abhorrent exemplo Christi, Matt. xxvi. 63, 64. qui ad pontificis adiurationem, quamvis impii, diutius non conticuit; sed se esse Christum palam est professus.

Huic opponitur adiuratio magica et exorcismus dæmonum superstitiosus aut mercenarius. Act. xix. 13, &c. aggressi
 15 sunt quidam ex circumeuntibus Iudæis exorcistis—.

Hæc de iureiurando. SORS est qua AD DIVINUM NUMEN PROVOCAMUS IN REBUS DUBIIS ET CONTROVERSIS AUT EXPLICANDIS AUT CONSTITUENDIS. Lev. xvi. 8. imponet Aaron his duobus hircis sortes—. Ios. vii. 14, &c. erit ut tribus illa quam prehenderit
 20 Iehova, appropinquet—. 1 Sam. x. 20, &c. fecit Samuel ut accederent—; et deprehensa est tribus Beniaminis—. Prov. xvi. 33. in gremium coniicitur sors: a Iehova autem est tota ratio eius. et xviii. 18. contentiones submovet sors; et inter robustos dirimit. 1 Chron. xxvi. 13, 14. coniecerunt sortes

God of heaven." Num. v. 21. "then the priest shall charge the woman with an oath of cursing." Ezra x. 5. "then Ezra made the chief priests to swear," &c. Neh. xiii. 25. "I made them swear by God, saying, Ye shall not give your daughters unto 5 their sons," &c. 1 Thess. v. 27. "I charge you by the Lord that this epistle be read—" There is no impropriety in adjuring even our dearest and most faithful friends. Gen. xlvii. 29. "put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh."

Adjurations are to be complied with, in matters not contrary to religion or equity. Thus Christ, Matt. xxvi. 63, 64.
10 on the adjuration even of the impious high-priest Caiaphas, no longer kept silence, but confessed openly that he was the Christ.

Opposed to this are magical adjurations, and the superstitious or mercenary practice of exorcism. Acts xix. 13, &c. "certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them," &c.

Thus far of oaths. IN THE CASTING OF THE LOT WE APPEAL TO THE DEITY FOR THE EXPLANATION OF DOUBTS, AND THE 20 DECISION OF CONTROVERTED QUESTIONS. Lev. xvi. 8. "Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats." Josh. vii. 14. "it shall be, that the tribe which Jehovah taketh, shall come according to the families thereof." 1 Sam. x. 20. "when Samuel had caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was 25 taken." Prov. xvi. 33. "the lot is cast into the lap, but the whole disposing thereof is of Jehovah." xviii. 18. "the lot causeth contentions to cease, and parteth between the mighty." 1 Chron. xxvi. 13, 14. "they cast lots, as well the small as the xxii. 12, 20. ne ito cum illis:— Surge, abi cum iis.

Huic opponuntur sortitiones superstitiosæ, lusoriæ et fraudulentæ.

 15 et ANGELORUM VEL SANCTORUM INVOCATIO.

Illa est qua idolum cultus religiosi causa vel fabricatur, vel great." Neh. x. 34. "we cast the lots among the priests, the Levites, and the people." Luke i. 9. "according to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense." Acts i. 24, 26. "they prayed, and said, Thou Lord, which knowest

5 the hearts of all men, show whether of these two thou hast chosen . . . and the lot fell upon Matthias."

Against the use of the lot it has been urged, that on successive repetitions the result is not invariably the same, and that therefore it must be considered as a matter of chance.
10 This objection is of no force, inasmuch as the Deity, even in his direct verbal communications with the prophets of old, did not uniformly return the same answer, when tempted by importunate inquiries; as in the instance of Balaam, Num. xxii. 12, 20. "thou shalt not go with them . . . rise up and 15 go with them."

To this is opposed the casting of lots in jest, or with a superstitious or fraudulent purpose.

To the invocation or adoration of the Deity are opposed IDOLATRY, and INVOCATION OF ANGELS OR SAINTS.

20 IDOLATRY CONSISTS IN THE MAKING, WORSHIPPING, OR TRUSTING IN IDOLS, WHETHER CONSIDERED AS REPRESENTATIONS OF THE TRUE GOD, OR OF A FALSE ONE. Exod. xx. 4, 5. "thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in 25 the water under the earth; thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them." See also Lev. xxvi. 1. Deut. xvi. 21, 22. "thou shalt not plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of Jehovah . . . neither shalt thou set thee unto you in Horeb, out of the midst of the fire; lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female." It is indeed said, Exod. xxiv. 10. that Moses and the elders "saw the God of Israel, and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness"; and v. 11 "they saw God"; and v. 17. "the sight of the glory of Jehovah was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel"; but it is clear, 10 from the passage of Deuteronomy quoted above, that they saw the likeness of no living thing whatever. So Ezek. i. 27, 28. "I saw . . . from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward"; where no mention is made of his face. Judges xvii. 4. "the 15 founder made thereof a graven image and a molten image, and they were in the house of Micah"; compared with v. 13. "then said Micah, Now know I that Jehovah will do me good, seeing I have a Levite to my priest." 2 Kings xvii. 28. "then one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria, 20 came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should fear Jehovah." Isa. xl. 18. "to whom then will ye liken God, or what likeness will ye compare unto him?" xlv. 10. "who hath formed a god, or molten a graven image that is profitable for nothing?" xlv. 5, 6. "to whom will ye liken me, and 25 make me equal? . . . they hire a goldsmith, and he maketh it a god: they fall down, yea, they worship." Jer. ii. 11, &c. "hath a nation changed their gods which are yet no gods? but my people have changed their glory for that which doth progenies Dei quum sumus, non debemus existimare auro et argento aut lapidi, sculpturæ artificii et excogitationis hominum, numen esse simile. Rom. i. 23, 24. mutarunt gloriam incorruptibilis Dei in efformatam imaginem corruptibilis hominis. hinc cultus veri Dei sub idolo non levius cultoribus imputatur, quam si dæmonia colerent, 2 Chron. xi. 15. statueretque sibi sacerdotes: pro excelsis, pro dæmonibus, et pro vitulis quos fecerat. Et tamen Ierobohamus non nisi Iehovæ sacerdotes putabat se statuisse, estque sacerdos iis qui non

Sive Falsi. Num. xxxiii. 52. perdetis omnes effigies eorum, et omnes imagines fusas eorum perdetis; omniaque excelsa eorum destructis—. Deut. vii. 5, 25. et xii. 2, 3. idem. Ex his præceptis pii magistratus idololatriam oppugnarunt: Moses; 15 Asa, 2 Chron. xiv. 3. et xv. 8, &c. Iehosaphat, Ezechias, Iosias; 2 Reg. xxiii. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 4, &c. Totus populus 2 Chron. xxiii. 17. et xxxi. 1.

not profit." Acts xvii. 29. "forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device." Rom. i. 23, 24. "they changed the glory of the 5 incorruptible God into an image made like unto corruptible man." Hence to worship the true God under the form of an idol was considered as criminal as to worship devils. 2 Chron. xi. 15. "he ordained him priests for the high places, and for the devils, and for the calves that he had made"; although 10 Jeroboam doubtless imagined that he was appointing priests to Jehovah, while he was in reality officiating in the rites of those which were not Gods.

OR OF A FALSE GOD. Num. xxxiii. 52. "then shall ye destroy all their pictures, and destroy all their molten images, and 15 quite pluck down all their high places." See also Deut. vii. 5, 25. xii. 2, 3. In pursuance of these injunctions, pious rulers in all ages have opposed idolatry; Moses, Asa, 2 Chron. xiv. 3. xv. 8, &c. Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, Josiah, 2 Kings xxiii. 1-25. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 4, &c. the whole people, 2 Chron.
 20 xxiii. 17. and xxxi. 1.

The cherubic images over the ark are not to be accounted idols; first, as being representations not of false gods, but of the ministering spirits of Jehovah, and consequently not objects of worship; secondly, as being made by the special com-25 mand of God himself.

Even the brazen serpent, the type of Christ, was commanded to be demolished, as soon as it became an object of religious worship, 2 Kings xviii. 4. "he brake in pieces the brazen serpent that Moses had made."

Male igitur idola vocantur a pontificiis libri laicorum: cuiusmodi enim libri aut pædagogi sint patet ex Psal. cxv. 5, &c. os est iis, sed non loquuntur—. Similes illis sunt qui faciunt illa, quisquis confidit in illis. Isa. xlv. 12, 13. non
 5 norunt, neque animadvertunt, illud obducere oculos ipsorum—. Ier. x. 8, 14, 15. magis obbrutescit omnis homo quam ut animadvertat, pudefacit omnis conflator sculptili: nam falsum est fusile eius, nec spiritus est in ullo eorum; vanitas sunt, opus aberrationis maximæ: quo tempore visi-
 10 tabuntur illi, peribunt ista. Abac. ii. 18, 19. quid profuerat sculptile, quod sculpsit illud formator illius, fusile et doctor falsi, quod confidat formator figmenti sui ipsi, faciendo idola muta? væ illi qui dicit ligno, expergiscere, evigila lapidi silenti: ipse docet, ecce ipsum: continetur quidem auro aut
 15 argento, sed omnino spiritus nullus est in medio eius.

Nec minus omnis ratio cum idolis idolorumque cultoribus damnatur. Act. xv. 20. ut abstineant a pollutionibus idolorum et scortatione. et v. 29. ab iis quæ sunt immolata simulachris— et scortatione, cum Apoc. ii. 14. qui docebat Bala-
 20 cum obicere offendiculum coram filiis Israelis, ut ederent ex iis quæ simulachris erant immolata, et ut scortentur. et v. 20. ut scortentur, et edant ex iis quæ simulachris immolantur. Ex quibus locis inter se collatis idololatriæ quædam species esse prohibita illic scortatio videtur. 1 Cor. viii. 10. si quis

Hence the Papists err in calling idols the laymen's books; their real nature whether considered as books or teachers, appears from Psal. cxv. 5, &c. "they have mouths, but they speak not . . . they that make them are like unto them, so
 5 is every one that trusteth in them." Isa. xlv. 18. "they have not known nor understood, for he hath shut their eyes—" Jer. x. 8, 14, 15. "every man is brutish in his knowledge; every founder is confounded by the graven image; for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them; they are
 10 vanity and the work of errors; in the time of their visitation they shall perish." Hab. ii. 18, 19. "what profiteth the graven image, that the graver thereof hath graven it; the molten image and a teacher of lies, that the maker of his work trusteth therein, to make dumb idols? woe unto him that 15 saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach; behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it."

We are commanded to abstain, not only from idolatrous worship itself, but from all things and persons connected 20 with it. Acts xv. 20. "that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication." v. 29. "from meats offered to idols . . . and from fornication." Rev. ii. 14. "who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication."
 25 v. 20. "to commit fornication, and to eat things sacrificed unto idols." From a comparison of these passages, it would appear that the fornication here prohibited was a part of idolatrous worship. 1 Cor. viii. 10. "if any man see thee

viderit te illa cognitione præditum in idoleio accumbere, nonne conscientia ipsius—? et x. 14. fugite ab idololatria. et v. 20, &c. dæmoniis immolant, et non Deo; nolim—. et 2 Ep. vi. 16. quæ consensus templo Dei cum simulachris?
 5 1 Thess. i. 9. relictis idolis, ut serviretis Deo vivo et vero. 1 Pet. iv. 3. incedendo in lasciviis,— et nefariis simulachrorum cultibus. 1 Ioan. v. 21. filioli, cavete ab idolis.

Quod hic quæri solet, utrum liceat religionem veram profitenti, idolorum cultui interesse quoad civile aliquod officium eo in loco obeundum necessario sit, id licere ut credamus
 10 facit exemplum Syri Naamanis 2 Reg. v. 17, 18, 19. cui hoc indultum est; neque hoc solum, sed ut peculiare etiam altare ex Israelitico cespite incircumcisis etiam utpote gentilis, sibi construeret. tutius tamen est, et cum Dei timore coniunctius

Angelorum et sanctorum invocatio prohibetur. Act. x. 26. surge; et ego ipse homo sum. et xiv. 15. viri, cur ista facitis? nos quoque sumus homines—. Col. ii. 18. nemo— in submissione animi, et religioso cultu angelorum. Apoc. xix. 10. procidi ut adorarem—. Vide ne feceris, conservus tuus sum—.

which hast knowledge sit at meat in the idol's temple, shall not the conscience of him that is weak be emboldened to eat," &c. x. 14. "flee from idolatry." v. 20, &c. "they sacrifice to devils, and not to God; and I would not that ye should have
5 fellowship with devils." 2 Cor. vi. 16. "what agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" 1 Thess. i. 9. "ye turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God." 1 Pet. iv. 3. "we walked in lasciviousness . . . and abominable idolatries." 1 John v. 21. "little children, keep yourselves
10 from idols."

A question here arises, whether it be lawful for a professor of the true religion to be present at idol-worship, in cases where his attendance is necessary for the discharge of some civil duty. The affirmative seems to be established by the 15 example of Naaman the Syrian, 2 Kings v. 17-19. who was permitted, as an additional mark of the divine approbation, to construct for himself a private altar of Israelitish earth, although, as a Gentile, he was uncircumcised. It is however safer and more consistent with the fear of God, to avoid, as 20 far as possible, duties of this kind, even of a civil nature, or to relinquish them altogether.

The invocation of saints and angels is forbidden. Acts x. 26. "stand up; I myself also am a man." xiv. 15. "sirs, why do ye these things? we also are men of like passions with 25 you—" Col. ii. 18. "let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility and worshipping of angels." Rev. xix. 10. "I fell at his feet to worship him; and he said unto me, See thou do it not, I am thy fellow-servant." See also

Subterfugia Papistarum, dum angelos et sanctos adorari posse contendunt; frivola sunt. Primum illud Gen. xlviii. 15, 16. angelus ille qui vindicat me ab omni malo, benedicat pueris istis. Hic dum Iosephi filiis benedicebat Iacob, quis 15 dicat invocasse, et non optasse potius uti Deus et Dei nomine angelus ille vindex pueris benedicat? nam quod respondent alii, increatum fuisse illum angelum, id verumne sit aut Iacobo in mentem unquam venerit, longe graviolem controversiam habet. Et illud, Iob. v. 1. ad quem e sanctis te convertes, de xxii. 8, 9. The reason is, that God is kinder and more favorable to us than any saint or angel either is, or has power to be. Psal. lxxiii. 25. "whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire besides thee." Isa. lxiii. 5 16. "doubtless thou art our father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not; thou, O Jehovah, art our father, our redeemer." Further, the charge of absurdity and folly which the prophets uniformly bring against the worshippers of idols, applies equally to those who wor-10 ship images of saints or angels. Isa. xlvi. 6, 7, &c. "they lavish gold out of the bag," &c. "and hire a goldsmith . . . they bear him upon the shoulder," &c. See also other passages.

The subterfuges by which the Papists defend the worship of saints and angels, are truly frivolous. They allege Gen.
 15 xlviii. 15, 16. "the angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads." Jacob here was not praying, but conferring his benediction on the sons of Joseph; no one therefore will contend that the words are to be taken as an invocation, but simply as an expression of hope that God, and the redeeming
 20 angel as his minister, should bless the lads. Some indeed contend that the angel here spoken of was not a created being; but whether this be true, or whether it entered into the mind of Jacob or not, involves another and a far more difficult controversy. They urge also Job v. 1. "to which of the saints wilt 25 thou turn?" which however may as properly be understood of living saints, as in James v. 14. "let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him"; where it is not recommended that the dead should be invoked, but that those who are living and present should be entreated to pray for us.

Opponitur etiam invocationi divinæ, Dei tentatio. Exod. xvii. 7. tentaverunt Iehovam dicendo, estne Iehova inter nos, an non? Psal. lxxviii. 18, 19. tentantes Deum fortem cum animo suo, ac obloquentes contra Deum, dixerunt, an possit Deus instruere mensam in hoc deserto. et v. 41. tentarunt Deum, et sanctum Israelis circumscripserunt. et xciv. 7. dicentes, non respicit Iah, neque animadvertit Deus Iacobi. et xcv. 7, 8, 9. ut in die tentationis in deserto, ubi tentaverunt me maiores vestri; probaverunt me; etiam experti sunt opus meum. Matt. iv. 7. non tentabis Dominum Deum tuum. 1 Cor. x. 22. an provocamus ad æmulationem Dominum? num valentiores eo sumus?

Opponitur etiam omnis dæmonum invocatio, quæque artes eo spectant. Exod. xxii. 18. præstigiaticem ne sinito vivere. 15 Lev. xix. 26. ne utimini coniectationibus neque præstigiis. et xx. 27. viri aut mulieres, si erit ex iis pytho aut hariolus, omnino morte afficiuntur; lapidibus obruuntur; cædis eorum causa est in iis. et v. 6. anima quæ converterit se ad pythones et ad hariolos, ut scortando sectetur eos, utique opponens 20 iratam faciem meam animæ illi, excindam illam et medio populi eius. et cap. xix. 31. ne vos convertite ad pythones et ad hariolos, ne consulitote polluendo vos iis. Num. xxiii. 27. nam non est incantatio contra Iacobum, neque divinatio contra Israelem. Deut. xviii. 10, 11, 12. ne invenitor in te 25 qui traducat filium suum aut filiam suam per ignem; utens divinationibus; planetarius aut coniectator, aut præstigator;

Another opposite to invocation is the tempting of God. Exod. xvii. 7. "they tempted Jehovah, saying, Is Jehovah among us or not?" Psal. lxxviii. 18, 19. "they tempted God
5 in their heart by asking meat for their lust; yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God furnish a table in the wilderness?" v. 41. "they tempted God, and limited the Holy One of Israel." xciv. 7. "yet they say, Jah shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it." xcv. 7-9. "as in the day of 10 temptation in the wilderness, when your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works." Matt. iv. 7. "thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." 1 Cor. x. 22. "do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?"

A third consists in the invocation of devils, and the practice
15 of magical arts. Exod. xxii. 18. "thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." Lev. xix. 26. "neither shall ye use enchantment, nor observe times." xx. 27. "a man also or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones, their blood shall be upon
20 them." v. 6. "the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a-whoring after him, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people." xix. 31. "neither seek after wizards, to be defiled with them." Num. xxiii. 23. "surely there is no
25 enchantment against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel." Deut. xviii. 10-12. "there shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer; for all that do these things are an abomination unto Jehovah.”

2 Kings xxi. 6. “he made his son pass through the fire, and
5 observed times, and used enchantments, and dealt with familiar spirits and wizards.” Isa. viii. 19. “when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? for the living to the dead?” xlv. 25. “I am
10 he that frustrateth the tokens of the liars, and maketh diviners mad.” xlvii. 13, 14. “let now the astrologers, the stargazers, the monthly prognosticators, stand up and save thee from these things, that shall come upon thee: behold, they shall be as stubble.” Jer. x. 2. “be not dismayed at the signs of heaven;
15 for the heathen are dismayed at them.” Mic. v. 12. “I will cut off witchcrafts out of thine hand, and thou shalt have no more soothsayers.”

All study of the heavenly bodies, however, is not unlawful or unprofitable; as appears from the journey of the wise men, 20 and still more from the star itself, divinely appointed to announce the birth of Christ, Matt. ii. 1, 2.

CHAPTER VI.

OF ZEAL.

WE HAVE treated of the first part of true religion, the invocation or adoration of the Deity; we proceed to the remaining part, THE SANCTIFICATION OF THE DIVINE NAME UNDER ALL CIRCUMSTANCES.

5 An ardent desire of hallowing the name of God, together with an indignation against whatever tends to the violation or contempt of religion, is called ZEAL. Psal. lxix. 8, 9. "I am become a stranger unto my brethren . . . for the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up." cxix. 139. "my zeal hath 10 consumed me, because mine enemies have forgotten thy words." Rom. xii. 11. "not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

Examples of this virtue are seen in Lot, 2 Pet. ii. 7, 8. in Moses, Exod. xxxii. 19. in Phinehas, Num. xxv. 7. in Elijah, 15 1 Kings xix. 10. in Jeremiah, Jer. xxiii. 9—11. "mine heart within me is broken . . . for the land is full of adulterers"; in Christ, Matt. xii. 30. John ii. 14, &c. in Stephen, Acts vii. 51, &c. in Paul and Barnabas, xiv. 14. and xvii. 16, 17.

Its opposites are, first, lukewarmness, as exemplified in 20 Eli, 1 Sam. ii. 29. and iii. 13. in the chief rulers of the Jews, John xii. 43. in the Laodiceans, Rev. iii. 15, 16.

Secondly, an ignorant and imprudent zeal. 2 Sam. xxi. 1, 3. "because he slew the Gibeonites . . . Saul sought to slay them in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah."

Iudæ. Rom. x. 2. testor de ipsis, eos zelum Dei habere, sed non secundum scientiam.

Et præfervidus. Ionæ iv. 1, 2, 3. Luc. ix. 54. vis dicamus, ut ignis—.

- 5 Et hypocriticus aut iactabundus: in Iehu, 2 Reg. x. 16. vide zelum meum.

Sanctificatur Dei nomen cum verbis tum factis. Verbis, cum non nisi reverentiæ causa Deum nominamus; et verum illius cultum, quoties opus est, aperte profitemur.

- 10 Sancta et religiosa Dei nominatio sive mentio docetur, Exod. xx. 7. ne assumito nomen Iehovæ Dei tui in vanum.

- Huic opponitur impia sive probrosa de Deo locutio: quæ vulgo βλασφημία ex Græco vertitur; ut et פְּדִיפָּה cum radice פָּדַי, et קִלְקַל cum radice קָלַל ex Hebræo. Talis fuit filii illius Israelidis; de quo Lev. xxiv. 11. &c. execratus est, sive, expresse nominavit nomen illud (Iehovæ scilicet) et maledixit, sive, impie locutus est. et v. 14. educite execratorem. Et Rabsacis cæterorumque Assyriorum, 2 Reg. xix. 6. propter verba quibus pueri regis Assyriæ maledixerunt mihi. Et Scribarum, 20 Marc. iii. 22. dicebant, certe habet Beelzebulem—. cum v. 29. quicumque impie locutus erit in spiritum sanctum—; dixerant enim Scribæ, patrem in Christo agentem esse Beelze-

Rom. x. 2. "I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge."

Thirdly, a too fiery zeal. Jonah iv. 1-3. Luke ix. 54. "wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven?"

- 5 Fourthly, an hypocritical and boastful zeal, as that of Jehu, 2 Kings x. 16. "come with me, and see my zeal for Jehovah."

The name of God is to be hallowed in word as well as in deed. To hallow it in word, is never to name it but with a 10 religious purpose, and to make an open profession of the true faith, whenever it is necessary.

The holy or reverential mention of God is inculcated Exod. xx. 7. "thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain."

- 15 To this is opposed an impious or reproachful mention of God, or, as it is commonly called, blasphemy, from the Greek βλασφημία, as in the Hebrew בְּרִיָּה with the root בָּרַח, and הִרְגֵּהוּ with the root הָרַג. This was the crime of the Israelitish woman's son, Lev. xxiv. 11. who "blasphemed" or "ex-
20 pressly named the name of Jehovah, and cursed" or "spake impiously." v. 14. "bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp." Such also was that of Rabshakeh and the other Assyrians, 2 Kings xix. 6. "be not afraid of the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of 25 Assyria have blasphemed me"; of the scribes, Mark iii. 22. "they said, He hath Beelzebub," compared with v. 29. "he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost—," for the scribes had said that the deeds of the Father working in Christ

- 5 1 Tim. i. 13. “who was before a blasphemer and a persecutor”; of Hymenæus and Alexander, v. 19, 20. “that they may learn not to blaspheme,” inasmuch as “having put away a good conscience concerning faith, they had made shipwreck”; of those profane persons mentioned in James ii. 7.

- 15 Considering, however, that all the Greek writers, sacred as well as profane, use the word “blasphemy” in a general sense, as implying any kind of reproach against any person whatever, which is also the received usage of the corresponding word in Hebrew, Isa. xliii. 28. “I have given Israel to re-
- 20 proaches.” li. 7. “neither be ye afraid of their revilings”; Ezek. v. 15. “so it shall be a reproach and a taunt,” that is, to the Jews; Zeph. ii. 8. “the revilings of the children of Ammon, whereby they have reproached my people”; in all which passages the same word is used, being that which we
- 25 translate blasphemy: so also Matt. xv. 19. “false witness, blasphemies.” Compare Mark vii. 22. 1 Tim. vi. 1. “that the name of God and his doctrine be not blasphemed.” Compare Tit. ii. 5. 2 Pet. ii. 10. “they are not afraid to

5 beant, incommode fecisse reor atque temere qui exoticam vocem blasphemiam in sermonem Latinum introduxerunt, et significationem communem ad maledicta duntaxat in Deum restrinxerunt, restrictam rursus ita laxarunt, ut dum populus interim quid sit blasphemia non intelligit, ipsi fere omnem

speak evil of dignities," in the Greek βλασφημοῦντες; v. 11. "whereas angels . . . bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord," in the Greek βλάσφημον κρίσιν: considering, I say, that such is the meaning invariably attached
 5 to the Greek word even by the sacred writers, I am of opinion that those who introduced this foreign term into the Latin language, did wrong in restricting it to the single sense of speaking evil of God; especially since, at the same time that they narrowed its meaning in one direction, they
 10 expanded it in another to an almost indefinite vagueness; insomuch that, presuming on the general ignorance as to the true signification of the word, they have not scrupled to brand as blasphemy every opinion differing from their own on the subject of God or religion. This is to resem-
 15 ble the scribes, Matt. ix. 3. who when Christ had simply said, v. 2. "thy sins be forgiven thee," immediately "said within themselves, This man blasphemeth"; whereas blasphemy, as is evident from the foregoing examples, consists solely in uttering reproaches against God openly, and with a 20 high hand, Num. xv. 30. Matt. xv. 19. "out of the heart proceed blasphemies," and that whether against God or men. This sin therefore is not to be imputed to those, who in sincerity of heart, and with no contentious purpose, promulgate or defend their conscientious persuasions respecting God, 25 founded, as appears to them, on the Scriptures. If on the other hand blasphemy is interpreted according to the Hebrew sense, it will comprehend too much; for in this sense every obstinate sinner will be a blasphemer, and as such, according volunt, capite damnandus: Num. xv. 30. anima illa quæ commiserit elata manu, Iehovam afficit iste probro, vel, blasphemat; omnino excindetur anima illa e medio populi sui. Ezech. xx. 27, 28. adhuc hac re probro affecerunt, vulgo,

Huic opponitur consecratio superstitiosa; quæ multa est apud Pontificios.

Ea præcipitur Matt. x. 32, 33. quisquis agnoscet me coram hominibus, agnoscam et ego eum coram patre meo, to those who regard the law of Moses on this subject as still in force, punishable with death. Num. xv. 30. "the soul that doeth ought presumptuously . . . the same reproacheth" or "blasphemeth Jehovah; and that soul shall be cut off

 5 from among his people." Ezek. xx. 27, 28. "yet in this your fathers have blasphemed me, in that they have committed a trespass against me; for when I had brought them into the land . . . then they saw every high hill," &c.

A second opposite is irreverent or jesting mention of the 10 name of God, or of religious subjects.

The most solemn mention of the name of God consists in dedicating to his glory whatever is intended for the use of man. 1 Cor. x. 31. "whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." 1 Tim. iv. 4, 5. "nothing 15 is to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer." Acts xxvii. 35. "he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all." 1 Cor. vii. 14. "the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife."

20 Opposed to this are superstitious consecrations, such as are common among the Papists.

Thus far of the solemn and reverential mention of the name of God. We are next to consider the duty of making a consistent, and, when necessary, an open profession of his true 25 worship. This is enjoined Matt. x. 32, 33. "whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven; but whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which Professio hæc, si mortem, aut vincula, aut cruciatum, aut probrum affert, MARTYRIUM dicitur. Matt. v. 11. beati eritis, cum vos convitiis affecerint, et persecuti fuerint, et mentientes dixerint quidvis mali adversus vos propter me. Philipp. 20 i. 20. cum omni dicendi libertate, ut semper, ita nunc quoque magnificabitur Christus in corpore meo, seu per vitam, seu per mortem. et v. 29. quia gratis datum est vobis in Christi negotio, non solum in eum credere, sed etiam pro eo pati. Heb. xi. 36, &c. alii rursus ludibria et flagella sunt experti, insuper et vincula et carcerem. 1 Pet. iii. 14. si quid patimini propter iustitiam, beati eritis.

10 witnesses; I give thee charge in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession, that thou keep this commandment." 2 Tim. i. 16. "he was not ashamed of my chain." ii. 12. "if we deny him, he also will deny us." 1 Pet.

15 iii. 15. "be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you." Heb. x. 35. "cast not away therefore your confidence."

This profession, when it leads to death, or imprisonment, or torments, or disgrace, is called MARTYRDOM. Matt. v. 11. "blessed 20 are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake." Philipp.

i. 20. "with all boldness, as always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death."

v. 29. "for unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only 25 to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake." Heb. xi.

36, &c. "others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea moreover of bonds and imprisonment—." 1 Pet. iii. 14.

"but and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye."

Evangelium fere martyrio propagatur. Philipp. i. 14. ut plerique ex fratribus in Domino, freti vinculis meis, amplius audeant sine metu sermonem loqui.

- Opponitur huic, religionis quam sequimur dissimulatio.
 5 Qualis erat Nicodemi; Ioan. iii. 2. hic venit ad eum nocte— et xii. 42. multi crediderunt; sed propter Phariseos non profitebantur, ne synagoga moverentur. Isa. lix. 4. nemo est qui clamet pro iustitia, et nemo qui disceptet pro fide.

Sic verbis sanctificatur Dei nomen: factis, cum facta pro-

It is generally through the means of martyrdom that the gospel is more extensively promulgated. Philipp. i. 14. "many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the word without fear."

5 Opposed to this is, first, the concealment of our religion. This was the fault of Nicodemus, John iii. 2. "the same came to Jesus by night." xii. 42. "nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him, but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the 10 synagogue." Isa. lix. 4. "none calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for truth."

Secondly, apostasy. 2 Chron. xxviii. 6. "he slew in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand in one day, which were all valiant men, because they had forsaken Jehovah God of their 15 fathers." John vi. 66. "from that time many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him." 1 Tim. iv. 1, &c. "in the latter times some shall depart from the faith," &c. Heb. vi. 4, &c. "it is impossible for those who were once enlightened . . . if they shall fall away, to renew them
20 again unto repentance." x. 29. "of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God."

Thirdly, an unseasonable profession. Matt. vii. 6. "give not that which is holy unto the dogs . . . lest they turn 25 again and rend you." xvi. 20. "then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ."

Such are the means by which the name of God is hallowed in word. It is hallowed in deed, when our actions correspond fessionem congruunt. Matt. v. 16. ita splendeat lux vestra coram hominibus, ut videant vestra bona opera—.

Opponitur huic, earum actionum intermissio, quæ professioni nostræ respondeant. Sic Moses et Aaron, præter
 5 solitum, Deum coram oculis populi non sanctificasse dicuntur, Num. xx. 12. Et David, vir alioqui sanctus, adulterii reus, male de Deo sentiendi atque etiam loquendi materiam gentibus præbuit, 2 Sam. xii. 14. Sic Iudæi, de quibus Paulus, Rom. ii. 24. propter vos nomen Dei infamatur inter gentes;
 10 sicut scriptum est; nempe Isa. lii. 5. Ezech. xxxvi. 20, &c. etiam cum venissent in gentes quo venerunt, similiter profanarunt nomen sanctitatis meæ, cum dicerent illæ de iis, populum Iehovæ ipsos esse, et e terra eius produisse—.

ET FESTIS.

with our religious profession. Matt. v. 16. "let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Opposed to this, is a neglect to act conformably to our profession. Thus Moses and Aaron are said, contrary to their usual custom, not to have sanctified God in the eyes of the people, Num. xx. 12. and David, a man otherwise holy, gave occasion to the Gentiles to think and speak ill of God, by reason of his adultery, 2 Sam. xii. 14. So also the Jews, of whom St. Paul writes, Rom. ii. 24. "the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written"; alluding to Isa. lii. 5. Ezek. xxxvi. 20. "when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of Jehovah, and are gone forth out of his land."

CHAPTER VII.

ON THE TIME FOR DIVINE WORSHIP; WHEREIN ARE CONSIDERED THE SABBATH, LORD'S DAY, AND FESTIVALS.

THUS far of the parts of divine worship. We are now to consider its circumstances.

The circumstances of worship are the same as of all things natural, place and time.

Public worship, previously to the law of Moses, was not confined to any definite place; under the law it took place

Dei: sub evangelio demum est ubicunque est commodum.
 Ioan. iv. 21, 23. neque in monte hoc, neque Hierosolymis.
Sed venit tempus, et nunc est, quum veri adoratores adora-bunt patrem spiritu ac veritate: id quod etiam prædixerat,

5 Mal. i. 11. in omni loco suffimentum—.

TEMPUS ordinarium cultus publici ante legem Mosaicam quodnam fuerit non constat.

Sub lege erat SABBATHUM, id est, septimus quisque dies; ab initio quidem mundi a Deo consecratus, Gen. ii. 2, 3. verum
 10 non ante mensem secundum exitus Israelitarum ex Ægypto, quantum nobis constare potest, ut superiore libro cap. x. iam dictum est, imperatus aut observari cœptus, Exod. xvi. 1, 23, 25, 29. idque severissimo interdicto; v. 23. quies sabbathum est Iehovæ cras: quod cocturi estis, coquite hodie; et
 15 quod elixaturi estis, elixate; quicquid autem abundat, deponite vobis asservandum usque in crastinum. et cap. xx. 8, &c. recordare diei sabbathi ut sanctifices illum—: recordare scilicet ex illo præcepto cap. xvi. supra citato; Vel est vox vehementius monentis. Et xxxi. 14. observabitis sabbathum, 20 quia res sancta est vobis: profanantium illud quisque omnino morti traditor—. et xxxiv. 21. in ipsa aratione et in messe cessato. et xxxv. 2, 3. sabbathum quietis est Iehovæ—: ne accenditote ignem in ullis habitationibus vestris die sabbathi. Lev. xxiii. 3. sex diebus fiet opus die vero septimo sabbathum

partly in the synagogues and partly in the temple; under the gospel any convenient place is proper. John iv. 21, 23. "ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father; but the hour cometh, and now is, when the true
 5 worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth"; as Malachi had also prophesied, i. 11. "in every place incense shall be offered unto my name."

With regard to the time of public worship, what this was before the law does not appear. Under the law it was the 10 Sabbath, that is, the seventh day, which was consecrated to God from the beginning of the world, Gen. ii. 2, 3. but which (as stated in Book I. Chap. x.) was not, so far as we can learn, observed, or commanded to be observed, till the second month of the departure of the Israelites from Egypt, Exod. xvi. 1, 15 23, 25, 29. when it was enforced with severe prohibitions: v. 23. "to-morrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto Jehovah; bake that which ye will bake to-day, and seethe that which ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning." xx. 8, &c. "remember the
 20 sabbath-day, to keep it holy"; that is, remember it according to the previous commandment in the sixteenth chapter, referred to above; or it may be an emphatic manner of admonition. xxxi. 14. "ye shall keep the sabbath-day therefore, for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be 25 put to death." xxxiv. 21. "in earing time and in harvest thou shalt rest." xxxv. 2, 3. "a sabbath of rest to Jehovah . . . ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations on the sabbath-day." Lev. xxiii. 3. "six days shall work be done, but cessationis, convocatio sancta est— Num. xv. 32, &c. invenerunt quendam colligentem ligna in die sabbathi— 2 Chron. xxxvi. 20, 21. et deportavit—, donec acquievisset terra sabbathis suis— Ier. xvii. 21, 22. ne portetis onera die sabbathi— Neh. x. 32. afferentibus merces—die sabbathi ad vendendum, nos non accepturos— et xiii. 15, &c. temporibus iisdem videns Iudæa calcantes torcularia—.

Israelitis autem sancitum est sabbathum multas ob causas ipsis fere peculiares in lege Mosaica sparsim scriptas.

- 10 Primum, ob memoriam creationis die septimo absolutæ, Exod. xx. 11. Et xxxi. 15, 17. observabunt itaque filii Israelis sabbathum ipsum, celebrando sabbathum per generationes suas, fœdere perpetuo. Quia sex diebus fecit Ichova cælum et terram, die autem septimo quievit et recreavit se. Hic
- 15 etiamsi causa celebrandi sabbathi ad omnes gentes æque pertinere videatur, celebratio tamen eius Israelitis præcipitur solis. Ut etiam in præcepto de reptilibus non comedendis, Lev. xi. 44. ut sanctificetis vos et sitis sancti, quia ego sanctus sum: ne ergo polluite vos ullo reptili. Et in præcepto de corpore non incidendo et similibus, Deut. xiv. 1. vos filii Dei

the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation." Num. xv. 32, &c. "they found a man that gathered sticks on the sabbath-day." 2 Chron. xxxvi. 20, 21. "them that had escaped from the sword he carried away to Babylon . . .
 5 until the land had enjoyed her sabbaths." Jer. xvii. 21, 22. "bear no burthen on the sabbath-day." Neh. x. 31. "if the people of the land bring ware or any victuals on the sabbath-day to sell, that we would not buy it of them—" xiii. 15, &c. "in those days saw I in Judah some treading wine presses
 10 on the sabbath."

The command to observe the Sabbath was given to the Israelites for a variety of reasons, mostly peculiar to themselves, and which are recorded in different parts of the Mosaic law. First, as a memorial of God's having completed the 15 work of creation on the seventh day. Exod. xx. 11. xxxi. 15-17. "wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant . . . for in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was 20 refreshed." Here although the reason given for the celebration of the Sabbath applies equally to all other nations, the Israelites alone are enjoined to observe it; as is also the case with the command to abstain from creeping things, Lev. xi. 44. "ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and ye shall be 25 holy, for I am holy; neither shall ye defile yourselves with any manner of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth"; with the law against disfiguring the body, and other similar commands, Deut. xiv. 1, &c. "ye are the children of God";

estis—: rationes enim istæ ad omnes etiam nunc fideles æque pertinent, ad quos præcepta ipsa non pertinent. Id quod animadvertit Amesius noster, l[ib]. 2. c. xiii. Med. Theologiæ: non est, inquit, catholicæ veritatis illa regula interpretandi
 5 scripturas, quæ tradi solet a quibusdam; officia illa omnia esse moralia et immutabilia, quæ rationes morales et immutabiles habent sibi annexas; nisi sic intelligatur, ut illa officia sequantur ex illis rationibus, nullo singulari Dei præcepto intercedente. Quod neque de præceptis illis et similibus, 10 neque de sabbatho affirmari potest.

Secundo, quia hoc signo distingui voluit Israelitas a cæteris gentibus. Exod. xxxi. 13, &c. nam signum est inter me et vos per generationes vestras, ad cognoscendum me Iehovam esse qui sanctifico vos: observabitis ergo sabbathum meum, 15 quia res sancta est vobis. Ezech. xx. 12. ut esset signo inter me et ipsos, ut sciretur me Iehovam sanctificare ipsos. et v. 20. idem.

Tertio, ut servis et iumentis intermissio aliqua laboris daretur. Exod. xxiii. 12. ut quiescat bos tuus et asinus tuus;
 20 et recreetur filius ancillæ tuæ et peregrinus. Deut. v. 12, 14. observa diem sabbathi—, ut quiescat servus tuus et ancilla tua—sicut tu. Ratio hæc locum non habet, nisi ubi servitia sunt, et duro admodum labore fatigantur. Hodie autem fere for the reasons on which these precepts are founded apply equally to believers in general, and to all ages, although the precepts themselves are no longer obligatory. This has been remarked by our countryman Ames. "That principle, according-

 5 cingly, of interpreting the Scriptures commonly given out by certain men, 'that all those duties [of formal worship] are moral and immutable which are bound up with moral and immutable reasons,' is to be regarded as a rule of universal truth only when it is understood to imply that those duties
 10 follow upon those reasons without the interposition of a special commandment of God." The Marrow of Divinity, Book II. Chapter 13. This however cannot be said either of the precepts above-mentioned, or of the Sabbath.

Secondly, because God was pleased by this distinguishing 15 mark to separate the Israelites from other nations. Exod. xxxi. 13, &c. "it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am Jehovah that doth sanctify you; ye shall keep the sabbath therefore, for it is holy unto you." Ezek. xx. 12. "to be a sign between me 20 and them, that they might know that I am Jehovah that sanctifieth them." See also v. 20.

Thirdly, that the slaves and cattle might enjoy a respite from labor. Exod. xxiii. 12. "that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thine handmaid and the stranger may be 25 refreshed." Deut. v. 12, 14. "keep the sabbath-day . . . that thy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest as well as thou." This reason applies only where servants are in a state of slavery, and subject to severe labor; the condition of conductitiis utimur famulis, quorum conditio longe tolerabilior, quam illa olim servorum venalium fuit.

Quarto, in memoriam liberationis eorum ex Ægypto. Deut. v. 15. et memineris te servum fuisse in terra Ægypti, Iehovam vero Deum tuum eduxisse te inde manu forti et brachio extento: idcirco præcipit tibi Iehova Deus tuus, ut observes diem ipsum sabbathi.

Quinto, ut esset umbra seu typus rerum futurarum. Col. ii. 16, 17. respectu festi aut novilunii aut sabbathorum; quæ sunt umbra rerum futurarum, at corpus est Christi. Quarum autem rerum futurarum umbra sint sabbatha docetur, Heb. iv. 9, 10. sabbatismi nempe sive quietis in cœlo sempiternæ, in quam omnes fideles ut Christum sequentes tandem introcant per obedientiam et fidem eniti iubentur.

Eas autem res agere quæ ad charitatem et misericordiam spectabant, vetitum non erat, Christo interprete. Marc. ii. 27. dixit iis, sabbatum propter hominem factum est, non homo propter sabbatum. et iii. 4. licet sabbatho bene facere, an male facere? hominem servare an interimere? Luc. xiii. 15, 16. nonne solvit bovem suum—? nonne oportuit a vinculo isto solvi die sabbathi? et xiv. 5. quis vestrum, si ipsius asinus—? Ioan. vii. 23. mihi indignamini quod totum hominem sanum fecerim sabbatho. Etiam grabbatum tollere, cap. v. 11. contra litteram, Ier. xvii. 21, 22. supra.

Fourthly, in remembrance of their liberation from Egypt. Deut. v. 15. "remember that thou wast a servant in the land
5 of Egypt, and that Jehovah thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm; therefore Jehovah thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath-day."

Fifthly, as a shadow or type of things to come. Col. ii. 16, 17. "in respect of an holy-day, or of the new moon, or of the 10 sabbath-days; which are a shadow of things to come: but the body is of Christ." Of what things to come the sabbaths are a shadow, we are taught Heb. iv. 9, 10. namely, of that sabbatical rest or eternal peace in heaven, of which all believers are commanded to strive to be partakers through faith and 15 obedience, following the example of Christ.

Works of charity and mercy were not forbidden on the Sabbath, upon the authority of Christ himself. Mark ii. 27. "the sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath." iii. 4. "is it lawful to do good on the sabbath-days, or 20 to do evil? to save life, or to kill?" Luke xiii. 15, 16. "doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox—? . . . ought not this woman to be loosed from this bond on the sabbath-day?" xiv. 5. "which of you shall have an ox or an ass fallen into a pit," &c. John vii. 23. "are ye angry at me
25 because I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath-day?" Even for a man to take up his bed, v. 11. although consonant to the spirit of the law, was contrary to its letter, Jer. xvii. 21, 22.

Cum itaque solis Israelitis datum sub lege fuisse sabbathum constet, idque ut hoc ipso signo a cæteris gentibus distinguerentur, sequitur, distinctione illa sublata, nos sub evangelio et universim a lege liberatos, ut superiore libro docuimus, et præsertim lege ista de sabbatho non teneri. Quod cum suo tum præcepto tum exemplo docuisse videretur Christus, gravem subiit Pharisæorum censuram: Ioan. ix. 16. homo iste non est a Deo; nam sabbathum non observat. Gal. iv. 9, 10. quomodo convertitis vos retrorsum ad infirma et egena elementa, quibus
 10 ad superiora regressi, servire vultis? dies observatis et menses et præstituta tempora et annos. Col. ii. 16, 17. nequis igitur vos damnet ob cibum vel potum, aut respectu festi aut novilunii aut sabbathorum. Quod si quis contendit, non hic sabbathum diei septimi, sed illa septennalia duntaxat abrogari,
 15 præterquam quod hic nulla exceptio est, contendat idem, non baptismum intelligi, Heb. vi. 2. quia baptismatum doctrina dicitur. constat etiam et sabbathum et sabbatha utroque numero de eodem die septimo dici. Exod. xxxi. 13, 14. Isa. lvi. 2, 4, 6. Qui autem his Pauli verbis festi aut novilunii
 20 aut sabbathorum sabbathum quarti præcepti contineri, aut significari negaverit, neget quoque his iisdem 2 Chron. ii. 4.

Since then the Sabbath was originally an ordinance of the Mosaic law, imposed on the Israelites alone, and that for the express purpose of distinguishing them from other nations, it follows that, if as was shown in the former book those who

5 live under the gospel are emancipated from the ordinances of the law in general, least of all can they be considered as bound by that of the Sabbath, the distinction being abolished which was the special cause of its institution. It was for asserting this in precept, and enforcing it by example, that Christ

10 incurred the heavy censure of the Pharisees, John ix. 16. "this man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath-day." Gal. iv. 9, 10. "how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage? ye observe days, and months, and times, and years."

15 Col. ii. 16, 17. "let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holy-day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath-days." If it be contended, that it is only the septennial, and not the seventh day sabbath which is said by St. Paul to be abrogated, I reply, first, that no exception is

20 here made; and, secondly, that it may as well be contended that baptism is not meant Heb. vi. 2. on account of the plural noun "baptisms." Besides, it is certain that the words "sabbath" and "sabbaths" are used indiscriminately of the seventh day; Exod. xxxi. 13, 14. Isa. lvi. 2, 4, 6. Whoever therefore et viii. 13. et xxxi. 3. verbis, unde ipsa ad Colossenses verba Pauli videntur desumpta, sabbathum quarti præcepti contineri.

25 denies that under the words of the apostle, "in respect of an holy-day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath-days," the Sabbath of the fourth commandment is comprehended, may as well deny that it is spoken of 2 Chron. ii. 4. or viii. 13.

Sublato sabbatho, nullam eius loco esse præ cæteris divino
 5 præcepto constitutam cultui numinis diem, ex eodem Paulo satis liquet. Rom. xiv. 5. alius quidem iudicat diem præ die, alius autem iudicat quemvis diem. unusquisque in animo suo plene persuasus sit. Cum enim locus publici cultus, ut supra dictum est, sub evangelio præscriptus utique sit nullus,
 10 cur tempus, altera circumstantia præscriberetur, reddi nulla ratio potest. certe nisi sabbatha quæcunque, nisi omnem diei præ die sanctionem divinam sublatam nunc esse docuisset Paulus, adiicere sequente versu non potuisset, Qui non observat diem, Domino non observat. Quomodo enim Domino
 15 non observat diem, si ullum iam vigeat mandatum Domini quo Diem sive sabbathi sive aliam quamlibet observare iubeatur?

Quo interim iure se tueantur, qui diem dominicam quasi divinitus cultui publico institutam, veluti alterum sabbathum, 20 celebrandam esse statuunt, videndum. Requievit, inquiunt, septimo die Deus. et merito quidem; cælum enim et terram ingens opus absolverat: si requiem idcirco eius imitandam sine præcepto adhuc dato contendunt, imitandum æque contendant, ut Prometheus olim, divinum eius opificium. At or xxxi. 3. from which passages the words of St. Paul seem to be taken.

The law of the Sabbath being thus repealed, that no particular day of worship has been appointed in its place, is 5 evident from the same apostle, Rom. xiv. 5. "one man esteemeth one day above another; another esteemeth every day alike: let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind." For since, as was observed above, no particular place is designated under the gospel for the public worship of God, there
 10 seems no reason why time, the other circumstance of worship, should be more defined. If Paul had not intended to intimate the abolition of all sabbaths whatever, and of all sanctification of one day above another, he would not have added in the following verse, "he that regardeth not the day, 15 to the Lord he doth not regard it." For how does he "not regard the day to the Lord," if there be any commandment still in force by which a particular day, whether the Sabbath or any other, is to be observed?

It remains to be seen on what they ground their opinion, 20 who maintain that the Lord's day is to be observed as set apart for public worship by divine institution, in the nature of a new sabbath. It is urged, first, that God rested on the seventh day. This is true; and with reason, inasmuch as he had finished a great work, the creation of heaven and earth: if then 25 we are bound to imitate him in his rest, without any command to that effect, and none has yet been produced, we are equally bound to imitate his work, according to the fable of Prometheus of old; for rest implies previous labor. They enim diem illum sanctificavit. Sibi quidem certe, (eo enim die quievit et recreavit se, Exod. xxxi. 17.) nobis non item, nisi et præceptum addidisset. præcepta enim nos, non exempla, ne Dei quidem, obligant. At observatum fuit sabbathum ante legem Mosaicam. cupidius id quidem, quam probabilius affirmant: sed hoc fuerit; quod ignotissimum est; sacrificia quoque et mundi atque immundi distinctio, aliaque eiusmodi eodem tempore observabantur, quæ in moralibus tamen ponenda non sunt.

- 10 At quarto postea decalogi præcepto sabbathum est sancitum. Sine dubio: dies nempe septimus. quid hoc ad diem primum? Tu mihi diem ex præcepto Dei scilicet imponas, diemque cum die sine præcepto eius commutes? nam audes hoc dicere, non septimum modo diem, quod Israelitis solis est datum, 15 sed ex septenis quemlibet saltem hoc præcepto consecrari oportere; atque hoc cunctis gentibus morale, quod aiunt, censendum esse.

Primum qua id defendant auctoritate, non video: sensum enim huiusmodi ullum ex huius præcepti verbis elicere, om- 20 nino impossibile est; cum ipsa ratio mandati, divina scilicet rejoin, that God hallowed that day. Doubtless he hallowed it, as touching himself, for "on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed," Exod. xxxi. 17. but not as touching us, unless he had added an express commandment to that effect; for it

 5 is by the precepts, not by the example, even of God himself, that we are bound. They affirm again, that the Sabbath was observed previously to the Mosaic law. This is asserted with more confidence than probability; even if it were so, however, a point as to which we are altogether ignorant, it is 10 equally certain, that sacrificial rites, and distinctions between things clean and unclean, and other similar observances, were in force during the same period, which nevertheless are not classed among moral duties.

They urge, however, that the celebration of the Sabbath
 15 was subsequently ordained by the fourth commandment. This is true, as regards the seventh day; but how does this apply to the first day? If, on the plea of a divine command, they impose upon us the observance of a particular day, how do they presume, without the authority of a divine com-
 20 mand, to substitute another day in its place? or in other words to pronounce, that not merely the seventh day, which was appointed for the observation of the Israelites alone, but any one of the seven may, even on the authority of the fourth commandment itself, be kept holy; and that this is to be ac-
 25 counted an article of moral duty among all nations.

In the first place, I do not see how this assertion can be established, for it is impossible to extort such a sense from the words of the commandment; seeing that the reason for requies a creatione mundi, transferri a die septimo ad diem primum non queat; nec alia substitui ratio, sive resurrectio Domini, sive alia quælibet ea sit, sine præcepto alio divino. Cum autem abrogatum sabbathum non uno ex loco intelli-

5 gamus, mutatum vel ipsum ex alio in alium diem, vel ipsius mutandi rationem expressam in scriptura nusquam, quicquid in eo mutando ecclesia consuevit, mandato non paruit divino, quod erat iam nullum, sed libertatem duntaxat testificata est suam: libertatem certe, aut insaniam. Etenim Dei præcep-

10 tum, sive abrogatum hoc esse aiunt sive negant, ulla ex parte immutare, periculosum æque et damnandum est: mutatio enim præcepti, vel non abrogatum abrogat, vel abrogatum quodammodo revocat. Deinde, quæ tandem septenarii numeri moralitas esse possit, ostendant; cur sabbathorum re-

15 ligione soluti, septenario teneamur; teneamur numero, cuius nulla vis est, nulla efficacia? Profecto, siquis adhuc sub evangelio sabbathismus nobis moralis reliquus est, spiritualis is est et perpetuus, in altera potius, quam in hac vita celebrandus: Heb. iv. 9, 10, 11. itaque reliquus est aliquis

which the command itself was originally given, namely, as a memorial of God's having rested from the creation of the world, cannot be transferred from the seventh day to the first; nor can any new motive be substituted in its place, 5 whether the resurrection of our Lord, or any other, without the sanction of a divine commandment. Since then it is evident from more than one passage of Scripture, that the original Sabbath is abrogated, and since we are nowhere told that it has been transferred from one day to another, nor is 10 any reason given why it should be so transferred, the church, when she sanctioned a change in this matter, evinced, not her obedience to God's command (inasmuch as the command existed no longer) but her own rightful liberty; for in any other view it can only be termed folly. To make any change 15 whatever in a commandment of God, whether we believe that commandment to be still in force or not, is equally dangerous, and equally reprehensible; inasmuch as in so doing we are either annulling what is not yet repealed, or re-enacting what is obsolete. It ought also to be shown what essential 20 principle of morality is involved in the number seven; and why, when released from the obligation of the Sabbath, we should still be bound to respect a particular number, possessing no inherent virtue or efficacy. The only moral sabbatical rest which remains for us under the gospel, is spiritual and 25 eternal, pertaining to another life rather than the present.
 Heb. iv. 9-11. "there remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God; for he that hath entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his; let us labor in idem incidat contumaciæ exemplum. Quod si iis duntaxat hoc præceptum est datum quos Deus e terra Ægypti domoque servorum eduxit, certe ad nos Christianos non pertinebit: sin ad nos pertinet, propterea quod spirituali Ægypto ac servitute

 5 educti sumus, id quod inculcant, tale profecto erit sabbatum, qualis esteductio, spirituale videlicet et evangelicum, non corporale et Mosaicum; spontaneum denique erit, non coactum, ne ex Ægypto in Ægyptum traducamur: cogi enim spiritus non potest. Detrahunt igitur cultui evangelico, et 10 præcepta Dei frustrantur potius quam stabiliunt, qui nunc septimo quoque die sancitum id volunt, quod esse debet sub evangelio quotidianum.

Quod autem cultum publicum in ecclesia hoc quarto præcepto in perpetuum aiunt stabiliri, cultum equidem publicum 15 agnosco etiam sub evangelio laudari ac præcipi; non ex hoc præcepto neque ex monte Sinai fidelibus imperari. Neque vero sum is qui existimem decalogum esse purum putum moralem, immo vero miror potius quo pacto illa opinio invaluerit; cum sit plane totius legis Mosaicæ summarium therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief." If then the commandment of the Sabbath was given to those alone whom God had "brought out of the land of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage,"

5 it is evidently inapplicable to us as Christians; or if, as is contended, it is applicable to us inasmuch as we have been brought out of the slavery of a spiritual Egypt, the Sabbath ought to be such as the deliverance, spiritual and evangelical, not bodily and legal; above all, it ought to be a voluntary, not

10 a constrained observance, lest we should be merely substituting one Egyptian bondage for another; for the spirit cannot be forced. To contend therefore that what, under the new dispensation, ought to be our daily employment, has been enjoined as the business of the Sabbath exclusively, is to dis-

15 parage the gospel worship, and to frustrate rather than enforce the commandments of God.

It is urged, however, that the church relies on the fourth commandment as its perpetual authority for the observance of public worship. That public worship is commended, and 20 inculcated as a voluntary duty, even under the gospel, I allow; but that it is a matter of compulsory enactment, binding on believers from the authority of this commandment, or of any Sinaistical precept whatever, I deny. With regard to the doctrine of those who consider the decalogue as a code of uni-

25 versal morality, I am at a loss to understand how such an opinion should ever have prevailed; these commandments being evidently nothing more than a summary of the whole Mosaic law, as the fourth in particular is of the whole cere-quoddam; et quarto maxime præcepto legis totius cæremonialis, unde nihil cultus evangelici in se potest continere.

Dies autem Dominica, semel duntaxat nominata, Apoc. i. 10. quænam dicta fuerit immo septima quæque fuerit, an
 5 solum anniversaria, quis pro certo affirmare ausit, cum eius neque institutio ulla, neque præcepta observatio, sicuti cœnæ Dominicæ, usquam in scripturis reperiatur? Si resurrectionis dies est, quid est obsecro, cur ea dies vel die natali vel mortis vel ascensionis magis Dominica sit, vel ea qua spiritus sanctus
 10 missus est die potior nobis aut solennior habeatur? Et ista hebdomatim; cæteræ ne quotannis quidem necessario, sed pro cuiusque arbitrato celebrentur?

Nec ex eo quod Christus illa die semel atque iterum apparuit (si post dies octo, Ioan. xx. 26. idem quod octavo post 15 die dicendum est) satis tuto ad divinam novæ diei institutionem argumentum ducitur: apparuit enim citra dubium et aliis diebus, Luc. xxiv. 36. et Ioan. xxi. 3, 4. Petrus, ab eo, inquit, piscatum; quod die sabbathi fas non erat: sequens igitur dies qua Christus mane orto apparuit, non potuit esse

Whether the festival of "the Lord's day," an expression which occurs only once in Scripture, Rev. i. 10. was weekly
 5 or annual, cannot be pronounced with certainty, inasmuch as there is not, as in the case of the Lord's Supper, any account of its institution, or command for its celebration, to be found in Scripture. If it was the day of his resurrection, why, we may ask, should this be considered as the Lord's day in any
 10 higher sense than that of his birth, or death, or ascension? why should it be held in higher consideration than the day of the descent of the Holy Spirit? and why should the celebration of the one recur weekly, whereas the commemoration of the others is not necessarily even annual, but remains 15 at the discretion of each believer?

Neither can the circumstance of Christ's having appeared twice to his disciples on this day, if indeed the words "after eight days," John xx. 26. are rightly interpreted the eighth day after, be safely adduced in proof of the divine institution
 20 of a new sabbath; inasmuch as there can be no doubt that he appeared on other days also, Luke xxiv. 36. and John xxi. 3, 4. "Peter saith unto them, I go a-fishing," which was not lawful on the Sabbath; so that the day following, on the morning of which Christ appeared, could not have been the 25 first day of the week. Even supposing, however, that it had been so, still the assigning this as a reason for the institution of a new sabbath is matter solely of human inference; since no commandment on this subject, nor any reason for such institution, is found in all Scripture.

Iam vero ut a præceptis quæ nulla sunt, ad exempla trans-eamus, tametsi quod præcepto sancitum est, solo exemplo non tollitur, ostendam quæ pro exemplis afferunt, exempla quoque revera non esse. Quod enim, Act. xx. 7. legitur, 5 discipulos Troade habitantes, die primo ad frangendum panem convenisse, quis illud singulis septimanis, an per oc-casionem libere factum; ad cœtum sacrum, an ad convictum fraternum; eo die præ cæteris an quotidie, ut cap. ii. 42. cum 46; apostolis iubentibus, an ad consuetudinem plebis, ut sæpe 10 alias, conniventibus congregasse se, pro re certa et indubitata affirmaverit?

Nam quod ex 1 Cor. xvi. 2. afferunt, id satis infirma ratione nititur: non enim ibi de die Dominica celebranda quicquam præscribit Paulus, sed monet ut primo quoque 15 septimanæ die (si hoc sibi vult per unam sabbathorum) aliquid pauperum usui seponat quisque apud se, domi nempe; de cœtu publico aut quicquam ibi erogandi illo die nulla mentione facta: hoc autem seponi primo die fortasse voluit, vel quod eleemosynæ nostræ velut Deo primitiæ ante omnia se-20 ponendæ sunt, vel quod dies iste primus rationibus familiæ

From commandments, of which we have proved the non-existence, we pass to examples; although no example can weaken the force of a contrary precept. We shall proceed, however, to prove, that what are adduced as examples are not
 5 such in reality. First then, with regard to Acts xx. 7. where it is related that the disciples dwelling at Troas "came together to break bread upon the first day of the week," who shall determine with certainty whether this was a periodical meeting, or only held occasionally, and of their own accord;
 10 whether it was a religious festival, or a fraternal meal; whether a special assembly convoked on that particular day, or a daily meeting like those recorded in chap. ii. 42. compared with v. 46; lastly, whether this meeting was held by order of the apostles, or whether it was merely permitted by them in 15 compliance with the popular custom, according to their frequent practice on other occasions?

The inference deduced from 1 Cor. xvi. 2. is equally unsatisfactory; for what the apostle is here enjoining, is not the celebration of the Lord's day, but that "on the first day of 20 the week" (if this be the true interpretation of κατὰ μίαν σαββάτων, per unam sabbathorum) each should "lay by him" (that is, at home) for the relief of the poor; no mention being made of any public assembly, or of any collection at such assembly, on that day. He was perhaps led to select 25 the first day of the week, from the idea that our alms ought to be set aside as a kind of first-fruits to God, previous to satisfying other demands; or because the first day of the week was most convenient for the arrangement of the family ac-

putandis commodissimus est visus. Quid si ad sacros cœtus convenisse eo die Corinthios concederemus? non magis tamen sequeretur, nos ex illo more Corinthiorum observare primum diem sine præcepto divino oportere, quam ex illo instituto
5 Philippiensium aut ipsius Pauli observare sabbathum. Act. xvi. 13. die sabbathi egressi sumus ex urbe ad flumen, ubi solebat esse oratio. et xvii. 2. Paulus, sicut consueverat, introivit ad eos, et per sabbatha tria disseruit cum iis ex scripturis. et xviii. 3, 4. habitavit apud eos, et operabatur. Dis-
10 serebat autem in synagoga omnibus sabbathis—: sex reliquis diebus, ut videtur, suo artificio domi operatus.

Qui ergo a nomine solo diei Dominicæ tota scriptura semel tantum reperto institutionem divinam diei sacri nusquam traditam quasi sabbathum novum introducere audebit, viderit 15 ne periculose nimis, et pessimo exemplo in scriptura interpretanda versetur.

20 cœtus sacros sponte ac libere habere possimus, rebusque divinis, quantum per charitatis officia licet, omissis terrenis, toti vacare: tempus autem hoc septimo quoque die et septi-

counts. Granting, however, that the Corinthians were accustomed to assemble on that day for religious purposes, it no more follows that we are bound to keep it holy in conformity with their practice, without a divine command to that effect, 5 than that we are bound to observe the Jewish sabbath in conformity with the practice of the Philippians, or of Paul himself, Acts xvi. 13. "on the sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made." xvii. 2. "Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three 10 sabbath-days reasoned with them out of the scripture." xviii. 3, 4. "he abode with them and wrought . . . and he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath"; following his own occupation at home, as we have reason to believe, during the six remaining days.

15 Those therefore, who on the authority of an expression occurring only once in Scripture, keep holy a sabbath-day, for the consecration of which no divine command can be alleged ought to consider the dangerous tendency of such an example, and the consequences with which it is likely to be 20 followed in the interpretation of Scripture.

Hence we arrive at the following conclusions: first, that under the gospel no one day is appointed for divine worship in preference to another, except such as the church may set apart of its own authority for the voluntary assembling of its mem- 25 bers, wherein, relinquishing all worldly affairs, we may dedicate ourselves wholly to religious services, so far as is consistent with the duties of charity; and, secondly, that this may conveniently take place once every seven days, and particularly

manæ potissimum primo non incommode recurrere solere; modo hic auctoritas ecclesiæ suadeat, non edicta magistratum compellant; modo ne hinc laqueus conscientis, velut divini præcepti ex decalogo petiti, nobis iniiciatur: quod ut
 5 caveamus sedulo nos monet Paulus; Col. ii. 16. nequis igitur vos damnet. Si enim ex decalogo tempus publici cultus petere sub evangelio debemus, longe profecto erit tutius septimum quemque diem ex præcepto Dei disertissimo, quam primum quemque ex nudis hominum coniecturis observare. Atque

on the first day of the week; provided always that it be observed in compliance with the authority of the church, and not in obedience to the edicts of the magistrate; and likewise that a snare be not laid for the conscience by the allegation of a
 5 divine commandment, borrowed from the decalogue; an error against which St. Paul diligently cautions us, Col. ii. 16. "Let no man therefore judge you," &c. For if we under the gospel are to regulate the time of our public worship by the prescriptions of the decalogue, it will surely be far safer to observe the 10 seventh day, according to the express commandment of God, than on the authority of mere human conjecture to adopt the first. I perceive also that several of the best divines as BUCER, CALVIN, PETER MARTYR, MUSCULUS, URSINUS, GOMARUS, and others, concur in the opinions above expressed.

"if any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain: pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

1 John iv. 20. "if a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

- 10 Inasmuch therefore as God is best served by internal worship, whereas man stands more in need of outward attention, the external service even of God is sometimes to be postponed to our duties towards men. Prov. xxi. 3. "to do justice and judgment is more acceptable to Jehovah than sacrifice." Jer. vii. 4, 5. "trust ye not in lying words, saying, The temple of Jehovah, the temple of Jehovah, the temple of Jehovah are these: for if ye thoroughly amend your ways and your doings—" Matt. xii. 1, &c. "Jesus went on the sabbath-day through the corn; and his disciples were an hungred—" 20 v. 7. "I will have mercy, and not sacrifice." xv. 5. "ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me, and honor not his father or his mother, he shall be free." See also Mark vii. 11, 12. and ii. 27. "the sabbath was made for man, and 25 not man for the sabbath."

The virtues connected with our duty towards man, are partly those which each individual owes to himself, and partly those which we owe to our neighbors. Lev. xix. 18.

"thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." See also Matt. xix. 19.

These virtues, like those relating to God, are either general or special.

- 5 The general virtues are LOVE and RIGHTEOUSNESS. In the first book I treated of love generally, and in its wider sense as identified with holiness; I now proceed to define it more particularly, with reference to its object, as follows. LOVE IS A GENERAL VIRTUE, INFUSED INTO BELIEVERS BY GOD THE FATHER
10 IN CHRIST THROUGH THE SPIRIT, AND COMPREHENDING THE WHOLE DUTY OF LOVE WHICH EACH INDIVIDUAL OWES TO HIMSELF AND HIS NEIGHBOR. It is nowhere more fully described than in the whole thirteenth chapter of the first epistle to the Corinthians, to which we shall have frequently to refer. Compare also 1 John iii. 18, 19. "my little children, let us not love
15 in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth: and hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him."

By God, &c. 1 John iii. 10. "in this the children of God are 20 manifest, and the children of the devil; whosoever doeth not righteousness . . . neither he that loveth not his brother." iv. 7. "love is of God, and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." Gal. v. 22. "the fruit of the Spirit is love."

- 25 INTO BELIEVERS. Gal. v. 6. "faith that worketh by love."

The opposite of this is uncharitableness; which renders all our other qualities and actions, however excellent in appearance, of no account. 1 Cor. xiii. 1, &c. "though I speak with

IUSTITIA est altera VIRTUS GENERALIS REGENITORUM; qua SUUM QUIS CUIQUE, ID EST, VEL SIBI VEL PROXIMO TRIBUTUIT AUT RESTITUIT.

- 5 Prov. xvi. 8. melius est parum cum iustitia, quam amplissimus proventus cum iniuria. Isa. lxi. 8. ego Iehova amo ius, odi rapinam coniunctam holocausto. Matt. vii. 12. quæcunque volueritis ut faciant vobis homines, ita et vos facite iis. Rom. xiii. 7. reddite omnibus quod debetis.

- 10 REGENITORUM. 1 Ioan. iii. 10. per hoc manifesti sunt filii Dei et filii diaboli; quisquis non dat operam iustitiæ, non est ex Deo.

Sæpe itaque iustitiæ nomine totius legis observatio significatur.

- 15 Huic opponitur iniustitia: quæ regno cælorum excludit. 1 Cor. vi 9. an ignoratis iniustos non esse Dei hæreditatem possessuros? Ier. xvii. 11. ut perdix colligit ova, sed non parit; ita comparans divitias sed iniuria; mediis diebus suis derelinquet eas, tandem erit stultus.

- 20 Et iustitia Pharisaica. Matt. v. 20. nisi abundaverit iustitia vestra plus quam illa scribarum et Phariseorum, vos nequaquam ingressuros in regnum cælorum.

Harum virtutum generalium utraque est, ut supra diximus, hominis et erga semetipsum et erga proximum suum.

the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or as a tinkling cymbal."

The other general virtue belonging to the regenerate is RIGHTEOUSNESS, whereby we render to each his due, whether to 5 ourselves, or to our neighbor. Prov. xvi. 8. "better is a little with righteousness, than great revenues without right." Isa. lxi. 8. "I Jehovah love judgment; I hate robbery for burnt-offering." Matt. vii. 12. "all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Rom.
 10 xiii. 7. "render therefore to all their dues."

Belonging to the regenerate. 1 John iii. 10. "in this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil; whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God." Hence under righteousness is frequently included the observance of 15 the whole law.

Opposed to this is, first, unrighteousness, which excludes from the kingdom of heaven. 1 Cor. vi. 9. "know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?" Jer. xvii. 11. "as the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth 20 them not, so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at his end shall be a fool."

Secondly, a pharisaical righteousness. Matt. v. 20. "except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of 25 the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Both these general virtues, as has been stated above, are exercised partly towards ourselves, and partly towards our neighbor.

- Charitas hominis erga semetipsum est qua quis secundum Deum diligit semetipsum, suumque sibi bonum et temporale et æternum quærit. Prov. xi. 17. beneficus est sibi ipsi vir benignus, turbat autem carnem suam crudelis. et xix. 8.
- 5 possidet animum, qui diligit semetipsum. Eph. v. 29. nullus unquam suam carnem odio habuit; immo enutrit ac fovet eam. Philipp. ii. 12. vestram salutem conficite. 1 Tim. v. 23. ne amplius aquam bibito; sed vino pauculo utere propter stomachum tuum et crebras tuas infirmitates.
- 10 Huic opponitur odium sui perversum. Eph. v. 29. ut supra. Quo in numero habendi sunt qui mortem sibi consciscunt: sepultura tamen honesta iis non prohibita, 2 Sam. xvii. 23. Immo quicumque studio peccant. Prov. viii. 36. qui peccat in me, vim facit animæ suæ; omnes osores mei amant mortem.
- 15 et xxix. 24. qui partitur cum fure, odit seipsum.

Et φιλαυτία sive amor sui præposterus, quo quis vel se supra Deum amat, vel proximum præ se contemnit: de illo Christus, Ioan. xii. 25. qui amat animam suam, perdet eam. De hoc, 2 Tim. iii. 2, &c. erunt homines sui amantes—

20 Contra laudantur, Apoc. xii. 11. qui non dilexerunt animam suam usque ad mortem. Matt. x. 39. qui perdiderit animam suam mea causa, inveniet eam. Marc. viii. 35, &c. idem. Matt. xvi. 23, &c. dixit Petro, Abscede a me Satana, offendiculo es mihi: nam non sapis quæ sunt Dei, sed quæ sunt

25 hominum—

The love of man towards himself consists in loving himself next to God, and in seeking his own temporal and eternal good. Prov. xi. 17. "the merciful man doeth good to his own soul, but he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh." xix. 8. "he that getteth wisdom loveth his own soul." Eph. v. 29. "no man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it." Philipp. ii. 12. "work out your own salvation." 1 Tim. v. 23. "drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities."

- 10 Opposed to this is, first, a perverse hatred of self. Eph. v. 29. as above. In this class are to be reckoned those who lay violent hands on themselves, who nevertheless are not excluded from decent burial, 2 Sam. xvii. 23. and all who are guilty of presumptuous sin. Prov. viii. 36. "he that sinneth 15 against me hateth his own soul; all they that hate me love death." xxix. 24. "whoso is partner with a thief hateth his own soul."

- Secondly, an extravagant self-love, whereby a man loves himself more than God, or despises his neighbor in comparison of himself. In allusion to the former species of self-love Christ says, John xii. 25. "he that loveth his life shall lose it." Respecting the latter see 2 Tim. iii. 2, &c. "men shall be lovers of themselves—." On the contrary, those are commended, Rev. xii. 11. "who loved not their lives unto the 25 death." Matt. x. 39. "he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." See also Mark viii. 35, &c. Matt. xvi. 23. "he said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan, thou art an offence unto me; for thou savorest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men."

- 20 Affectus sunt Amor, odium; gaudium, tristitia; spes, metus; et ira.

Amor ita est regendus, ut quæ amore dignissima sunt, ea maxime amemus: similiter, ut unumquodque odio maximo est dignum, id perinde odio habeamus. Gen. vi. 2. ut videntes

Righteousness towards ourselves consists in a proper method of self-government. 1 Cor. ix. 27. "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection." From this, as from a fountain, the special virtues in general derive their origin; 5 inasmuch as under the head of righteousness towards ourselves are included, first, the entire regulation of the internal affections; secondly, the discriminating pursuit of external good, and the resistance to, or patient endurance of, external evil.

- 10 The regulation of the affections. Prov. xxv. 28. "he that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down and hath no walls." Gal. v. 16, 17. "the flesh lusteth against the Spirit . . . so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." v. 24. "they that are Christ's have crucified the 15 flesh with the affections and lusts." Col. iii. 5. "mortify therefore your members that are upon the earth." 1 Thess. iv. 4, 5. "that every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honor." James i. 14, 15. "every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and 20 enticed." 1 Pet. iv. 2. "that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God."

The affections are love, hatred; joy, sorrow; hope, fear; and anger.

- 25 Love is to be so regulated, that our highest affections may be placed on the objects most worthy of them; in like manner, hatred is to be proportioned to the intrinsic hatefulness of the object. Gen. vi. 2. "the sons of God saw the daughters of

Our joy ought to be so regulated, that we may delight in 10 things essentially good in proportion to their excellence, and in things indifferent so far only as is consistent with reason. The same rule is to be observed with regard to sorrow. Deut. xii. 7. “there shall ye eat before Jehovah your God, and ye shall rejoice—.” See also v. 12, 18. xxvi. 11. “thou shalt
 15 rejoice in every good thing which Jehovah thy God hath given unto thee.” Job xxii. 19. “the righteous see it, and are glad; and the innocent laugh them to scorn.” Psal. iv. 6–8. “lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us: thou hast put gladness in my heart more than in the time that their

“folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom; but a man of understanding walketh uprightly.” xvii. 5. “whoso mocketh the poor, reproacheth his maker.” v. 22. “a merry heart doeth good like a medicine; but a broken spirit drieth the
 5 bones.” See also xviii. 14. xxvi. 19. “so is the man that deceiveth his neighbor, and saith, Am not I in sport?” Eccles. ii. 2. “I said of laughter, It is mad; and of mirth, What doeth it?” vii. 2-4. “it is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of feasting: for that is the end of all
 10 men.” Isa. xxii. 12, &c. “in that day did the Lord God of hosts call to weeping and to mourning . . . and behold joy and gladness—.” Jer. xxxi. 4. “thou shalt again be adorned with thy tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry.” v. 13. “then shall the virgin rejoice in the 15 dance, both young men and old together, for I will turn their mourning into joy.” Lam. v. 15. “the joy of our heart is ceased, our dance is turned into mourning.” Amos vi. 6. “that drink wine in bowls . . . but they are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph.” There are occasions on which tears are 20 not unbecoming even a wise man. Gen. xlii. 24. “Joseph turned himself about from them, and wept.” Psal. cxix. 136. “rivers of waters run down mine eyes, because they keep not thy law.”

In the proper regulation of hope and fear, the cause, the 25 object, and the degree of excitation are chiefly to be considered. Concerning hope, see above; concerning fear, Matt. x. 28. “fear not them which kill the body.” Isa. viii. 12, 13. compared with 1 Pet. iii. 14. “be not afraid of their terror.” Even the bravest may occasionally be influenced by fear.  5 2 Chron. xx. 3. "Jehoshaphat feared." Neh. ii. 2. "then I was very sore afraid."

In anger, we are to consider the motive for the passion, its degree, and duration. Prov. xvi. 32. "he that is slow to anger is better than the mighty, and he that ruleth his spirit than he 10 that taketh a city." xix. 11. "the discretion of a man deferreth his anger, and it is his glory to pass over a transgression." Mark iii. 5. "when he had looked round upon them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts—." Eph. iv. 2. "with long-suffering." v. 26. "be ye angry, and sin not;
 15 let not the sun go down upon your wrath." Col. i. 11. "unto all patience and long-suffering."

The excess of anger is irascibility. Prov. xii. 16. "a fool's wrath is presently known." xiv. 17. "he that is soon angry dealeth foolishly, and a man of wicked devices is hated." xxii.
 20 24, 25. "make no friendship with an angry man—." xxvii. 3. "a stone is heavy . . . but a fool's wrath is heavier." xxix. 22. "an angry man stirreth up strife." Eccles. vii. 9. "be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools." Matt. v. 22. "whosoever is angry with his 25 brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment." Eph. iv. 31. "let all wrath and anger . . . be put away from you." From this infirmity even the best of men are not always exempt. Acts xv. 38, 39. "the contention was so sharp between them, that," &c.

Ex moderatis affectibus oritur linguæ moderatio. Prov. xi. 9. ore hypocrita corrumpit proximum suum; at scientia, iusti liberantur. et v. 11. benedictione rectorum effertur urbs; ore autem improborum destruitur. et xii. 13. ex fructu

From well-regulated affections proceeds the proper government of the tongue. Prov. xi. 9. "an hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbor; but through knowledge shall the just be delivered." v. 11. "by the blessing of the upright
 5 the city is exalted; but it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked." xii. 14. "a man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth." xiii. 2. "a man shall eat good by the fruit of his mouth; but the soul of the transgressors shall eat violence." xv. 2, 4, 7. "the tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright; but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness."

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE FIRST CLASS OF SPECIAL VIRTUES CONNECTED WITH THE DUTY OF MAN TOWARDS HIMSELF.

THE SPECIAL VIRTUES which regulate our desire of external advantages, have reference either to bodily gratifications, or to the possessions which enrich and adorn life.

- 5 The virtue which prescribes bounds to the desire of bodily gratification, is called TEMPERANCE. Tit. ii. 11, 12. "the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared unto all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present 10 world." 1 Pet. ii. 11. "as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul." 2 Pet. ii. 9. "the Lord knoweth how . . . to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished; but chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness."

- 15 Under temperance are comprehended sobriety and chastity, modesty and decency.

SOBRIETY consists in abstinence from immoderate eating and drinking. 1 Thess. v. 8. "let us, who are of the day, be sober." 1 Pet. i. 13. "wherefore gird up the loins of your 20 mind, be sober." iv. 7. "the end of all things is at hand; be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer." v. 8. "be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring sorbeat. Esth. i. 8. potum ex iure nemo exigebat; sic enim constituerat rex unicuique magistro domus suæ, ut facerent pro voluntate uniuscuiusque.

- Huic opponitur ebrietas et gula. Exemplo est Noa, Gen.
 5 ix. Et Lot, cap. xix. Benhadad, 1 Reg. xx. 16. Prov. xx. 1.
derisor est vinum— et xxi. 17. qui amat vinum,— non erit dives. et xxiii. 3, &c. ne afficiaris desiderio cupediarum eius: est enim cibus mendax. et v. 20, 21. ne sis ex ebriosis vino, et comessatoribus— et 29, 30, 31, 32. cui væ? cui cheu?

lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour." Esther i. 8. "the drinking was according to law; none did compel: for so the king had appointed to all the officers of his house, that they should do according to every man's pleasure."

- 5 The opposites of this virtue are drunkenness and gluttony; instances of which may be seen in Noah, Gen. ix. Lot, Gen. xix. and Benhadad, 1 Kings xx. 16. Prov. xx. 1. "wine is a mocker." xxi. 17. "he that loveth wine . . . shall not be rich." xxiii. 3, &c. "be not desirous of his dainties, for they 10 are deceitful meat." v. 20, 21. "be not among wine-bibbers, among riotous eaters of flesh—" v. 29-32. "who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? they that tarry long at the wine." Isa. v. 11, 12.
15 "woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink . . . but they regard not the work of Jehovah." v. 22. "woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine." xxviii. 1, 3, 7, 8. "woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim—" Ezek. xvi. 49. "behold, this was
20 the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, pride, fulness of bread." Luke xxi. 34. "take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares." Rom. xiii. 13. "let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in riot-
25 ing and drunkenness." 1 Cor. vi. 10. "nor drunkards . . . shall inherit the kingdom of God." Gal. v. 21. "drunkenness, revellings, and such like . . . shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Hos. iv. 10. "they shall eat, and not

Sobrietati affinis est vigilantia. Matt. xxiv. 42. vigilate, nescitis enim qua hora Dominus vester venturus sit. et xxv. 13. et 10 xxvi. 41. et Marc. xiii. 35. idem. et v. 37. quæ dico vobis, omnibus dico, Vigilate. Luc. xii. 37. beati servi illi, quos quum venerit Dominus invenerit vigilantes. et xxi. 36. vigilate omni tempore, deprecantes ut digni habeamini qui effugiatis ita omnia quæ futura sunt—. Col. iv. 2. in orationibus perdurate,
 15 invigilantes—. 1 Thess. v. 6. ne dormiamus ut reliqui, sed vigilemus, et sobrii simus. 1 Pet. v. 8. sobrii estote et vigilate. Apoc. iii. 3. quod si non vigilaveris, veniam adversum te tanquam fur—. et xvi. 15. beatus qui vigilat, et servat vestimenta sua, ne nudus ambulet—. Videtur autem his plerisque 20 locis intelligi vigilantiam non tam a corporis somno, quam ab animi veterno.

Opposita est somnolentia. Prov. xx. 13. ne diligito somnum, ut non efficiaris pauper—.

CASTITAS est temperantia a libidine carnis illicita; quæ et 25 sanctimonia dicitur. 1 Thess. iv. 3. hæc est voluntas Dei,

have enough." vii. 5. "in the day of our king the princes have made him sick with bottles of wine." Hab. ii. 15. "woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink." Eph. v. 18. "be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but—" 1 Pet. iv. 3, 4. "the time past of our lives may suffice us . . . when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings . . . wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot."

Allied to sobriety is watchfulness. Matt. xxiv. 42. "watch therefore; for ye know not what hour your lord doth come." See also xxv. 13. xxvi. 41. Mark xiii. 35. v. 37. "what I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch." Luke xii. 37. "blessed are those servants, whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching." xxi. 36. "watch ye therefore and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass." Col. iv. 2. "continue in prayer, and watch—" 1 Thess. v. 6. "therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober." 1 Pet. v. 8. "be sober, be vigilant." Rev. iii. 3. "if therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come upon thee as a thief in the night." xvi. 15. "blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked." In most of these passages it appears that the watchfulness spoken of refers less to the sleep of the body, than to the lethargy of the mind.

25/ The opposite to this is an excessive love of sleep. Prov. xx. 13. "love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty."

CHASTITY consists in temperance as regards the unlawful lusts of the flesh; which is also called sanctification. 1 Thess.

sanctimonia vestra, ut abstineatis a scortatione—. Apoc. xiv. 4. hi sunt qui cum mulieribus non sunt inquinati: virgines enim sunt: hi sequuntur agnum—.

- Opponitur castitati omnis impuritas; mollities, Sodomia, 5 bestialitas &c. quæ omnia vitia qui committit, in semetipsum primum committit, sibi que primo iniurius est, 1 Cor. vi. 15, 16, 18. *An Ignoratis vos quod corpora vestra membra sunt
 Christi tollentes— an ignoratis vos, quod is qui adhæret

 25 in terra. Rom. xiii. 13. non cubilibus ac lasciviis—. 1 Cor.

iv. 3. "this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication." Rev. xiv. 4. "these are they which were not defiled with women, for they are virgins: these are they which follow the Lamb."

- 5 To chastity are opposed all kinds of impurity; effeminacy, sodomy, bestiality, &c. which are offences against ourselves in the first instance, and tending to our own especial injury. 1 Cor. vi. 15, 16. "know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take," &c. "what, know ye not 10 that he which is joined to an harlot is one body?" v. 18. "flee fornication: every sin that man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own body." See also Prov. vi. 24, &c. Gen. xxxviii. 9, 10. "the thing which he did displeased the Lord." Exod. xxii. 19.
15 "whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death." Lev. xviii. 22, 23. "thou shalt not lie with mankind." Deut. xxiii. 17. "there shall be no whore of the daughters of Israel, nor," &c. xxvii. 21. "cursed is he that lieth with any manner of beast." Prov. ii. 16. "to deliver thee from the strange
20 woman." v. 3, &c. "the lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb." vi. 24. "to keep thee from the evil woman." See also v. 32. vii. 25. "let not thine heart decline to her ways." ix. 18. "he knoweth not that the dead are there—." xxii. 14. "the mouth of strange women is a deep pit." See 25 also xxiii. 26, 27. xxx. 20. "such is the way of an adulterous woman; she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no wickedness." 1 Kings xiv. 24. "there were also sodomites in the land." Rom. xiii. 13. "not in chambering

vi. 9, 10. ne errate, neque scortatores, neque mæchi, neque molles, neque qui concumbunt cum masculis— regni Dei hæreditatem possidebunt. et v. 13, &c. corpus non scortationi, sed Domino; et Dominus corpori— Eph. v. 3, 4, 5.

VERECUNDIA est temperantia a verborum obscœnitate et gestuum lascivia: ab iis denique omnibus quæ ratione sexus aut personæ probatissimis moribus minus conveniunt. Deut. xxv. 11, 12. si concertantibus hominibus— Iob. xxxi. 1. fædus pepigeram cum oculis meis— I Cor. xi. 10. propter hoc debet mulier potestatem habere in capite, propter angelos.
 15 Heb. xii. 28. ita colamus Deum ut ei grati simus cum verecundia et reverentia. 2 Reg. iv. 15. quum vocasset eam stetit illa ad portam illius. Talis etiam apud Gentes mulierum verecundia fuit: ut Homerus de Penelope; Odyss. d.

στῇ ῥα παρὰ σταθμὸν τέγεος πύχα ποιητοῖο &c;

20 stetit ad postem tecti &c.

Opponitur ei verborum obscœnitas et gestuum lascivia ac turpitudine. Isa. iii. 16, &c. idcirco scabie afficiet Iehova verticem filiarum Sionis, et pudendum earum nudabit— Matt.

and wantonness." 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. "be not deceived; neither fornicators . . . nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind . . . shall inherit the kingdom of God." v. 13, &c. "the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body." Eph. v. 3-5. "fornication and all uncleanness . . . let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints . . . nor filthiness . . . which are not convenient . . . for this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person . . . hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God."

MODESTY consists in refraining from all obscenity of language or action, in short, from whatever is inconsistent with the strictest decency of behavior in reference to sex or person. Deut. xxv. 11, 12. "when men strive together," &c. Job xxxi. 1. "I made a covenant with mine eyes," &c. 1 Cor. xi. 10, "for this cause ought the woman to have power on her head, because of the angels." Heb. xii. 28. "we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear." 2 Kings iv. 15. "when he had called her, she stood in the door." The same ideas of womanly decorum existed even among the Gentiles. Thus Homer introduces Penelope, Odyssey 4:

"She . . . beneath
The portal of her stately mansion stood."

Opposed to this are obscene conversation, and filthy and licentious gestures. Isa. iii. 16, &c. "therefore Jehovah will smite with a scab the crown of the head of the daughters of Zion, and Jehovah will discover their secret parts." Matt. v.

v. 28. quicumque aspicit mulierem— Eph. v. 4. et obscœnitas et stultiloquium et scurrilitas; quæ non conveniunt—
 2 Pet. ii. 14. oculos habentes plenos adulterii—.

HONESTAS est temperantia a turpi aut lascivo corporis vestitu
 5 ac cultu. Exod. xx. 26. neque ascendito per gradus ad altare meum: ut ne detegantur pudenda tua ad illud. Deut. xxii. 5. ne esto instrumentum virile super fœminam, neque induito vir vestem fœminæ: nam abominationi est Iehovæ. Zeph. i. 8. erit— ut animadvertam in omnes qui induuntur indumentum alienigenarum. Matt. xi. 8. ecce, qui gerunt molles vestes in domibus regum sunt. 1 Tim. ii. 9. ita etiam mulieres amictu honesto cum verecundia et modestia ornare sese, non in plicis vel auro vel margaritis vel pretioso vestitu. 1 Pet. iii. 3. quarum ornatus non sit externus ille in nodis capillorum
 15 et circumposito auro vel palliorum amictu—. 2 Reg. ix. 30. fucavit faciem, &c.

Virtutes quæ in vitæ facultatibus modum servant sunt αὐταρξεία, parsimonia, industria et lautities.

'Αὐταρξεία est virtus qua quis seipso maxime, eaque sorte
 20 quæ divinitus data videtur contentus est. Prov. x. 22. benedictio Iehovæ ipsa ditat, et xxx. 8. paupertatem aut divitias ne des mihi: ale me cibo demensi mei. Eccles. iii. 12, 13. novi non esse bonum penes illos, nisi ut lætetur quisque, et ut

28. "whosoever looketh on a woman," &c. Eph. v. 4. "neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient." 2 Pet. ii. 14. "having eyes full of adultery."

DECENCY consists in refraining from indecorum or lasciviousness in dress or personal appearance. Exod. xx. 26. "neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon." Deut. xxii. 5. "the woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment; for all that do so are abomination unto Jehovah thy God." Zeph. i. 8. "it shall come to pass . . . that I will punish all such as are clothed in strange apparel." Matt. xi. 8. "they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses." 1 Tim. ii. 9. "in like manner also that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array." 1 Pet. iii. 3. "whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel." 2 Kings ix. 30. "she painted her face," &c.

20 Moderation in the enjoyment of temporal possessions manifests itself in the virtues of contentment, frugality, industry, and a liberal spirit.

CONTENTMENT is that virtue whereby a man is inwardly satisfied with the lot assigned him by divine providence. Prov. x. 22. "the blessing of Jehovah, it maketh rich." xxx. 8. "give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me." Eccles. iii. 12, 13. "I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice and to do good in his life; and Sed habendo alimenta et quibus tegamur, hæc nobis satis erunt. Heb. xiii. 5. estote contenti præsentibus.*

"godliness with contentment is great gain; for we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing

Prov. xvii. 5. “whoso mocketh the poor, reproacheth his maker.” xix. 1.
 10 “better is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than he that is perverse in his lips.” xxviii. 6. “better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.” v. 11. “the rich man is wise in his own conceit, but the poor that hath understanding
 15 searcheth him out.” We are forbidden to glory in riches, or to put our confidence in them. Prov. xi. 28. “he that trusteth in his riches shall fall.” Eccles. vi. 11. “seeing there be many things that multiply vanity—.” Mark x. 23–25. “how hardly shall they that have riches enter into the king-
 20 dom of God! . . . it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle—.” 1 Tim. vi. 17, 18. “charge them that are rich in this world that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God.” 2 Kings xx. 13, 14. “Hezekiah hearkened unto them, and showed them all the 25 house of his precious things.”

Opposed to this are, first, anxiety respecting the necessities of life. Matt. vi. 25, &c. “take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on." v. 33. "seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

Secondly, covetousness. Job xx. 15. "he hath swallowed
 5 down riches, and he shall vomit them up again." Josh. vii. 21. "when I saw among the spoils," &c. "then I coveted them and took them." Psal. cxix. 36. "incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness." Prov. i. 19. "so are the ways of every one that is greedy of gain, which taketh away
 10 the life of the owners thereof." xv. 27. "he that is greedy of gain troubleth his own house." xx. 21. "an inheritance may be gotten hastily at the beginning, but the end thereof shall not be blessed." Eccles. ii. 26. "to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good
 15 before God." iv. 8. "there is one alone, and there is not a second; yea, he hath neither child nor brother, yet is there no end of all his labor, neither is his eye satisfied with riches." v. 10. "he that loveth silver, shall not be satisfied with silver." Isa. lvii. 17. "for the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth,
 20 and smote him." Matt. vi. 19. "lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt." xxvii. 5. "he cast down the pieces of silver," &c. Luke xii. 15. "take heed and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he possesseth."
 25 1 Tim. vi. 9, &c. "they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts." Heb. xiii. 5. "let your conversation be without covetousness." For covetousness is idolatry. Matt. vi. 24. "ye cannot serve God and mammon." Eph. v. 5. "nor covetous man, who is an idolater." Col. iii. 5. "covetousness, which is idolatry." It is likewise styled the root of all evil. 1 Tim. vi. 10. "the love of money is the root of all evil; which while some coveted after, 5 they have erred from the faith."

Thirdly, a murmuring against the wisdom of God in making provision for the wants of this life. Jude 16. "these are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts, and their mouth speaketh great swelling words, having men's 10 persons in admiration because of advantage."

FRUGALITY consists in avoiding expense, so far as is seemly, and in wasting nothing which is capable of being applied to an useful purpose. John vi. 12. "gather up the fragments that remain."

15 The opposite of this is penuriousness. 1 Sam. xxv. 3. "the man was churlish." v. 11. "shall I then take my bread, and my water . . . and give it unto men?" Eccles. vi. 2. "a man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honor, so that he wanteth nothing for his soul of all that he desireth, yet 20 God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it."

INDUSTRY is that by which we honestly provide for ourselves the means of comfortable living. Gen. ii. 15. "to dress it and to keep it." iii. 19. "in the sweat of thy face thou shalt eat 25 bread." Prov. x. 4. "he becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand." v. 5. "he that gathereth in summer is a wise son." xii. 11. "he that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread." xiv. 23. thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness, but of every one that is hasty only to want." xxii. 29. "seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings."

1 Thess. iv. 11, 12. "work with your own hands, as we commanded you; that ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing." 2 Thess. iii. 12. "we exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread."

The opposite of this is remissness in making provision for the necessities of life. Prov. vi. 6. "go to the ant, thou sluggard." x. 5. "he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame." xiii. 4. "the soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing." xix. 24. "a slothful man hideth his hand in his bosom." xx. 4. "the sluggard will not plow by reason of the cold; therefore shall he beg in harvest and have nothing." xxi. 25. "the desire of the slothful killeth him, for his hands refuse to labor." xxii. 13. "the slothful man says, There is a lion in the streets." xxiv. 30. "I went by the field of the slothful." xxvi. 14. "as the door turneth upon his hinges," &c. xxviii. 19. "he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough." Eccles. iv. 5, 6. "the fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh: better is an hand-ful with quietness, than both the hands full with travail and vexation of spirit." 2 Thess. iii. 10. "if any would not work, neither should he eat."

LIBERALITY is a temperate use of our honest acquisitions in the provision of food and raiment, and of the elegancies of life.

Ad victum. Gen. xxi. 8. fecit Abraham convivium magnum—. Iob. i. 5. erat quum circumegissent dies convivii, ut mittens Iob sanctificaret eos—. Psal. xxiii. 5. instruis coram me mensam e regione hostium meorum: delibutum reddis

 10 fecerunt ei cœnam—. Maria vero accepta libra unguenti nardi liquidæ multi pretii—. Act. xiv. 17. implens cibo et delectatione corda nostra.

Ad cultum. Gen. xxiv. 22. ut accipiens vir ille imponeret naso eius monile aureum—. 2 Sam. i. 24. qui vestiebat vos

20 Huic opponitur luxus. Prov. xxi. 17. vir egens erit qui amat lætitiâ,— qui amat vinum et unguentum, non erit dives. Luc. xvi. 19. quidam erat dives, qui induebatur purpura et bysso, et sese oblectabat quotidie splendide.

Virtutes quæ in ornamentis vitæ versantur sunt modestia
 25 et magnanimitas.

MODESTIA est qua quis de se modice sentit, deque sua laude

In the provision of food. Gen. xxi. 8. "Abraham made a great feast." Job i. 5. "it was so, when the days of their feasting were gone about, that Job sent and sanctified them." Psal. xxiii. 5. "thou preparest a table before me in the presence of 5 mine enemies; thou anointest mine head with oil; my cup runneth over." civ. 15. "wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine—" Prov. xxxi. 6. "give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish." Dan. x. 3. "I ate no pleasant bread." Luke v. 29. "Levi made him
10 a great feast." John xii. 2, 3. "there they made him a supper . . . then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly." Acts xiv. 17. "filling our hearts with food and gladness."

Of the elegancies of life. Gen. xxiv. 22. "the man took a 15 golden ear-ring of half a shekel weight—" 2 Sam. i. 24. "who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel." Prov. xiv. 24. "the crown of the wise is their riches." xxxi. 22, 25. "she maketh herself coverings of tapestry—" Eccles. ix. 8. "let thy gar-20 ments be always white, and let thy head lack no ointment."

The opposite of this is luxury. Prov. xxi. 17. "he that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man; he that loveth wine and oil shall not be rich." Luke xvi. 19. "there was a certain rich man which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day."

The virtues more peculiarly appropriate to a high station are lowliness of mind and magnanimity.

Lowliness of mind consists in thinking humbly of ourselves, and in abstaining from self-commendation, except where occasion requires it. Exod. iii. 11. "who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh?" Psal. cxxxi. 1. "my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty, neither do I exercise myself in 5 great matters, or in things too high for me." Prov. xi. 2. "with the lowly is wisdom." xii. 9. "a man that is despised and hath a servant, is better than he that honoreth himself." xv. 33. "before honor is humility." See also xviii. 12. xvi. 19. "better is it to be of an humble spirit with the lowly, than to divide

10 the spoil with the proud." xxix. 23. "honor shall uphold the humble in spirit." Jer. i. 6, 7. "ah Lord . . . I am a child." Dan. ii. 31. "this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living." Matt. xxiii. 12. "he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." Rom. xii. 10. "in honor
15 preferring one another." 2 Cor. x. 13. "we will not boast of things without our measure, but according to the measure of the rule," &c. v. 15. "not boasting of things without our measure—." Eph. iii. 8. "unto me who am less than the least of all saints—." v. 21. "submitting yourselves one to another 20 in the fear of God." Philipp. ii. 3. "in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves."

In abstaining from self-commendation, except where occasion requires it. Job xii. 3. "I have understanding as well as you, I am not inferior to you." xiii. 2. "what ye know, the 25 same do I know also." xxix. 8, &c. "the young men saw me, and hid themselves, and the aged arose and stood up." Judges v. 7. "until I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel." Eccles. i. 16. "lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me."

Huic opponitur arrogantia. Prov. xx. 6. maxima pars hominum prædicat quisque benignitatem suam. Iacob. iii. 1. ne estote multi doctores, quum scitis fore ut gravius iudicium auferamus. Prov. xxvi. 16. sapientior videtur piger in oculis suis, quam septem revocantes ad rationem ipsum.

Et gloriæ vana cupiditas. Matt. xxiii. 12. qui sese extollet, deprimetur. Ioan. v. 41. gloriam ab hominibus non capto. et v. 44. quomodo vos potestis credere, quum gloriam alii ab aliis captetis? et c. xii. 42, 43. dilexerunt gloriam hominum potius quam gloriam Dei. Gal. v. 26. ne simus inanis gloriæ cupidi. 1 Thess. ii. 6. neque ex hominibus quærentes gloriam, nec a vobis, nec ab aliis.

Et iactantia. Prov. xxv. 14. velut vapores et ventus quibus non adest pluvia, est vir qui se iactat de dono falso.

Et extenuatio callida seu hypocritica suæ virtutis ad maiorem laudem aucupandam.

Et gloriatio de flagitiis et male factis. Psal. lii. 3. quid te iactas in malo, o potens! Isa. iii. 10. peccatum suum sicut Sodom enuntiant, non celant; væ animo ipsorum qui afficiunt seipsos malo!

Coniunctum est cum modestia, studium existimationis bonæ, et laudis apud bonos, et eiusdem contemptus apud malos. Psal. cxix. 22. devolve a me opprobrium et contemptum, quia testimonia tua custodio. et v. 39. averte opprobrium meum, quod reformido— Prov. xxii. 1. optatius est nomen divitiis amplis, argento et auro gratia melior. Eccles.

Opposed to this are, first, arrogance. Prov. xx. 6. "most men will proclaim every one his own goodness." xxvi. 16. "the sluggard is wiser in his own conceit, than seven men that can render a reason." James iii. 1. "be not many masters, 5 knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation."

Secondly, a desire of vain glory. Matt. xxiii. 12. "whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased." John v. 41. "I receive not honor from men." v. 44. "how can ye believe, which receive honor one of another?" xii. 42, 43. "they loved the 10 praise of men more than the praise of God." Gal. v. 26. "let us not be desirous of vain glory." 1 Thess. ii. 6. "nor of men sought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others."

Thirdly, boasting. Prov. xxv. 14. "whoso boasteth himself of a false gift, is like clouds and wind without rain."

15 Fourthly, a crafty or hypocritical extenuation of our own merits, for the purpose of extorting greater praises.

Fifthly, a glorying in iniquity and misdeeds. Psal. lii. 1. "why boastest thou thyself in mischief, O thou mighty man?" Isa. iii. 9. "they declare their sin as Sodom, they hide it 20 not; woe unto their soul, for they have rewarded evil unto themselves."

Allied to lowliness is the love of an unspotted reputation, and of the praises of good men, with a proportionate contempt for those of the wicked. Psal. cxix. 22. "remove from 25 me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies." v. 39. "turn away my reproach, which I fear." Prov. xxii. 1. "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Eccles. vii. 1. "a

- MAGNANIMITAS est qua quis in opibus vel beneficiis vel
 20 honoribus petendis vel non petendis, fugiendis vel accipiendis pro sua dignitate sibi satis cognita se gerit. Sic Abrahamus beneficia non aspernatus est regis Ægyptii, Gen. xii. 13. et
 xx. 14. aspernatus est Sodomei, cap. xiv. 22, 23. et agrum
 Ephronis oblatum sibi repudiat, nisi iusto pretio, cap. xxiii.

13. "was it not told my lord what I did, when Jezebel slew the prophets of Jehovah?" Neh. v. 14, 15. "so did not I, because of the fear of God." Matt. v. 11. "blessed are ye

5 when men . . . shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake." 2 Cor. vi. 8. "by honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report, as deceivers and yet true." Heb. xi. 24-26. "esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt." xiii. 13. "let us go forth 10 therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach."

Opposed to this is a shameless disregard of reputation. Luke xviii. 2. "which feared not God, neither regarded man."

Secondly, an excessive and indiscriminate passion for esteem and praise, from whatever quarter. Prov. xxvii. 2. "let 15 another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth." Matt. xxiii. 5. "all their works they do for to be seen of men." Luke vi. 26. "woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you."

MAGNANIMITY is shown, when in the seeking or avoiding, the acceptance or refusal of riches, advantages, or honors, we 20 are actuated by a regard to our own dignity, rightly understood. Thus Abraham did not refuse the gifts of the king of Egypt, Gen. xii. 13. xx. 14. though he rejected those of the king of Sodom, xiv. 22, 23. and though he declined to accept the field offered him by Ephron the Hittite, except on payment 25 of its full value, xxiii. 13. Thus also Job, although restored to his former health and prosperity, did not disdain the congratulatory offerings of his friends, xlii. 11. In this spirit Gideon refused the kingdom, Judges viii. 23. The same disposition accompanied Joseph in his exaltation from a prison to the first honors of the empire, Gen. xli. So also Daniel ii. 48, 49. "then the king made Daniel a great man, and gave him many great gifts." On the other hand, chap. v. 17. "he

5 answered and said before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy rewards to another"; but v. 29. "Belshazzar commanded, and they clothed Daniel with scarlet." He was actuated by the same temper in refusing and accepting dignities. vi. 2. "over these were three presidents, of whom
10 Daniel was first." Such was also the spirit of Nehemiah in asking honors, ii. 5. "I said unto the king, If it please the king, and if thy servant hath found favor in thy sight, that thou wouldest send me into Judah"; of Samuel in laying down his authority, 1 Sam. x. 1. "then Samuel took a vial
15 of oil, and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said, Is it not because Jehovah hath anointed thee—?" of Elisha in refusing a reward for the cure he had wrought, 2 Kings v. 15, 16. "as Jehovah liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none"; of Christ in rejecting the empire of the world,
20 Matt. iv. 9. "all these things will I give thee, if," &c. Luke iv. 6. John vi. 15. "when Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force to make him a king, he departed—"; in despising riches, 2 Cor. viii. 9. "though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor"; in accepting honors,
25 Matt. xxi. 7, &c. "they brought the ass, and the colt . . . and they set him thereon." Such, finally, is the spirit by which every true Christian is guided in his estimate of himself. James i. 9, 10. "let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted; but the rich in that he is made low."

- Huic affinis est indignatio; cum laus vel honos indignis tribuitur aut res prosperæ contingunt. Prov. xxx. 21, &c. sub tribus commovetur terra, immo sub quatuor quæ non potest ferre; sub servo, quum regnat; sub stulto quum satur
 5 est cibo: sub exosa, quum maritatur; denique sub ancilla, quum hæres efficitur heræ suæ. Nimia tamen si sit, non laudatur: Psal. xxxvii. 1. ne accendaris ira propter maleficos: et v. 7, 8. ne accendaris ira propter prosperantem via sua, propter virum efficientem cogitata—. Prov. iii. 31. ne invideto ulli violento, neque eligito ullas vias eius. Verba indignantis sunt, Iob. xxx. 1, &c. Psal. xv. 4. in cuius oculis contemptus est reprobis, timentes vero Iehovæ honorat. Et nonnunquam præ indignatione obscæno proxima; Ezech. xvi. 25, 36.
- 15 Magnanimitati opponitur ambitio. Num. xii. 2. an tantummodo per Mosen locutus est Iehova? nonne etiam per nos locutus est. et xvi. 3. hi omnes sunt sancti, et inter nos est Iehova: quare ergo effertis vos super congregationem Iehovæ. Iudic. ix. 1, 2. Abiens Abimelec—, alloquutus est
 20 eos &c. Eloquimini quæso audientibus omnibus Schechemitis—. 2 Sam. xv. 2. mane surgens Absalom, stabat—. et v. 4. utinam ponerent me iudicem in terra hac—. Prov. xxv. 27. pervestigare honorem suum, inhonestum est.

Allied to this is indignation at the unfounded praises or undeserved prosperity of the wicked. Prov. xxx. 21, &c. "for three things the earth is disquieted, and for four which it cannot bear; for a servant when he reigneth, and a fool when 5 he is filled with meat; for an odious woman when she is married, and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress." When however this feeling exceeds due bounds, it ceases to be praiseworthy. Psal. xxxvii. 1. "fret not thyself because of evil doers." v. 7, 8. "fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his 10 way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass." Prov. iii. 31. "envy thou not the oppressor, and choose none of his ways." The language of indignation is used, Job xxx. 1, &c. Psal. xv. 4. "in whose eyes a vile person is contemned, but he honoreth them that fear Jehovah." The vehemence of its expression sometimes borders on indecency. See 15 Ezek. xvi. 25, 36.

Opposed to magnanimity are, first, an ambitious spirit. Num. xii. 2. "hath Jehovah indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us?" xvi. 3. "seeing all the con-20 gregation are holy, every one of them, and Jehovah is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of Jehovah?" Judges ix. 1, 2. "Abimelech went to Shechem . . . and communed with them . . . saying, Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem," &c.
 25 2 Sam. xv. 2. "Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate—" v. 4. "O that I were made judge in this land—" Prov. xxv. 27. "for men to search their own glory is not glory."

Et superbia, cum quis vel indignus, vel ultra meritum, vel ob res parvi faciendas elato nimis animo se gerit. 2 Sam. xxii. 28. oculos tuos contra elatos deiicis. Prov. vi. 16, 17. sex ista odit Iehova—: oculi elati—. et xv. 25. domum superborum
 5 evellit Iehova. et xvi. 5. abominationi est Iehovæ omnis altus animo. et v. 18. ante confractionem, superbia—. et xviii. 12. ante confractionem attollit se animus viri. et xxi. 4. elatio oculorum et amplitudo animi—. et xxix. 23. elatio hominis deprimit eum.
 10 Et pusillanimitas: qualis in Saule fuit rege designato; 1 Sam. x. 21, 22. qui perquirentibus illis, non inveniebatur—. Ecce latitat ad impedimenta—.

PERTINENTIIUM.

DICTÆ sunt virtutes quæ in appetendis bonis modum servant: dicendæ nunc sunt quæ versantur in propulsandis aut sustinendis malis.

Eæque sunt fortitudo et patientia.

FORTITUDO elucet maxime in malis propulsandis aut non metuendis. Ios. i. 6, 7, 9. nonne præcepi tibi? confirmare et

Secondly, pride, when a man values himself without merit, or more highly than his merits deserve, or is elated by some insignificant circumstance. 2 Sam. xxii. 28. "thine eyes are upon the haughty, that thou mayest bring them down." 5 Prov. vi. 16, 17. "these six things doth Jehovah hate . . . a proud look—" xv. 25. "Jehovah will destroy the house of the proud." xvi. 5. "every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to Jehovah." v. 18. "pride goeth before destruction." xviii. 12. "before destruction the heart of man is 10 haughty." xxi. 4. "an high look, and a proud heart—" xxix. 23. "a man's pride shall bring him low."

Thirdly, pusillanimity; of which Saul when chosen king is an example, 1 Sam. x. 21, 22. "when they sought him, he could not be found . . . behold, he hath hid himself among 15 the stuff."

CHAPTER X.

OF THE SECOND CLASS OF VIRTUES CONNECTED WITH THE DUTY OF MAN TOWARDS HIMSELF.

THE virtues which regulate our desire of external good have been spoken of; we are next to consider those which are exercised in the resistance to, or the endurance of evil.

20 These virtues are fortitude and patience.

FORTITUDE is chiefly conspicuous in repelling evil, or in regarding its approach with equanimity. Josh. i. 6, 7, 9. "have

 5 thousands of people that have set themselves against me round about." See Psal. xviii. 32, &c. xxiii. 4. "though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me." xxxvii. 12, &c. "the wicked plotteth against the just . . . the wicked have drawn out

"in God have I put my trust; I will not be afraid what man can do unto me." See also cxviii. 6. cxii. 7, 8. "he shall not be "the righteous are bold as a lion." Isa. xli. 10. "fear thou not, for I am with thee." li. 7. "fear ye not the reproach

"they said to the king . . . we are not careful to answer thee in this matter." Matt. x. 28, &c. "fear not them which kill the body—." The great pattern of 25 fortitude is our Savior Jesus Christ, throughout the whole of his life, and in his death. Luke xiii. 31, &c. "go ye and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to-day and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected." John xi. 7, 8. "his disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late

Ioan. xi. 7, 8. dicunt ei, Modo studebant Iudæi te lapidare, et rursum illuc abis? 2 Tim. i. 7. non enim dedit nobis Deus spiritum formidinis, sed roboris, et charitatis et sanitatis animi. 1 Ioan. ii. 14. scripsi vobis adolescentes, quia fortes
 5 estis, et verbum Dei habitat in vobis, et illum malum vicistis.

Huic opponitur timiditas. Psal. xxvii. 1. Iehova lux mea et salus mea; a quo timerem—? et Psal. cxii. 7. Prov. x. 24. quod formidat improbus, id eveniet ei. et xxv. 26. ut fons calcibus conturbatus, aut scaturigo corrupta; est iustus qui dimovetur
 10 coram improbo. et xxviii. 1. fugiunt improbus quisque nemine persequente. et xxix. 25. trepidus homo sibi ponit tendiculam. Isa. xli. 13, 14. ne timeto vermicule Iacobi—. Neh. vi. 11. an vir qualis sum ego fugerem—? Matt. xxiv. 6. futurum est ut audiat bellum et rumores bellorum; videte ne
 15 turbemini. Apoc. xxi. 8. formidolosis et incredulis—, portio assignata est in stagno—.

Et temeritas; ubi quis non necessario periculum adit. Prov. xiv. 16. sapiens timet ac recedit a malo, stolidus vero infert se, adeo præfidens est. Huius exemplum est Amazia, 2 Reg. 20 20 xiv. 8. age, videamus alter faciem alterius. Et Iosias, 2 Chron. xxxv. 20, 21, 22. et quamvis mitteret ad ipsum legatos, dicendo—, tamen non avertit Iosia faciem suam ab illo—. Quam exemplo suo vitandam Christus docuit. Ioan. vii. 1. nolebat enim in Iudæa versari, quia studebant eum Iudæi sought to stone thee, and goest thou thither again?" 2 Tim.

i. 7. "God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." 1 John ii. 14. "I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the 5 word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one."

Opposed to fortitude are, first, timidity. Psal. xxvii. 1. "Jehovah is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?" Prov. x. 24. "the fear of the wicked, it shall come upon him."

10 xxv. 26. "a righteous man falling down before the wicked, is as a troubled fountain and a corrupt spring." xxviii. 1. "the wicked flee when no man pursueth." xxix. 25. "the fear of man bringeth a snare." Isa. xli. 13, 14. "fear not, thou worm Jacob." Neh. vi. 11. "should such a man as I flee?" Matt.
15 xxiv. 6. "ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled." Rev. xxi. 8. "the fearful and unbelieving . . . shall have their part in the lake that burneth—."

Secondly, rashness, which consists in exposing ourselves to danger unnecessarily. Prov. xiv. 16. "a wise man feareth and 20 departeth from evil; but the fool rageth, and is confident." This fault is exemplified in Amaziah, 2 Kings xiv. 8. "come, let us look one another in the face"; and in Josiah, 2 Chron. xxxv. 20-22. "he sent ambassadors unto him, saying . . . nevertheless Josiah would not turn his face from him—."
25 Christ has taught us to avoid it by his example. John vii. 1. "he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him." xi. 53, 54. "Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews." Matt. x. 23. "when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another."

PATIENTIA est in malis atque iniuriis perferendis. Psal. lxi. 8. propter te sustineo opprobrium, operit ignominia faciem meam. Prov. xi. 12. spernente proximum suum demente, vir prudentissimus surdum agit. et xvii. 27. cohibet sermones suos vir sciens, et frigidus est spiritu vir intelligens. et xix. 11. intellectus hominis longanimum efficit eum. Eccles. vii. 21. etiam ad omnia verba quæ dicuntur, ne adhibeto animum tuum; cum non debeas audire vel servum tuum maledicentem tibi. Isa. l. 7, 8. compono faciem meam tanquam saxum adamantinum—. Matt. v. 39. ne obsistite improbo; sed qui te cædet in dextram tuam maxillam, obverte ei et alteram. 1 Cor. vi. 7. quare non potius iniuriam patimini—? 1 Thess. v. 14. patiente animo estote erga omnes. Vide supra de patientia erga Deum. At compensationem quandam iniuriarum nonnunquam etiam viri sancti requirunt: Act. xvi. 37. cæsos nos publice, indicta causa—.

Huic opponitur impatientia et mollities. Prov. xxiv. 10. si remisse te geras, tempore angustiarum angusta erit virtus tua.

Et patientia hypocritica: quæ in illis cernitur qui cruciatus non necessarios sibi accersunt; ut Baalitæ, 1 Reg. xviii. 28. incidebant sese—; et flagellatores Papistici.

Et Stoica ἀπαθεία: nam patientiæ non repugnat sensus dolorum et querelæ seu lamentationes; ut in Iobo cæterisque sanctis adversa ferentibus perspicere licet.

PATIENCE consists in the endurance of misfortunes and injuries. Psal. lxix. 7. "for thy sake I have borne reproach, shame hath covered my face." Prov. xi. 12. "he that is void of wisdom despiseth his neighbor; but a man of understanding holdeth his peace." xvii. 27. "he that hath knowledge spareth his words, and a man of understanding is of an excellent spirit." xix. 11. "the discretion of a man deferreth his anger." Eccles. vii. 21. "also take no heed unto all words that are spoken, lest thou hear thy servant curse thee." Isa. 1. 7, 8. "I have set my face like a flint—." Matt. v. 39. "resist not evil, but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also." 1 Cor. vi. 7. "why do ye not rather take wrong?" 1 Thess. v. 14. "be patient towards all men." See above, on patience towards God. Compensation for injuries, nevertheless, is occasionally exacted even by pious men. Acts xvi. 37. "they have beaten us openly uncondemned," &c.

The opposites to this are, first, impatience and an effeminate spirit. Prov. xxiv. 10. "if thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small."

Secondly, an hypocritical patience, which voluntarily inflicts upon itself unnecessary evils. This is exemplified in the prophets of Baal, 1 Kings xviii. 28. "they cut themselves after their manner with knives"; and in the flagellations of the modern Papists.

Lastly, a stoical apathy; for sensibility to pain, and even lamentations, are not inconsistent with true patience; as may be seen in Job and the other saints, when under the pressure of affliction.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE DUTIES OF MAN TOWARDS HIS NEIGHBOR, AND THE VIRTUES COMPREHENDED UNDER THOSE DUTIES.

HITHERTO we have treated of those duties of charity and justice which man owes TO HIMSELF; we are next to consider the same virtues as exercised towards OUR NEIGHBOR.

- 5 CHARITY TOWARDS OUR NEIGHBOR consists in LOVING HIM AS OURSELVES. Lev. xix. 18. "thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself; I am Jehovah." 1 John iv. 11. "beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." Under the name of neighbor are comprehended all to whom we have the opportunity of rendering service or assistance. Luke x. 36, 37. 10 "which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him—? he that showed mercy on him"; as in the present instance the Samaritan showed mercy on the Jew, although estranged from him in so many respects.
- 15 Chiefly however believers: Gal. vi. 10. "as we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them that are of the household of faith"; inasmuch as, in addition to the ordinary tie of affinity, we are connected with them by a spiritual bond: Eph. iv. 3. "endeavoring to keep 20 the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." Next in degree are those most closely allied to us by relationship or friendship.

tingunt. Rom. ix. 3. optarim ego ipse anathema esse, separatum a Christo pro fratribus meis, cognatis meis secundum carnem: qui sunt Israelitæ—. 1 Tim. v. 4. discant prius pietatem exercere in propriam domum, et vicem rependere parentibus: hoc enim est honestum et acceptum in conspectu Dei.

Nec inimici charitate nostra excludendi sunt; qui quidem precibus non excluduntur. Exod. xxiii. 4, 5. si offenderis bovem inimici tui—. Prov. xxv. 21, 22. si esuriat osor tuus, ciba eum pane; et si sitiatur, da ei bibendum aquam: nam velut prunas coacervabis super caput eius, et Ichova rependet tibi. Rom. xii. 14, 20. idem. Matt. v. 44. diligite inimicos vestros, benedicite iis qui execrantur vos, benefacite iis qui oderunt vos—. Luc. vi. 27, &c. idem. Matt. vi. 15. sin autem non remiseritis hominibus suos lapsus, nec pater—. Luc. xxii. 51. tacta illius auricula—. et xxiii. 34. pater, remitte hoc ipsis. Rom. xii. 17. nemini malum pro malo vicissim reddentes. et v. 21. ne vincitor a malo, sed vince bono malum. 1 Thess. v. 15. videte nequis malum pro malo cuiuspiam reddat. 20 1 Pet. iii. 9. non reddentes malum pro malo.

Sic enim Deus exemplo suo nos docet. Matt. v. 44, &c. diligite inimicos vestros: ut sitis filii patris vestri—. Rom. v. 8. commendat suam erga nos charitatem Deus, eo quod quum adhuc essemus peccatores, Christus pro nobis mortuus sit.

Huic opponitur charitatis defectus erga proximum. Iacob. ii. 15, 16. quod si frater aut soror nudi fuerint, et destituti quotidiano victu—.

Rom. ix. 3. "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh; who are Israelites—." 1 Tim. v. 4. "let them learn first to show piety at home, and to requite their parents; for that is 5 good and acceptable before God."

Even our enemies are not to be excluded from the exercise of our charity, inasmuch as they are not excluded from our prayers. Exod. xxiii. 4, 5. "if thou meet thine enemy's ox or ass going astray," &c. Prov. xxv. 21, 22. "if thine enemy be 10 hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink; for thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head, and Jehovah shall reward thee." See also Rom. xii. 14, 20. Matt. v. 44. "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you—." Matt. vi. 15. "if ye forgive
15 not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Luke xxii. 51. "he touched his ear and healed him." xxiii. 34. "Father, forgive them—." Rom. xii. 17. "recompense to no man evil for evil." v. 21. "be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." 1 Thess. v. 15.
20 "see that none render evil for evil unto any man." 1 Pet. iii. 9. "not rendering evil for evil." We are taught the same by the example of God himself. Matt. v. 44. "love your enemies . . . that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven." Rom. v. 8. "God commendeth his love towards 25 us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

The opposite of this virtue is, first, uncharitableness towards our neighbor. James ii. 15, 16. "if a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food," &c.

Et charitas hypocritica. Matt. vi. 2, 3, 4. quum præstabis eleemosynam—, ne curato buccina cani coram te—.

Et charitas inordinata. 1 Sam. ii. 29. honorasti filios tuos—. et xvi. 2. quousque lugeres de Saule, cum ego spreverim cum—? Matt. x. 37. qui amat patrem aut matrem supra me, non est me dignus—.

Et odium proximi. 1 Ioan. iii. 15. quisquis odit fratrem suum, homicida est. et iv. 8. qui non diligit, non novit Deum: nam Deus est charitas.

10 Et in rebus alienis curiositas. Prov. xxvi. 17. prehendit aures canis, qui transiens furentem agit in lite non sua.

Aliquod tamen odium etiam pium est; ut cum hostes Dei aut ecclesiæ odio habemus. 2 Chron. xix. 2. an osores Iehovæ diligere te? Psal. xxxi. 7. odi eos qui observant vanitates
 15 vanissimas. et cxxxix. 21, 22. annon osores tuos, o Iehova, odio habeo? &c. Prov. xxviii. 4. qui derelinquunt legem, laudant improbum; at qui observant legem, miscent prælia cum illis. et xxix. 27. abominationi est iustis vir iniquus. Ier. xlviii. 10. maledictus qui facit opus Iehovæ fraude, et male-
 20 dictus qui cohibet gladium suum a sanguine. Etiam alioqui coniunctissimos; si nos ab amore Dei et veræ religionis cultu avocant aut deterrent: Exod. xxxii. 27. occidite quisque fratrem suum et quisque amicum suum et quisque proximum suum—. Deut. xiii. 6, 7, 8. Si clam Incitet te frater tuus filius

Secondly, hypocritical charity. Matt. vi. 2-4. "when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do—."

Thirdly, an excessive and preposterous love. 1 Sam. ii. 29.
 5 "thou honorest thy sons above me—." xvi. 1. "how long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him?" Matt. x. 37. "he that loveth father or mother more than me, is not worthy of me."

Fourthly, hatred of our neighbor. 1 John iii. 15. "who-
 10 soever hateth his brother is a murderer." iv. 8. "he that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love."

Fifthly, a meddling disposition. Prov. xxvi. 17. "he that passeth by and meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."

15 Hatred, however, is in some cases a religious duty; as when we hate the enemies of God or the church. 2 Chron. xix. 2. "shouldest thou love them that hate Jehovah?" Psal. xxxi. 6. "I have hated them that regard lying vanities." cxxxix. 21, 22. "do I not hate them, O Jehovah, that hate thee?" Prov.
 20 xxviii. 4. "they that forsake the law, praise the wicked; but such as keep the law contend with them." xxix. 27. "an unjust man is an abomination to the just." Jer. xlvi. 10. "cursed be he that doeth the work of Jehovah deceitfully, and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood." We 25 are to hate even our dearest connections, if they endeavor to seduce or deter us from the love of God and true religion. Exod. xxxii. 27. "slay every man his brother, and every man his companion." Deut. xiii. 6-8. "if thy brother, the son of matris tuæ, aut filius tuus. aut filia tua, aut uxor charissima tibi, aut amicus tuus qui est sicut tu ipse dicendo, eamus et colamus Deos alienos— Luc. xiv. 26. si quis venit ad me, et non odit patrem, matrem, uxorem— Sic Christus Petro, 5 alioqui sibi charissimo: Marc. viii. 33. abscede a me Satana—

Charitas erga proximum est absoluta vel mutua.

Absolutæ charitatis modi quidam sunt humanitas, benevolentia et misericordia.

- 10 HUMANITAS est qua officiis communibus erga homines et vivos et mortuos vel eo solum quod homines sunt, non desumus. Deut. xxii. 1, &c. videns bovem fratris tui—

Erga mortuos est luctus et sepultura honesta.

- Luctu fere quoslibet non indignos prosequimur. Gen. l. 3.
 15 fleverunt cum Ægyptii septuaginta diebus. 2 Sam. i. 12. et plangentes fleverunt ieiunaveruntque usque ad vesperum propter Saulem et propter Ionathanem filium eius, et propter populum Iehovæ, denique propter familiam Israelis, quod cecidissent gladio. et iii. 31, 32. rex flebat ad sepulchrum
 20 Abneri, flebantque totus populus.

Et abreptos fideles. Act. viii. 2. extulerunt una Stephanum viri religiosi, et planctum magnum ediderunt super eum.

thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods," &c. Luke xiv. 26. "if any man come to me, and hate not his father, and 5 mother, and wife," &c. Thus Christ, notwithstanding his love for Peter: Mark viii. 33. "get thee behind me, Satan."

Love towards our neighbor is absolute or reciprocal.

Under absolute love are comprised humanity, good will, and compassion.

10 HUMANITY consists in the performance of those ordinary attentions which man owes to man, whether living or dead, as the partaker of one common nature. Deut. xxii. 1, &c. "thou shalt not see thy brother's ox or his sheep go astray," &c.

Towards the dead humanity is shown by mourning for 15 their loss, and by a decent sepulture.

Mourning is the appropriate mark of respect paid to the memory of all who are not utterly worthless. Gen. 1. 3. "the Egyptians mourned for him threescore and ten days." 2 Sam. i. 12. "they mourned and wept, and fasted until even, for 20 Saul and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of Jehovah, and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword." iii. 31, 32. "the king wept at the grave of Abner, and all the people wept." Much more therefore to those of our own household. Thus the ancient patriarchs: Gen. 1. 10.
 25 "they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation." So also when believers are cut off. Acts viii. 2. "devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him." Even on such occasions, however, our grief ought

Non immodice tamen. Lev. xxi. 2, 4, 5. ne polluito se maritus pro uxore ducta in populis suis, ita ut profanet sese: ne capillos evellendo calvitium capiti suo inducunto, latus barbæ suæ ne radunto, neque in carne sua cæsuram ullam incidunto.

5 Deut. xiv. 1. filiis estis Iehovæ Dei vestri: ne incidite vos, neque inducite calvitium inter oculos vestros propter mortuum. 1 Thess. iv. 13. ut ne tristitia afficiamini, sicut et cæteri qui spem non habent.

Sepultura honesta. Gen. xxiii. 8. ut sepeliā mortuum
 10 meum a conspectu meo. et xxxv. 20. statuitque Iacob statum super sepulchrum eius—. et l. 2, &c. quumque præcepisset Ioseph servis suis medicis—. 2 Chron. xvi. 14. deponentes eum in cubili quod impleverant aromaticis—. Qua carere ignominiosum est: Ier. viii. 2. expandent ea soli et lunæ
 15 totique exercitui cælorum—. et xvi. 4, &c. non plangentur neque sepelientur—.

Locus sepulturæ, modo non inhonestus, ubivis recte haberi potest: exemplo Abrahami, qui in spelunca, Gen. xxiii. 19. et Iacobi, qui uxorem sepelivit non in oppido Ephrathæ, sed 20 in via regia, cap. xxxv. 18. et xlviii. 7. Et Samuelis in sua domo, 1 Sam. xxv. 1. Et Christi in horto cruci proximo sepulti. Fidei autem causa Iacobus et Iosephus in terra promissa maiorum sepulchro sepeliri voluerunt, Gen. xlix. 29. et l. 25. Ios. xxiv. 32. Heb. xi. 22. per fidem, Iosephus

not to be immoderate. Lev. xxi. 2, 4, 5. "he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself; they shall not make baldness upon their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard; nor make any 5 cuttings in their flesh." Deut. xiv. 1. "ye are the children of Jehovah your God; ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead." 1 Thess. iv. 13. "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope."

Decent burial. Gen. xxiii. 8. "that I may bury my dead
 10 out of my sight." xxxv. 20. "Jacob set a pillar upon her grave." 1. 2, &c. "Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father." 2 Chron. xvi. 14. "they laid him in the bed which was filled with sweet odors and divers kinds of spices," &c. To remain unburied is an indignity.
 15 Jer. viii. 2. "they shall spread them before the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven," &c. xvi. 4, &c. "they shall not be lamented, neither shall they be buried." Any place of sepulture which is consistent with decency, may be adopted without impropriety. Sarah, for instance, was buried in a
 20 cave, Gen. xxiii. 19. Rachel, not in Ephrath, but on the high road to that city, xxxv. 18. xlviii. 7. Samuel in his own house at Ramah, 1 Sam. xxv. 1. and Christ in a garden near the place of crucifixion. When Jacob and Joseph made it their especial request to be gathered unto the sepulchre of their
 25 fathers in the land of promise, this was in token of their reliance on the divine declarations, Gen. xlix. 29. 1. 25. Josh. xxiv. 32. Heb. xi. 22. "by faith, Joseph . . . gave commandment concerning his bones."

Humanitati opponitur inhumanitas; quæ gravissime prohibetur. Lev. xix. 14. ne maledicito surdo, et ante cæcum ne ponito offendiculum. Deut. xxvii. 18. maledictus qui facit ut erret cæcus in via. Talis erat inhumanitas Edomæorum in 5 Israelitis iam afflictos, Amos. i. 6, &c. Psal. cxxxvii. 7. vastate, vastate—. et sacerdotis et Levitæ, viatorem spoliatum ac semimortuum prætereuntium, Luc. x. 31, 32.

Et humanitas incauta ac temeraria; ut cum pro quovis temere spondetur. Prov. vi. 1, 2. spondidisti amico tuo?
 10 complosisti extraneo manum tuam? illaqueasti te sermonibus oris tui—. et xi. 15. omnino confringitur, qui spondet pro extraneo: qui autem odit complodentes, securus est. et xvii. 18. homo demens complodit manum—. et xx. 16. cape vestem eius, qui spondit pro extraneo—. et xxvii. 13. idem.
 15 et xxii. 26, 27. ne sis ex complodentibus manu—.

Et importuna. Prov. xxv. 17. studiose contine pedem tuum a domo proximi tui, ne saturatus tui, odio habeat te. 1 Reg. xiii. 15, 16. tum dixit ei, veni mecum domum—.

Et inordinata: cum ignavis prospicitur. 2 Thess. 3, 10. si 20 quis nolit operari, neque comedito.

The opposite of humanity is, first, inhumanity; against which there are the severest prohibitions, Lev. xix. 14. "thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumbling-block before the blind." Deut. xxvii. 18. "cursed be he that maketh the blind
5 to wander out of the way." Such was that of the Edomites towards the Israelites in their distress, Amos i. 6, &c. Psal. cxxxvii. 7. "rase it, rase it, even to the foundation thereof." Such too was that of the priest and Levite in the parable, who passed by on the other side, when the traveller who had fallen
10 among thieves was lying half dead and plundered, Luke x. 31, 32.

Secondly, an incautious and unadvised humanity; as for instance, when we become responsible for another without due consideration. Prov. vi. 1, 2. "if thou be surety for thy 15 friend, if thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger, thou art snared with the words of thy mouth—" xi. 15. "he that is surety for a stranger shall smart for it, and he that hateth suretyship is sure." xvii. 18. "a man void of understanding striketh hands—" xx. 16. "take his garment that is surety
20 for a stranger." See also xxvii. 13. xxii. 26, 27. "be not one of them that strike hands," &c.

Thirdly, an officious humanity. Prov. xxv. 17. "withdraw thy foot from thy neighbor's house, lest he be weary of thee, and so hate thee." 1 Kings xiii. 15, 16. "then he said unto 25 him, Come home with me, and eat bread."

Lastly, an excess of humanity, which makes provision for the idle and undeserving. 2 Thess. iii. 10. "if any would not work, neither should he eat."

Alter charitatis modus est BENEVOLENTIA; qua omnibus hominibus bene volumus. Ut illa Titi; 2 Cor. viii. 16. qui cordi Titi indidit idem studium pro vobis. Et angelorum, Luc. ii. 10. evangelizo vobis gaudium magnum—. et xv. 10. 5 gaudium est apud angelos Dei super uno peccatore resipiscente. Rom. xii. 15. gaudete cum gaudentibus.

Opponitur huic primum invidentia sive invidia: Cuius varia genera sunt: cum quis aut ferre non potest, ut alter eiusdem boni secum particeps fiat: exempla sunt primi opera- 10 rii, Matt. xx. 11, &c. et Iudæi, salutem gentibus invidentes; passim libro Actorum. Aut cum quis alteri id invidet, quod ipse assequi non potest: ut Satanus homini salutem: et Cainus, fratri potiozem Dei gratiam invidit, Gen. iv. et Esauus, cap. xxvii. 43. et fratres Iosephi, Act. vii. 9. et Saul, 1 Sam. xviii. 15 7, 8. et proceres Persæ, Dan. vi. Aut cum quis ægre fert alium iisdem donis ornari quibus is quem ipse diligit aut sequitur: exempla sunt Iosua, Num. xi. 28. et discipuli Ioannis, Ioan. iii. 26. et Christi, Marc. ix. 38. vidimus quendam per nomen tuum eiicientem dæmonia.

20 Vitanda est invidia: Matt. xx. 15. an oculus tuus malus, quia ego bonus? quia impellit ad nefaria facinora; ut homicidia, Gen. iv. 2 Sam. iii. 24, 27. quid fecisti? ecce venerat

The second modification of love is GOOD WILL, which consists in wishing well to all men. Such was that of Titus, 2 Cor. viii. 16. "which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you"; and of the angels, Luke ii. 10. "I bring you
5 good tidings of great joy"; and xv. 10. "there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." Rom. xii. 15. "rejoice with them that do rejoice."

The opposite of this is, first, envy, or a grudging disposition; which is shown in various ways. First, when a man
10 cannot bear that others should participate in his good fortune; as in the instance of the laborers who were hired first into the vineyard, Matt. xx. 11, &c. and of the Jews who were unwilling that salvation should be extended to the Gentiles, as may be seen throughout the book of Acts. Secondly, when a
15 man grudges another that which he cannot himself obtain; which is exemplified in the envy with which Satan regards the salvation of the human race; in Cain's anger against his brother, because God had more respect unto him, Gen. iv. in Esau, xxvii. 41. in Joseph's brethren, Acts vii. 9. in Saul,
20 1 Sam. xviii. 7, 8. and in the princes of Persia, Dan. vi. Thirdly, when a man is jealous that any should be endued with the same gifts as one of whom he is himself an admirer or follower; which is exemplified in Joshua, Num. xi. 28. in John's disciples, John iii. 26. and in those of Christ, Mark
25 ix. 38. "we saw one casting out devils in thy name," &c. Envy is to be shunned, Matt. xx. 15. "is thine eye evil, because I am good?" partly as instigating to crimes, murder for instance, Gen. iv. 2 Sam. iii. 24, 27. "what hast thou done?

Abner ad te—. Percussitque eum quinta costa—. Et ipsum invidum excruciat: Prov. xiv. 30. putredo ossium est invidentia. Iacob. iii. 16. ubi invidia est ibi inquieta vita et omne opus prævum.

5 2. opponitur benevolentia simulata: cuius exemplum est in Phariseis Christum invitantibus. Luc. xiv. 1, &c. et factum est, ut quum venisset domum cuiusdam ex primoribus Phariseis sabbatho ad edendum panem, ipsi observarent eum—.

10 Tertius charitatis absolutæ modus est MISERICORDIA. Zech. vii. 9. benignitatem et misericordiam exercete alter in alterum. Iob. xxx. 25. annon flebam—? Matt. v. 7. beati misericordes—. Luc. x. 33. Samaritanus—misericordia intima commotus est. Rom. xii. 15. flete cum flentibus.

15 Quæ etiam erga bestias immitis non est. Prov. xii. 9. curat iustus vitam iumentis sui. Deut. xxii. 6, 7, 8. si obviam fiet tibi nidus avium—.

Huic opponitur immisericordia. Prov. xii. 9. miserationes improborum sunt miserationes crudelis. Iacob. ii. 13. condemnatio absque misericordia erit ei qui non præstiterit misericordiam.

Et ἐπὶ χαίρειν: qua quis alienis malis lætatur. Psal. lii. 3. quid te iactas in malo? Exemplum est in Edomæis, Psal. cxxxvii. Prov. xxiv. 17. quum cadit inimicus tuus, ne lætator—.

Et misericordia simulata. Psal. xli. 7. quod si quis veniebat ut inviseret—.

behold Abner came unto thee . . . and he smote him there under the fifth rib"; and partly as being in its nature a self-tormentor: Prov. xiv. 30. "envy is the rottenness of the bones." James iii. 16. "where envying . . . is, there is confusion and every evil work."

Secondly, pretended good will; which is exemplified in the Pharisees who invited Christ to eat bread, Luke xiv. 1, &c. "it came to pass as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath-day, that they watched him."

The third modification of absolute love is COMPASSION. Zech. vii. 9. "show mercy and compassion every man to his brother." Job xxx. 25. "did not I weep for him that was in trouble?" Matt. v. 7. "blessed are the merciful." Luke x. 33. "a certain Samaritan . . . had compassion on him." Rom. xii. 15. "weep with them that weep." Compassion extends even to animals. Prov. xii. 10. "a righteous man regardeth the life of his beast." Deut. xxii. 6-8. "if a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way," &c.

The opposite of this is, first, unmercifulness. Prov. xii. 10. "the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel." James ii. 13. "he shall have judgment without mercy, that hath showed no mercy."

Secondly, a rejoicing in the misfortunes of others. Psal. lii. 1. "why boastest thou thyself in mischief?" This is exemplified in the Edomites, Psal. cxxxvii. Prov. xxiv. 17. "rejoice not when thine enemy falleth."

Thirdly, pretended pity. Psal. xli. 6. "if he come to see me, he speaketh vanity."

Et illicita. Ier. xvi. 7. neque ito ad plangendum, neque condolecto iis—. exemplum est in Achabo Benhadadum commiserante.

Modi sive Species charitatis mutuæ sunt charitas fraterna
5 et amicitia.

CHARITAS FRATERNA seu CHRISTIANA est omnium maxima; qua fideles ut membra Christi inter se diligunt atque adiuvant, et quantum fieri potest, unanimes plane sunt; infirmos tamen et dissentientes, quantum fieri potest, ferunt. Psal. cxxxiii. 1.
10 ecce quam bonum et quam amœnum est, habitare fratres etiam una—. Ioan. xiii. 34, &c. ex hoc omnes cognoscent vos esse discipulos meos, si charitatem habueritis alii in alios—. et xv. 12, &c. hoc est mandatum illud meum, ut diligatis alii alios, prout dilexi vos, maiorem charitatem nullus habet
15 quam—. cum Eph. v. 1. et I Ioan. iii. 16. idem. Ioan. xvii. 11. ut sint unum, prout et nos. Rom. xiv. 19. quæ ad pacem faciunt sectemur, et quæ ad mutuam ædificationem. 2 Cor. xiii. 11. idem sentite, pacem colite; et Deus charitatis ac pacis erit vobiscum. Eph. iv. 15. sincere nos gerentes in 20 charitate, prorsus adolescamus in eum qui est caput, Christus. Phil. ii. 2. ut eodem sitis affectu, eandem charitatem habentes, unanimes, et unum sentientes Col. ii. 1, 2. ipsis charitate compactis—. et iii. 15. pax Dei sit gubernatrix in cordibus vestris, ad quam etiam vocati estis in unum corpus; et benefici

Fourthly, a misplaced compassion. Jer. xvi. 7. "neither shall men tear themselves for them in mourning, to comfort them for the dead—." This is exemplified in the pity of Ahab for Benhadad.

- 5 Under reciprocal love are comprised brotherly love and friendship.

BROTHERLY OR CHRISTIAN LOVE is the strongest of all affections, whereby believers mutually love and assist each other as members of Christ, and are as far as possible of one mind; bearing at the same time to the utmost of their power with the weaker brethren, and with such as are of a different opinion. Psal. cxxxiii. 1. "behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." John xiii. 34, &c. "by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." xv. 12, &c. "this is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you; greater love hath no man than this—." See also Eph. v. 1. 1 John iii. 16. John xvii. 11. "that they may be one, as we are." Rom. xiv. 19. "let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another." 20 2 Cor. xiii. 11. "be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." Eph. iv. 15. "that we . . . speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ." Philipp. ii. 2. "that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, 25 of one mind." Col. ii. 1, 2. "their hearts being knit together in love." iii. 15. "let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body, and be ye thankful."

estote. 1 Thess. iv. 9. de fraterno amore non necesse habemus scribere vobis: ipsi namque divinitus docti estis ut diligatis alii alios. Heb. xiii. 3, &c. memores estote victorum tanquam una cum illis victi—. 1 Pet. ii. 17. fraternitatem
 5 diligite. et iv. 8. ante omnia vero charitatem alii in alios intensam habentes: nam charitas operiet multitudinem peccatorum. et 2 Ep. i. 7. adiicite fraterno amori charitatem. 1 Ioan. ii. 10. qui diligit fratrem suum, in luce manet, et offendiculum in eo non est. et iii. 14, 15. nos scimus, nos
 10 translatos esse ex morte ad vitam, quia diligimus fratres. et iv. 7, 8. dilecti, diligamus alii alios: nam charitas ex Deo:—. et v. 2. per hoc cognoscimus nos diligere filios Dei, quum Deum diligimus et præcepta eius observamus.

Infirmos tamen &c. ferunt. Act. xxi. 20, &c. tu vide frater
 15 noster quot sint millia Iudæorum qui crediderunt; suntque omnes accensi zelo legis—. Hoc igitur fac—. Gal. vi. 1, 2. fratres, etiamsi præoccupatus fuerit homo in aliqua offensa, vos spirituales reconcinnate huiusmodi hominem cum spiritu lenitatis: considerans unus quisque temetipsum, ne et tu
 20 tenteris: alii aliorum onera portate. Eph. iv. 2. cum omni animi submissione et lenitate, cum iræ cohibitione, sustinentes alii alios per charitatem. Col. iii. 12, 13, 14. induimini visceribus miserationum, benignitate, animi submissione, lenitate, iræ cohibitione: sufferentes alii alios, et condonantes

Huic opponuntur dissidia, simultates, æmulationesque

1 Thess. iv. 9. "as touching brotherly love ye need not that I write unto you, for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another." Heb. xiii. 3, &c. "remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them—" 1 Pet. ii. 17. "love the brotherhood." iv. 8. "above all things have fervent charity among yourselves, for charity shall cover the multitude of sins." 2 Pet. i. 7. "add to brotherly kindness charity." 1 John ii. 10. "he that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him." iii. 14, 15. "we know
 5 that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." iv. 7, 8. "beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God." v. 2. "by this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments."

Bearing with the weaker brethren, &c. Acts xxi. 20, &c.
 15 "thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe, and they are all zealous of the law . . . do therefore this—" Gal. vi. 1, 2. "brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be 20 tempted; bear ye one another's burthens." Eph. iv. 2. "with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love." Col. iii. 12-14. "put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering; for-
 25 bearing one another, and forgiving one another; if any man have a quarrel against any, even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye."

Opposed to this are divisions, enmities, rivalries among fraternæ &c. Gen. xiii. 8. ne quæso sit contentio inter me et te; aut inter pastores meos et pastores tuos; nam viri fratres sumus. 1 Cor. iii. 3. quum enim inter vos sint invidia, et contentio, et dissidia, nonne carnales estis— Gal. v. 20, 21.

 5 inimicitia, lites, æmulationes, excandescencia, rixæ, dissidia, hæreses, invidia,— eos videlicet qui talia faciunt, regni Dei non fore hæredes. 1 Ioan. ii. 9, 11. qui dicit se in luce esse, et fratrem suum odit, in tenebris est adhuc usque. Et fraternitas simulata: a qua sæpe magnum periculum est. 2 Cor. xi. 26.
 10 periculis inter falsos fratres. Gal. ii. 4. propter irreptitios falsos fratres.

AMICITIA est qua duo pluresve sibi mutuo honestis omnibus officiis saltem civilibus coniunctissimi sunt. Eccles. iv. 5, &c. meliores sunt duo quam unus, quia—

Et amicitia cum bonis vel etiam societas tuta ac salutaris est. Gen. xii. 3. benedicam iis qui benedicent tibi— et xviii. 26, &c. si invenirem Sodomi quinquaginta iustos, parce-

brethren, &c. Gen. xiii. 8. "let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen, for we be brethren." 1 Cor. iii. 3. "whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not 5 carnal?" Gal. v. 20, 21. "hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings . . . they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." 1 John ii. 9, 11. "he that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now." To these may be added a pre-10 tended brotherly love, from which great danger often arises to believers. 2 Cor. xi. 26. "in perils among false brethren." Gal. ii. 4. "and that because of false brethren unawares brought in."

FRIENDSHIP is a most intimate union of two or more in-15 dividuals, cemented by an interchange of all good offices, of a civil at least, if not of a religious kind. Eccles. iv. 9, &c. "two are better than one, because they have a good reward for their labor—" It takes precedence of all degrees of relationship. Deut. xiii. 6. "thy friend, which is as thine own 20 soul." Prov. xvii. 17. "a friend loveth at all times." xviii. 24. "there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." xxvii. 10. "thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not, neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity; for better is a neighbor that is near, than a brother that is 25 far off."

Friendship, and even common companionship with good men, is safe and advantageous. Gen. xii. 3. "I will bless them that bless thee." xviii. 26. "if I find in Sodom fifty righteous

20 Huic opponitur amicitia ſimulata. Iob. xix. 13, &c. fratres meos procul a me abegit, familiares mei tantum abalienant ſe a me—. Pſal. lv. 13, &c. non enim inimicus probro afficit me, quod ferrem, ſed tu—familiaris meus: qui pariter

DE VIRTUTIBUS SIVE OFFICIIS SPECIALIBUS ERGA PROXIMUM.

VIRTUTES SPECIALES sive SPECIES CHARITATIS ET IUSTITIE ERGA PROXIMUM sunt vel sub generali notione proximi qua is proximus duntaxat est, vel sub speciali, qua is ratione aliqua speciali nobis relatus est.

Officia specialia erga proximum non factis solum, verum

 5 of the world; but . . . if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator—."

Thirdly, enmity. Prov. xvii. 14. "the beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water; therefore leave off contention before it be meddled with." v. 19. "he loveth transgres-10 sion that loveth strife; and he that exalteth his gate, seeketh destruction." xx. 3. "it is an honor for a man to cease from strife; but every fool will be meddling." xxvi. 26. "whose hatred is covered by deceit, his wickedness shall be showed before the whole congregation."

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE SPECIAL VIRTUES OR DUTIES WHICH REGARD OUR NEIGHBOR.

THE SPECIAL VIRTUES, OF VARIOUS MODES OF CHARITY OR JUSTICE AS REGARDS OUR NEIGHBOR, relate to him either under the general acceptation of the word neighbor, as denoting simple proximity; or under some special acceptation, where our relationship arises from special circumstances.
 20 The discharge of our special duties towards our neighbor includes the regulation not only of our actions, but of our etiam affectibus metienda sunt. Exod. xx. 17. non concupisces domum proximi tui—.

Officia specialia erga proximum, qua is proximus duntaxat est, respiciunt eius bonum vel internum vel externum.

- 5 Respicitur bonum eius internum cum eius vel vitæ vel HONESTATIS ratio habetur: externum cum EXISTIMATIONIS aut FORTUNARUM. Et vitæ quidem atque salutis non præsentis tantum verum etiam æternæ: Prov. x. 11. scaturigo vitæ perfundit os iusti. Rom. xiv. 15. ne esca tua illum perditio pro quo
 10 Christus mortuus est. Iacob. v. 20. sciat eum qui averterit peccatorem ab errore viæ suæ, servaturum animam a morte, et operturum multitudinem peccatorum.

- Studium conservandæ vitæ proximi præcipitur. Prov. xxiv. 11, 12. eripe raptos ad mortem, nam a declinantibus ad 15 necem an cohiberes te? si dicas, En, ignoravimus hoc, nonne expendens animos ipse intelligit, et qui custodit animam tuam ipse cognoscet, ut reddet unicuique secundum opus suum?

- In hoc genere virtutum est innocentia, mansuetudo, et 20 placabilitas.

- INNOCENTIA est qua nemini volentes nocemus. Psal. xxiv. 4. innocens manibus. et xxvi. 6. lavo in innocentia manus meas—. Rom. xii. 18. si fieri potest, quantum in vobis est, cum omnibus hominibus in pace viventes. Heb. xii. 14.
 25 pacem sectamini cum omnibus

MANSUETUDO ab omni offensione vel inferenda vel accipienda tantum abest, ut omnes quoad fieri potest placide atque affections, as concerns him. Exod. xx. 17. "thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house—."

Special duties towards our neighbor, using the word in its general sense, regard either his internal or external good.

- 5 His internal good is consulted by a regard to his safety and honor; his external, by a concern for his good name and worldly interests. Our regard to his safety should extend not merely to the present life, but to the eternal state. Prov. x. 11. "the mouth of a righteous man is a well of life." Rom. xiv.
10 15. "destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Christ died." James v. 20. "let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." The duty of preserving our neighbor's life is inculcated, Prov. xxiv. 11, 12. "if thou for-15 bear to deliver them that are drawn unto death, and those that are ready to be slain; if thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? doth not he know it? and shall not he render to every man according to his works?"

- 20 Under this class of virtues are comprehended innocence, meekness, and placability.

- INNOCENCE consists in doing a voluntary injury to no one. Psal. xxiv. 4. "he that hath clean hands." xxvi. 6. "I will wash mine hands in innocency." Rom. xii. 18. "if it be possible, as 25 much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." Heb. xii. 14. "follow peace with all men."

MEEKNESS is that by which we are so far from offering or taking offence, that we conduct ourselves mildly and affecamanter tractet. Num. xii. 3. vir ille Moses mansuetus erat valde, præ omnibus hominibus qui erant in superficie terræ. Psal. xxv. 9. docet mansuetos viam suam. et cxlvii. 6. statuminat mansuetos Iehova. Isa. lxi. 1. misit me ad evangeli-zandum mansuetis. Matt. v. 5. beati sunt mansueti—. et xi.

29. discite a me, quia mitis sum et humilis corde; et invenietis requiem animabus vestris. et xxi. 5. ecce, rex tuus venit tibi mitis—. Tit. iii. 2. omnem exhibentes mansuetudinem erga omnes homines.

- 10 PLACABILITAS est qua læsi facile ignoscimus. Matt. vi. 12, 14.
remitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos remittimus debitoribus nostris: nam si remiseritis hominibus ipsorum offensas, remittet etiam vobis pater vester cælestis. et xviii. 21, 22.
quoties peccabit in me frater meus, et remittam ei? &c. usque septuagies septies. Luc. xvii. 3, 4. si peccaverit in te frater tuus, obiurga eum; et si resipuerit, remitte ei; et si septies in die peccaverit in te—. Rom. xii. 18, 19. et si Possibile sit quod ad vos Spectat cum omni filio hominis pacem Colite.

- Studio conservandi vitam proximi opponitur primum 20 cædes. Gen. iv. 10. quid fecisti? ecce vox sanguinum fratris tui me ab ipso humo inclamantium. et ix. 5, 6. *qui effundit sanguinem hominis, per hominem sanguis illius effunditor;
quoniam ad imaginem suam hominem fecit Deus.* Exod. xx.
13. ne occidito. et xxi. 12. qui percutit quemquam ita ut 25 moriatur—. et v. 14. quum quis arrogaverit contra proxi-

tionately towards all men, as far as is practicable. Num. xii.

3. "now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth." Psal. xxv. 9. "the meek will he teach his way." cxlvii. 6. "Jehovah lifteth up
5 the meek." Isa. lxi. 1. "Jehovah hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek." Matt. v. 5. "blessed are the meek." xi. 29. "learn of me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." xxi. 5. "behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek—" Tit. iii. 2. "showing 10 all meekness unto all men."

- PLACABILITY consists in a readiness to forgive those by whom we have been injured. Matt. vi. 12, 14. "forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors . . . for if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you." xviii.
15 21, 22. "how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? . . . until seventy times seven." Luke xvii. 3, 4. "if thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him; and if he trespass against thee seven times a day—" Rom. xii. 18. "if it be possible, as much as 20 lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."

- Opposed to a regard for the life of our neighbor, is, first, the shedding his blood. Gen. iv. 10. "what hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground." ix. 5, 6. "whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man
25 shall his blood be shed; for in the image of God made he man." Exod. xx. 13. "thou shalt not kill." xxi. 12. "he that smiteth a man so that he die, shall surely be put to death." v. 14. "if a man come presumptuously upon his neighbor, to

Num. xxxv. 31. ne accipitote redemptionis præmium—. et v. 34. ut non contaminetis terram—. Deut. xxi. 1, &c. si quis inveniatur confossus in terra—. 1 Reg. ii. 5, 6. nosti quid fecerit mihi Ioab—. et v. 33, 34. sic reversis cædibus—. Prov. vi. 16, 17. sex ista odit Iehova—: manus effundentes sanguinem innocentem. et xxviii. 17. homo oppressus propter sanguinem hominis, ad foveam usque fugiat; ne sustentato eum.

Huc etiam pertinet quicquid vitæ proximi afferre periculum potest: ut pulsatio, vulnera, mutilatio, &c. Exod. xxi. 18, &c. quum altercantibus hominibus percusserit unus alterum—. Lev. xxiv. 19, 20. si quis intulerit corporis vitium—. Deut. xxvii. 24. maledictus qui cædit proximum suum clam—.

Etiam ira temeraria. Prov. xiv. 29. Tardus ad iram abundat Intelligentia, Præceps autem Excitat Stultitiam: Et cap. xvi. 32. Melior est Longanimis Robusto, et qui Dominatur in Animum suum, eo qui Caput Civitatem: et cap. xix. 11. Intellectus hominis Longanimem efficit eum et Ornamento est ei præterire defectionem. Prov. xv. 18. vir iracundus miscet contentionem. Matt. v. 22. quicumque irascitur fratri suo temere, damnas erit iudicii. 1 Ioan. iii. 15. quisquis odit fratrem suum, homicida est.

slay him with guile," &c. v. 28. "if an ox gore a man," &c. Deut. xxvii. 25. "cursed is he that taketh reward to slay an innocent person." Num. xxxv. 31. "ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer." v. 34. "defile not therefore 5 the land which ye shall inhabit—" Deut. xxi. 1. "if one be found slain in the land," &c. 1 Kings ii. 5, 6. "thou knowest also what Joab did to me," &c. v. 33, 34. "their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab." Prov. vi. 16, 17. "these six things doth Jehovah hate . . . hands that shed
 10 innocent blood." xxviii. 17. "a man that doeth violence to the blood of any person, shall flee to the pit; let no man stay him."

Under this head is also included, first, every thing by which the life of our neighbor is endangered; as blows, wounds, 15 mutilations, &c. Exod. xxi. 18, &c. "if men strive together, and one strike another," &c. Lev. xxiv. 19, 20. "if a man cause a blemish in his neighbor," &c. Deut. xxvii. 24. "cursed be he that smiteth his neighbor secretly."

Secondly, hasty anger. Prov. xiv. 29. "he that is slow to 20 wrath is of great understanding; but he that is hasty of spirit exalteth folly." xvi. 32. "he that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city." xix. 11. "the discretion of a man deferreth his anger; and it is his glory to pass over a transgression." xv. 18. "a 25 wrathful man stirreth up strife." Matt. v. 22. "whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment." 1 John iii. 15. "whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer."

Et ultio. Lev. xix. 18. ne ulciscitor neque iram asservato in populares tuos. Deut. xxxii. 35. mea est ultio et retributio. Psal. xciv. 1. o fortis Deus ultionum—. Prov. xx. 22. ne dicas, rependam malum—. et xxiv. 29. ne dicito, quemad-

Thirdly, revenge. Lev. xix. 18. "thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people." Deut. xxxii. 35. "to me belongeth vengeance and recompense." Psal. xciv. 1. "O Jehovah, God to whom vengeance belongeth." Prov. xx. 22. "say not thou, I will recompense evil." xxiv. 29. "say not, I will do so to him as he hath done to me." Rom. xii. 19. "dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath." 1 Pet. iii. 8, 9. "not rendering evil for evil." To avenge the church, however, or to desire that she be avenged of her enemies, is not forbidden. Exod. xvii. 16. "because Jehovah hath sworn that Jehovah will have war with Amalek from generation to generation." Deut. xxv. 17. "remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way." Psal. xviii. 37-43. "I have pursued mine enemies . . . then did I beat them small as the dust." xli. 10, 11. "raise me up that I may requite them." liv. 5. "he shall reward evil unto mine enemies." xcii. 11. "mine eyes also shall see my desire upon mine enemies." xciv. 2. "render a reward to the proud." cxxxvii. 8. "O daughter of Babylon," &c. Jer. xi. 20. "let me see thy vengeance on them." See also xx. 12. xv. 15. "revenge me of my persecutors." l. 15. "take vengeance upon her." Lament. i. 21, 22. "let all their wickedness come before thee." iii. 64, &c. "render unto them a recompense." Esther ix. 13. "then said Esther, If it please the king, let it be granted unto the Jews . . . to do to-morrow also according unto this day's decree, and let Haman's ten sons be hanged on the gallows." Rev. vi. 10. "how long, O Lord—?"

The HONOR of our neighbor is consulted by a respect to his personal modesty. Lev. xix. 29. "do not prostitute thy daughter to cause her to be a whore." Deut. xxiii. 17. "there shall be no whore of the daughters of Israel, nor a sodomite of the sons of Israel."

- 5 Opposed to this are unnatural vices, fornication, violation, adultery, incest, rape, whoredom, and similar offences. Gen. xix. 5. "bring them out unto us, that we may know them." See also Judges xix. 22. Deut. xxiii. 17. as above. 1 Kings xv. 12. "he took away the sodomites out of the land." xxii. 10 46. "the remnant of the sodomites," &c. Gen. xxxiv. 2. "he took her, and lay with her, and defiled her." Exod. xx. 14. "thou shalt not commit adultery." Lev. xviii. 20. "thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbor's wife, to defile thyself with her." Job xxxi. 9, 10, &c. "if mine heart hath been de-15 ceived by a woman," &c. Jer. v. 7, 8. "they committed adultery, and assembled themselves by troops in the harlots' houses." Ezek. xviii. 6. "neither hath defiled his neighbor's wife." xxii. 11. "one hath committed abomination with his neighbor's wife." Hosea vii. 4. "they are all adulterers."
20 Amos ii. 7. "a man and his father will go in unto the same maid—." Heb. xiii. 4. "whoremongers and adulterers God will judge." Hence the laws against fornication, Exod. xxii. 16, 17, &c. "if a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her," &c. against incest, Lev. xviii. 6. xx. 11, &c.

 5 that lieth with his father's wife." Hence also provision was expressly made for cases of jealousy, Num. v. 12, &c. Prov. vi. 34. "jealousy is the rage of a man." Cantic. viii. 6. "jealousy is cruel as the grave." Even before the promulgation of the law, adultery was made capital by divine command: Gen.
 10 xx. 3. "thou art but a dead man, for the woman whom thou hast taken." xxxviii. 24. "bring her forth, and let her be burnt." Some marriages, however, were prohibited by the Mosaic code, which appear to have been previously lawful. Gen. xx. 12. "yet indeed she is my sister; she is the daughter
 15 of my father"; compared with Deut. xxvii. 22. "cursed be he that lieth with his sister, the daughter of his father"; and Ezek. xxii. 11. "another in thee hath humbled his sister, his father's daughter." Exod. vi. 20. "Amram took him Jochebed his father's sister to wife." Lev. xviii. 12. "thou shalt not 20 uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister."

Respecting a menstruous woman, see Lev. xx. 18. "if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness," &c. Ezek. xviii. 6. "neither hath come near to a menstruous woman." xxii. 10. "in thee have they humbled her that was set apart 25 for pollution."

CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE SECOND CLASS OF SPECIAL
NEIGHBOR.

THE external good of our neighbor is consulted, as before said, by a regard to his good name and worldly interests.

We consult OUR NEIGHBOR'S GOOD NAME, when IN OUR DE-5 PORTMENT TOWARDS HIM, IN OUR CONVERSATION WITH HIM, AND IN OUR MANNER OF SPEAKING OF HIM, WE PRESERVE TOWARDS HIM A DUE RESPECT, AND AVOID DOING ANYTHING WHICH MAY CAUSELESSLY INJURE HIM IN THE OPINION OF OTHERS. 1 Pet. ii.
17. "honor all men." Gen. xviii. 2, &c. "he ran to meet them 10 from the tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground."
xxiii. 7. "Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land." Exod. xviii. 7. "Moses went out to meet his father-in-law." Ruth ii. 10. "then she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground." Nor are we anywhere told that 15 obeisance was made even to kings otherwise than by a lowly inclination of the body, the same token of respect which was frequently paid to each other even by private individuals.

IN OUR DEPORTMENT TOWARDS HIM. To this head belongs that sense of delicacy, which precludes us from saying or 20 doing every thing indiscriminately, however proper in itself, in the presence of our neighbor. Job xix. 3. "ye are not ashamed that ye make yourselves strange to me."

Huic opponitur impudentia: qualis fuit illa iudicis, Luc. xviii. 2. qui neque Deum timens neque hominem reveritus.

SIVE EUM ALLOQUIMUR &c. Virtutes huc pertinentes sunt veracitas et candor.

- 5 VERACITAS est qua ei cui æquum est, et quibus de rebus convenit, ad bonum proximi, vera dicimus. Psal. xv. 2. loquitur veritatem ex animo suo. Prov. xii. 21. Abominationi Sunt Iehovæ Labia fallacia; qui autem agunt fideliter Accepti sunt ei. Prov. xii. 17. efflat veritatem qui indicat quod iustum est.
 10 et xx. 6. virum usquequaque veracem quis inveniat? Zech. viii. 16. loquimini veritatem alter alteri. Eph. iv. 25. deposito mendacio loquimini veritatem quisque proximo; nam sumus alii aliorum membra.

- Huic opponitur dissimulatio vitiosa. Nam omnis non im-15 probatur: non enim semper vera palam expromere necesse habemus; ea tantum reprehenditur quæ malitiosa est.

- Secundo opponitur mendacium. Psal. v. 7. perditurus es loquentes mendacium et xii. 2, 3. defecerunt veraces ex filiis hominum— Prov. xiii. 5. rem falsam odit iustus, improbum
 20 vero illa reddit fœtidum atque pudefacit. et xix. 5. conflator mendaciorum non proripiet se. Ioan. viii. 44. quotiescunque loquitur mendacium, ex seipso loquitur; quia mendax est, et pater mendacii. Apoc. xxii. 15. foris erunt canes—, et quisquis amat ac committit mendacium. Mendacio itaque ne

Opposed to this is impudence; as exemplified in the unjust judge. Luke xviii. 2. "which feared not God, neither regarded man."

IN OUR MANNER OF CONVERSING WITH HIM, &c. The virtues
5 herein comprised are veracity and candor.

VERACITY consists in speaking the truth to all who are entitled to hear it, and in matters which concern the good of our neighbor. Psal. xv. 2. "he that speaketh the truth in his heart." Prov. xii. 17. "he that speaketh truth, sheweth forth
10 righteousness." v. 22. "lying lips are an abomination to Jehovah, but they that deal truly are his delight." xx. 6. "a faithful man who can find?" Zech. viii. 16. "speak ye every man the truth to his neighbor." Eph. iv. 25. "putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor: for we are members 15 one of another."

Opposed to this is, first, an improper concealment of the truth. I say improper, for it is not every concealment of the truth that is wrong, inasmuch as we are not on all occasions required to declare what we know; that concealment only is 20 blameable, which proceeds from improper motives.

Secondly, falsehood. Psal. v. 6. "thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing." xii. 1. "the faithful fail from the children of men." Prov. xiii. 5. "a righteous man hateth lying; but a wicked man is loathsome, and cometh to shame." xix. 5.
25 "he that speaketh lies shall not escape." John viii. 44. "when he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it." Rev. xxii. 15. "without are dogs . . . and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie." Hence falsehood is not

Dei quidem causa est utendum: Iob. xiii. 7. an pro Deo loqui debetis iniquitatem? aut pro eo loqui debetis fraudem?

Mendacium vulgo definitur, quo FALSUM ANIMO FALLENDI VERBIS FACTISVE SIGNIFICATUR. Sed quoniam sæpe usu venit ut
5 non solum vera dissimulare aut reticere, sed etiam fallendi animo falsa dicere utile ac salutare proximo sit, danda opera est, ut mendacium quid sit melius definiamus. Neque enim video cur non idem de mendacio quod de homicidio aliisque rebus, de quibus infra dicitur, nunc dici possit, quæ non tam
10 facto quam obiecto et fine agendi ponderanda sunt. Esse enim quos iure optimo fallendos putemus, quis sanus negaverit? quid enim pueros, quid furentes, quid ægrotos, quid ebrios, quid hostes, quid fallentes, Quid latrones? Certe Iuxta illud tritum; Cui nullum est ius, ei nulla fit iniuria. an 15 illos ne fallamus religio erit? per hanc tamen definitionem ne illos quidem dictis aut factis fallere licebit. Certe si gladium, aliamve rem quam apud me sanus deposuerit eidem furenti non reddiderim, cur veritatem non depositam, ei ad quem veritas minime pertineat, male usuro expromam?
20 Enimvero si quicquid cuicunque interroganti respondetur fallendi animo, mendacium est censendum, profecto sanctis justifiable, even in the service of God. Job xiii. 7. "will ye speak wickedly for God? and talk deceitfully for him?"

Falsehood is commonly defined to be a violation of truth either in word or deed, with the purpose of deceiving. Since
 5 however not only the dissimulation or concealment of truth, but even direct untruth with the intention of deceiving, may in many instances be beneficial to our neighbor, it will be necessary to define falsehood somewhat more precisely; for I see no reason why the same rule should not apply to this sub-
 10 ject, which holds good with regard to homicide, and other cases hereafter to be mentioned, our judgment of which is formed not so much from the actions themselves, as from the intention in which they originated. No rational person will deny that there are certain individuals whom we are fully 15 justified in deceiving. Who would scruple to dissemble with a child, with a madman, with a sick person, with one in a state of intoxication, with an enemy, with one who has himself a design of deceiving us, with a robber? unless indeed we dispute the trite maxim, Cui nullum est ius, ei nulla fit
 20 iniuria. Yet, according to the above definition, it is not allowable to deceive either by word or deed in any of the cases stated. If I am under no obligation to restore to a madman a sword, or any other deposit, committed to me while in a sound mind, why should I be required to render the truth
 25 to one from whom I never received it, who is not entitled to demand it, and who will in all probability make a bad use of it? If every answer given to every interrogator with the intent of deceiving is to be accounted a falsehood, it must be allowed viris et prophetis nihil familiarius erat quam mentiri. Quid si igitur mendacium hoc modo definiamus?

 VAT, AUT FALSUM DICIT EI, QUICUNQUE IS SIT, CUI DICERE VERITA-
 5 TEM EX OFFICIO DEBUERAT. Sic diabolus serpens primus erat mendax, Gen. iii. 4. et Cain, cap. iv. 9. et Sara, cap. xviii. 15.
 angelis enim merito offensis non satisfecit ingenua confessione: et Abrahamus, cap. xii. 13. et [cap.] xx. illud enim de Sara tanquam sorore figmentum, ut ipse didicisse poterat in 10 Ægypto, quamvis incolumitatem vitæ sibi proposuerat solam, homines tamen inscientes in errorem et alieni cupiditatem induxit: et Davides fugiens, 1 Sam. xxi. 3. debebat enim non celasse Abimelecum quo loco res suæ apud regem essent, neque tantum periculum hospiti creare: sic Ananias et Sap-15 phira, Act. v. mentiti sunt.

Ex hac definitione 1. haud secus atque ex altera patet, parabolæ, hyperbolæ, apologos, ironias mendacia non esse:
 hæc enim omnia non fallendi sed erudiendi studio adhiben-tur: 1 Reg. xviii. 27. ut ludificans eos Elia diceret, clamate 20 voce magna, quandoquidem Deus est—. et xxii. 15. dixit ei, ascende et prosperare; scilicet tradet Iehova in manum regis. 2. si fallendi vocem significatione debita sumamus, neminem quidem fallere poterimus quin eum eadem opera that nothing was more common even among the prophets and holiest of men.

- Hence falsehood may perhaps be defined as follows: FALSEHOOD is incurred when ANY ONE, FROM A DISHONEST MOTIVE, 5 EITHER PERVERTS THE TRUTH, OR UTTERS WHAT IS FALSE TO ONE TO WHOM IT IS HIS DUTY TO SPEAK THE TRUTH. Thus the devil, speaking in the serpent, was the first liar, Gen. iii. 4. So Cain subsequently, iv. 9. and Sarah, xviii. 15. for when the angels were justly angry with her, she evaded a candid confession of 10 her fault. So also Abraham, xii. 13. and chap. xx. for his fiction concerning Sarah, as he might have learned from his previous experience in Egypt, though intended only for the preservation of his own life, was of a nature to lead others into a dangerous error, and a desire of what was not their 15 own, through ignorance of the fact. Thus too David in his flight from Saul, 1 Sam. xxi. 3. inasmuch as he ought not to have concealed from the priest his situation with respect to the king, or to have exposed his host to danger. Ananias and Sapphira were guilty of the same crime, Acts v.
- 20 It follows from this definition, first, that parables, hyperboles, apologues, and ironical modes of speech are not falsehoods, inasmuch as their object is not deception but instruction. In this respect it agrees with the common definition. 1 Kings xviii. 27. "it came to pass that Elijah mocked 25 them, and said, Cry aloud, for he is a God—" xxii. 15. "he answered him, Go and prosper, for Jehovah shall deliver it into the hand of the king." Secondly, that in the proper sense of the word deceit, no one can be deceived without being at the lædamus. Quem igitur nullo modo lædimus, sed vel iuvamus vel ab iniuria aut inferenda aut patienda prohibemus, eum certe ne falso quidem millies dicto revera fallimus, sed vero potius beneficio necopinantem afficimus. 3. dolos et strategemata in bello, modo absit perfidia aut periurium, non esse mendacia omnes concedunt: quæ concessio alteram definitionem plane destruit. Vix enim ullæ insidiæ aut doli in bello strui possunt, quin palam idque summo fallendi studio dicantur multa quæ falsissima sunt: unde per illam definitionem mendacio absolvi nequeunt. Hanc igitur potius ob causam licere strategemata dicendum erit, etiam cum mendacio coniuncta, eo quod si quis est cui verum dicere officii nostri non sit, nihil certe interest an illi quoties expedit etiam falsum dicamus: nec video cur hoc in bello magis quam in pace liceat, præsertim quoties iniuriam aut periculum a nobismetipsis aut a proximo salutari et probo quodam mendacio depellere licet.

Quæ igitur testimonia scripturæ contra mendacium proferuntur, de eo intelligenda sunt mendacio quod aut Dei gloriam aut nostrum proximive bonum imminuere videatur. Huiusmodi sunt, præter ea quæ supra citavimus, Lev. xix. 11. ne mentimini, neque fallacia utimini ullus in proximum same time injured. When therefore, instead of injuring a person by a false statement, we either confer on him a positive benefit, or prevent him from inflicting or suffering injury, we are so far from being guilty of deceit towards him, however often the fiction may be repeated, that we ought rather to be considered as doing him a service against his will. Thirdly, it is universally admitted that feints and stratagems in war, when unaccompanied by perjury or breach of faith, do not fall under the description of falsehood. Now this admission is evidently fatal to the vulgar definition; inasmuch as it is scarcely possible to execute any of the artifices of war, without openly uttering the greatest untruths with the indisputable intention of deceiving; by which, according to the definition, the sin of falsehood is incurred. It is better therefore to say that stratagems, though coupled with falsehood, are lawful for the cause above assigned, namely, that where we are not under an obligation to speak the truth, there can be no reason why we should not, when occasion requires it, utter even what is false; nor do I perceive why this should be more allowable in war than in peace, especially in cases where, by an honest and beneficial kind of falsehood, we may be enabled to avert injury or danger from ourselves or our neighbor.

The denunciations against falsehood, therefore, which are cited from Scripture, are to be understood only of such violations of truth as are derogatory to the glory of God, or injurious to ourselves or our neighbor. Of this class, besides what were quoted above, are the following texts: Lev. xix. 11. "ye shall not deal falsely, neither lie one to another."

suum: Psal. ci. 7. non habitabit intra domum meam faciens dolum, loquens mendacia non stabilietur coram oculis meis.

Prov. vi. 16, 17. immo septem abominationi sunt animæ eius: oculi elati, lingua fallax—. Ier. ix. 5. quisque amico

5 suo illudunt, ac veritatem non loquuntur. His atque aliis huiusmodi locis veritatem dicere iubemur: at cui? non hosti, non furioso, non violento, non sicario; sed proximo, quicum scilicet pax et iusta societas nobis intercedit. Iam vero si veritatem soli proximo dicere iubemur, profecto iis qui nomen
10 proximi non mercentur, ne falsum quidem quoties opus est dicere vetamur. Qui aliter sentit, ex eo libens quærerem, quonam decalogi præcepto prohibeatur mendacium? respondit certissime, nono. Age, recitet modo, et mecum sentiet: quicquid enim hic prohibetur, id proximum lædere ostenditur;
15 siquod igitur mendacium non lædit proximum, sub hoc certe mandato nequaquam prohibetur.

Hinc tot sanctissimos viros Theologorum fere iudicio mendacii reos merito absolvemus: Abrahamum, Gen. xxii. 5. cum dixit servis suis se reversurum cum filio; fallendi tamen 20 animo nequid illi suspicarentur; cum ipse persuasus esset mactatum ibi filium se relicturum; nam nisi ita sibi per-

Psal. ci. 7. "he that worketh deceit shall not tarry within my house; he that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight." Prov. vi. 16, 17. "yea, seven are an abomination unto him; a proud look, a lying tongue—." Jer. ix. 5. "they will deceive every 5 man his neighbor, and will not speak the truth." In these and similar passages we are undoubtedly commanded to speak the truth; but to whom? not to an enemy, not to a madman, not to an oppressor, not to an assassin, but to "our neighbor," to one with whom we are connected by the bonds
 10 of peace and social fellowship. If then it is to our neighbor only that we are commanded to speak the truth, it is evident that we are not forbidden to utter what is false, if requisite, to such as do not deserve that name. Should any one be of a contrary opinion, I would ask him, by which of the 15 commandments falsehood is prohibited? He will answer doubtless, by the ninth. Let him only repeat the words of that commandment, and he will be a convert to my opinion; for nothing is there prohibited but what is injurious to our neighbor; it follows, therefore, that a falsehood productive
 20 of no evil to him, if prohibited at all, is not prohibited by the commandment in question.

Hence we are justified in acquitting all those holy men who, according to the common judgment of divines, must be convicted of falsehood: Abraham for example, Gen. xxii. 5.
 25 when he told his young men, for the purpose of deceiving them and quieting their suspicions, that he would return with the lad: although he must at the same time have been persuaded in his own mind that his son would be offered up as a suasisset, quid hoc magnopere tentationis erat? sed intellexit vir sapiens nihil interesse servorum hoc ut scirent; sibi expedire in præsentia ne scirent: Rebeccam et Iacobum, Gen. xxvii. prudenti enim astutia et cautione aditum sibi muniebant ad ius illud hæreditatis quod alter vili vendiderat; ad ius inquam et oraculo et redemptione iam suum; at patri imposuit; immo potius errori patris, qui amore præpostero in Esauum ferebatur, tempestive occurrit: Iosephum, Gen. xlii. 7, &c. multorum sane mendaciorum hominem, si vulgari illa definitione stetur; quam multa enim dixit non vera, eo animo ut fratres falleret? dolo tamen fratribus non malo sed utilissimo: Obstetrices Hebræas, Exod. i. 19, &c. comprobante etiam Deo; fefellerant enim Pharaonem, non læserant tamen, sed beneficio potius affecerant, dum male faciendi facultatem ademerunt: Mosen, Exod. iii. etiam a Deo iussum, iter tridui a Pharaone petere quasi ad rem divinam faciendam in deserto; eo licet consilio petentem ut Pharaoni verba daret; non causam enim pro causa vel fictam saltem pro vera profectionis afferebat: universum populum Israeliticum, Exod. xi. et xii. ab eodem Deo iussum, aurum, sacrifice and left on the mount; for had he expected otherwise, his faith would have been put to no severe trial. His wisdom therefore taught him, that as his servants were in no way interested in knowing what was to happen, so it was expedient

 5 for himself that it should be for a time concealed from them. So also Rebecca and Jacob, Gen. xxvii. when by subtlety and proper caution they opened a way to that birthright which Esau had held cheap, a birthright already belonging to Jacob by prophecy, as well as by right of purchase. It is objected,
 10 that in so doing he deceived his father. Say rather that he interposed at the proper time to correct his father's error, who had been led by an unreasonable fondness to prefer Esau. So Joseph, Gen. xlii. 7, &c. who according to the common definition must have been guilty of habitual falsehood, inas-
 15 much as he deviated from the truth in numberless instances, with the express purpose of deceiving his brethren; not however to their injury, but to their exceeding advantage. The Hebrew midwives, Exod. i. 19, &c. whose conduct received the approbation of God himself; for in deceiving Pharaoh,
 20 they were so far from doing him any injury, that they preserved him from the commission of a crime. Moses, Exod. iii. who by the express command of God asked permission for the Israelites to go three days' journey into the wilderness under the pretext of sacrificing to the Lord; his purpose being 25 to impose on Pharaoh by alleging a false reason for their departure, or at least by substituting a secondary for the principal motive. The whole Israelitish people, who, by divine command likewise borrowed from the Egyptians jewels of vasa, vestemque pretiosam ab Ægyptiis mutuam petere; et pollicitum sine dubio reddere; fallendi tamen animo; quidni enim et Dei hostes et hospitii violatores et spoliatores iam diu suos. Raabbam, Ios. ii. 4, 5. splendide mentitam, nec sine

5 fide; fallebat enim quos Deus falli voluit, populares licet suos et magistratus; quos voluit ille salvos conservabat; civile officium religioni recte posthabuit: Ehudem, qui duplici mendacio Eglonem fefellit, Iudic. iii. 19, 20. nec iniuria tamen quippe hostem; idque Dei non iniussu: Iaëlem, quæ confu-
10 gientem ad se Siseram blanditiis perdidit, Iudic. iv. 18, 19. hostem licet Dei magis quam suum; quamquam id non mendacio, sed pia fraude factum vult Iunius, quasi quicquam interesset: Ionathanem, dum rogatus ab amico Davide causam eius absentiae fictam refert patri, 1 Sam. xx. 6, 28.
15 malebat enim innocentis saluti quam patris crudelitati officiosum se esse; et maioris erat momenti ad charitatem ut innocentis amici consuleretur vitæ, interposito licet mendacio, quam ut patri ad maleficium exequendum veritatis inutili confessione mos gereretur. Hos atque alios tot viros 20 sanctissimos vulgari illa definitione mendacii condemnatos,

gold and silver and raiment, doubtless under a promise of restoring them, though with the secret purpose of deception; for by what obligation were they bound to keep faith with the enemies of God, the transgressors of the laws of hospitality, and the usurpers, for so long a period, of the property of those who now despoiled them? Rahab, whose magnanimous falsehood, recorded Josh. ii. 4, 5. was no breach of duty, inasmuch as she only deceived those whom God willed to be deceived, though her own countrymen and magistrates, and 10 preserved those whom God willed to be preserved; rightly preferring religious to civil obligations. Ehud, who deceived Eglon in two several instances, Judges iii. 19, 20. and that justifiably, considering that he was dealing with an enemy, and that he acted under the command of God himself. Jael, 15 by whose enticements Sisera perished, Judges iv. 18, 19. although he was less her personal enemy than the enemy of God. Junius, indeed, considers this as a pious fraud, not as a falsehood; which is a distinction without a difference. Jonathan, who was prevailed upon to assign a fictitious reason for 20 the absence of David, 1 Sam. xx. 6, 28. thinking it better to preserve the life of the innocent, than to abet his father in an act of cruelty; and considering that the duties of charity were better fulfilled by favoring the escape of a friend under wrongful accusation, though at the expense of veracity, than by dis-25 closing the truth unnecessarily in obedience to the commands of a parent, for the purpose of aiding in the commission of a crime. All these, with numberless other saints, by a more careful inquiry into the nature of truth, are rescued, as it were, veluti ex limbo quodam patrum disquisitio hæc veritatis accuratio educit.

Under falsehood is included false witness; which is forbidden Exod. xx. 16. "thou shalt not bear false witness
5 against thy neighbor." xxiii. 1. "put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness." It is again prohibited Deut. xix. 16, &c. under a most severe penalty; "if a false witness rise up against any man . . . then shall ye do unto him as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Prov.
10 xix. 5. "a false witness shall not be unpunished." xxv. 18. "a man that beareth false witness against his neighbor is a maul, and a sword, and a sharp arrow."

The other virtue included in a regard to the good name of our neighbor, whether present or absent, is CANDOR; whereby 15 we cheerfully acknowledge the gifts of God in our neighbor, and interpret all his words and actions in a favorable sense. Matt. vii. 1. "judge not, that ye be not judged." Candor, however, is usually spoken of under the general name of charity or love. 1 Cor. xiii. 5, 6. "charity thinketh no evil
20 . . . rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things." Prov. x. 12. "love covereth all sins." xvii. 9. "he that covereth a transgression seeketh love." The same virtue appears also to be described under the name of equity or moderation. Philipp. iv. 5. "let your moderation
25 be known unto all men; the Lord is at hand." Eccles. x. 4. "yielding pacifieth great offences."

Opposed to this is, first, evil surmising. 1 Sam. i. 14. "how long wilt thou be drunken?" xxii. 8. "that all of you have me—. 2 Sam. x. 3. annon ut perscrutetur—. Act. xxviii. 4. ut barbari viderunt pendentem bestiam—. 1 Tim. vi. 4. ex quibus nascitur invidia, lis, maledicentiæ, suspiciones malæ.

conspired against me—.” 2 Sam. x. 3. “hath not David sent his servants unto thee to search the city—?” Acts xxviii. 4. “when the barbarians saw the venomous beast hang on his hand—.” 1 Tim. vi. 4. “whereof cometh envy, strife, rail-5 ings, evil surmisings—.”

Secondly, a prying into the faults of others, and a precipitancy in passing judgment upon them. Matt. vii. 3. “why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother’s eye?”

Thirdly, tale-bearing. Exod. xxiii. 1. “thou shalt not raise
10 a false report.” 1 Sam. xxiv. 9. “wherefore hearest thou men’s words, saying, Behold David seeketh thy hurt?” Prov. xviii. 8. “the words of a tale-bearer are as wounds.” See also xxvi. 22. xx. 19. “he that goeth about as a tale-bearer revealeth secrets.” xxvi. 20. “where there is no tale-bearer, strife ceas-
15 eth.” Rom. i. 29, 30. “whisperers, backbiters.” 1 Tim. v. 13. “tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not.”

Fourthly, calumny, which consists in a malicious construction of the motives of others. 1 Sam. xxii. 9. “I saw the son 20 of Jesse,” &c. Psal. cxix. 69. “the proud have forged a lie against me.” Matt. xxvi. 61. “this fellow said, I am able to destroy the temple of God.” Luke xi. 53, 54. “laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.” xix. 8. “if I have taken any-25 thing from any man by false accusation.” Acts ii. 13–15. “these men are full of new wine.”

Fifthly, evil speaking and slandering. Lev. xix. 16. “thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among thy people.”

- Job v. 21. "thou shalt be hid from the scourge of the tongue."
 Psal. xxxiv. 13. "keep thy tongue from evil." lii. 2. "thy tongue deviseth mischiefs." lix. 8. "behold, they belch out with their mouth." lxiv. 3, &c. "who whet their tongue like
 5 a sword—." cix. 2. "the mouth of the wicked and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me." cxx. 2. "deliver my soul, O Jehovah, from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue." cxl. 3. "they have sharpened their tongues like a serpent." Prov. x. 18. "he that uttereth a slander is a fool." Eccles. x.
 10 20. "curse not the king, no not in thy thought, and curse not the rich in thy bed-chamber; for a bird of the air shall carry the voice." Jer. ix. 3, &c. "they bend their tongues like their bow for lies." Matt. xii. 34. "how can ye, being evil, speak good things?" Col. iii. 8. "but now ye, put off all these . . .
 15 blasphemy."

Sixthly, contumely and personal abuse. Matt. v. 22. "who-soever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire."

- 20 Seventhly, litigiousness. Prov. xxv. 8-10. "go not forth hastily to strive—." Matt. v. 40. "if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." 1 Cor. vi. 7. "there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another; why do ye not rather take wrong?
 25 why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?"

Opposed to candor, on the other side, are, first, flattery. Job xxxii. 21, 22. "let me not, I pray you, accept any man's person, neither let me give flattering titles unto man." Psal.

præfatione—. Psal. xii. 3. labio blanditiarum. Prov. xxvi. 28. *ore blando perficit impulsione*m. et xxvii. 6. deprecanda sunt oscula osoris. et v. 14. qui benedicit amico suo voce magna mane—. et xxix. 5. qui blanditur amico suo—. 1 Thess. ii.

5 5. nec unquam sermone assentatorio usi sumus.

Perversa denique laus et vituperatio. Prov. iii. 31. ne invideto ulli violento—. et xvii. 15. qui absolvit improbum et qui condemnat iustum, abominatio Iehovæ sunt æque ambo. et xxiii. 17. ne æmuletur animus tuus peccatores—. 10 et xxiv. 24. dicentem improbo iustus es. Isa. v. 20. væ dicentibus de malo bonum. et xxxii. 5, 8. neque flagitioso amplius indetur nomen ingenui—.

Candori affines sunt simplicitas, fidelitas, gravitas, taciturnitas, comitas, urbanitas, loquendi libertas, et admonitio. 15
SIMPLICITAS est quæ ingenue et aperte cum proximo agit. Psal. cxvi. 6. servat simplices Iehova. Matt. x. 16. simplices ut columbæ. et xix. 14. sinite istos puerulos—: talium est enim regnum cœlorum. Marc. x. 15. quicumque non exceperit regnum Dei ut puerulus. 1 Cor. xiv. 20. ne estote pueri 20 prudentia, sed malitia infantes. et 2 Ep. i. 12. quod cum simplicitate et sinceritate Dei, non cum sapientia carnali, sed cum gratia Dei, versati sumus in mundo. et xi. 3. metuo, ne quo modo corruptæ cogitationes vestræ degenerent a simplicitate quæ erat erga Christum.

xii. 3. "Jehovah shall cut off all flattering lips." Prov. xxvi. 28. "a flattering mouth worketh ruin." xxvii. 6. "the kisses of an enemy are deceitful." v. 14. "he that blesseth his friend with a loud voice," &c. xxix. 5. "a man that flattereth his neighbor," &c. 1 Thess. ii. 5. "neither at any time used we 5 flattering words."

Secondly, unmerited praise or blame. Prov. iii. 31. "envy thou not the oppressor." xvii. 15. "he that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are 10 abomination to Jehovah." xxiii. 17. "let not thine heart envy sinners." xxiv. 24. "he that saith unto the wicked, Thou art righteous, him shall the people curse." Isa. v. 20. "woe unto them that call evil good—" xxxii. 5, 8. "the vile person shall be no more called liberal—."

15 Allied to candor are simplicity, faithfulness, gravity, taciturnity, courteousness, urbanity, freedom of speech, and the spirit of admonition.

SIMPLICITY consists in an ingenuous and open dealing with our neighbor. Psal. cxvi. 6. "Jehovah preserveth the simple."
20 Matt. x. 16. "be ye harmless as doves." xix. 14. "suffer little children . . . for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Mark x. 15. "whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." 1 Cor. xiv. 20. "be not children in understanding; howbeit in malice be ye chil-
25 dren." 2 Cor. i. 12. "that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world." xi. 3. "I fear, lest by any means . . . your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ."

Huic opponitur duplicitas. Psal. v. 7. virum dolosum abominatur lehova. et xii. 3. duplici corde loquuntur. et xxviii. 3, &c. loquentes pacem cum proximis suis, malitia obtinente in animo eorum. et cxx. 2. eripe me a labio falso,
 5 a lingua dolosa. Prov. iii. 29. ne fabricator contra proximum tuum rem malam—. et xvii. 20. versutus lingua sua incidet in malum. et xxvi. 24, &c. labiis suis alium se simulat osor, quum—. et v. 28. vir lingua fallace odit quos attriturus est—. Matt. ii. 8. exquirite de puerulo illo—.

10 Et credulitas. Prov. xiv. 15. fatuus credit omnibus rebus—.

FIDELITAS est quæ promissa præstat, et commissa sibi arcana retinet. Psal. xv. 4. iuratus in damnum suum, non tamen mutat. Prov. xi. 13. fidelis animo tegit rem. et xx. 19. revelanti arcanum,— ne admisceto te. et xxv. 9. arcanum alterius 15 ne retegito.

Promissa aut concessa beneficia an revocare liceat quæritur: et videtur quidem licere, si cui concesseris aut pollicitus fueris eum indignum plane eo beneficio comperies; ut legimus dominum illum talenta exegisse a debitore etiam postquam
 20 condonasset, quandoquidem eum cum suo conservo debitore crudelius egisse audierat: Matt. xviii. 27, 32, 34.

Huic opponitur promissio temeraria; re non satis perpensa.

Opposed to this are, first, duplicity. Psal. v. 6. "Jehovah will abhor the deceitful man." xii. 3. "with a double heart do they speak." xxviii. 3, &c. "which speak peace to their neighbors, but mischief is in their heart." cxx. 2. "deliver my 5 soul from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue." Prov. iii. 29. "devise not evil against thy neighbor." xvii. 20. "he that hath a perverse tongue falleth into mischief." xxvi. 24, &c. "he that hateth, dissembleth with his lips." v. 28. "a lying tongue hateth those that are afflicted by it." Matt. ii. 8. "go
10 and search diligently for the young child—."

Secondly, credulity. Prov. xiv. 15. "the simple believeth every word."

FAITHFULNESS is shown in the performance of promises, and the safe custody of secrets. Psal. xv. 4. "he that sweareth 15 to his own hurt, and changeth not." Prov. xi. 13. "he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter." xx. 19. "he that goeth about as a tale-bearer revealeth secrets, therefore meddle not with him—." xxv. 9. "discover not a secret to another."

It has been made matter of inquiry, whether it be lawful 20 to revoke a promise once made, or to recall a benefit once conferred. This would seem to be allowable, where the person on whom the promise or benefit was bestowed proves himself unworthy of our kindness. Thus the lord in the parable exacted the debt from his servant, in punishment for his cruelty
25 towards his fellow-servant, although he had before forgiven it him; Matt. xviii. 27, 32, 34.

Opposed to this are, first, precipitancy in making a promise, without due consideration of circumstances. Matt. xxvi.

Matt. xxvi. 35. etiamsi oportuerit me mori tecum, non te abnegabo.

Et garrulitas. Prov. xi. 13. ambulans detractioe revelat arcanum.

- 5 Et proditio. cuius exemplum insigne est Iudas Iscariotes.

GRAVITAS est dictorum factorumque moderatio quædam cum vultu ac gestu auctoritatis pleno, homine sancto proboque dignæ. Prov. xvii. 24. adest faciei prudentis sapientia; Eccles. vii. 30. sapientia hominis ita illustrat faciem eius, ut—.

- 10 Huic opponitur levitas. Prov. xvi. 22. eruditio stultorum est scaturigo stultitiæ. et xvii. 24. oculi stolidi vagantur ad extremitatem terræ. Eccles. ix. 22. animus sapientis adest dextræ ipsius, animus vero stolidi sinistræ ipsius.

- TACITURNITAS est quæ loquendi modum servat. Prov. x. 19. 15 cohibet labia sua intelligens. et xiii. 3. qui divaricat labia sua, contritio evenit ei. et xvii. 28. etiam stultus quiete consistens, sapiens reputatur; obturans labia sua, prudens

- Opponitur ei loquacitas. Prov. x. 14. ori stulti contritio propinqua est. et v. 19. multitudine verborum non cessabit defectio. et xviii. 7. labia stolidi tendicula vitæ eius. et xxix. 20. vidisti virum præcipitem verbis suis; expectatio est de stolido melior quam de illo. Iacob. iii. 8. linguam nullus hominum domare potest—.

- Et stultiloquium. Matt. xii. 36. quodcunque verbum otio- 25 sum locuti fuerint homines, de eo reddituros rationem in die iudicii. Eph. v. 4. stultiloquium.

35. "though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee."

Secondly, talkativeness. Prov. xi. 13. "a tale-bearer revealeth secrets."

Thirdly, treachery; of which Judas Iscariot is a signal 5 instance.

GRAVITY consists in an habitual self-government of speech and action, with a dignity of look and manner, befitting a man of holiness and probity. Prov. xvii. 24. "wisdom is before him that hath understanding." Eccles. viii. 1. "a man's wisdom
10 maketh his face to shine—."

Opposed to this is levity. Prov. xvi. 22. "the instruction of fools is folly." xvii. 24. "the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth." Eccles. x. 2. "a wise man's heart is at his right hand, but a fool's heart at his left."

15 TACITURNITY preserves a due moderation in our speech. Prov. x. 19. "he that refraineth his lips is wise." xiii. 3. "he that openeth wide his lips, shall have destruction." xvii. 28. "even a fool when he holdeth his peace is counted wise; and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding."

20 Opposed to this are, first, loquacity. Prov. x. 14. "the mouth of the foolish is near destruction." v. 19. "in the multitude of words there wanteth not sin." xviii. 7. "a fool's lips are the snare of his soul." xxix. 20. "seest thou a man that is hasty in his words? there is more hope of a fool than 25 of him." James iii. 8. "the tongue can no man tame."

Secondly, foolish talking. Matt. xii. 36. "every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." Eph. v. 4. "foolish talking."

Et taciturnitas nimia. 2 Reg. vii. 7. dies iste est dies boni nuntii, et nos taceremus?

COMITAS est qua nos affabiles et facile adeundos præbemus. 1 Pet. iii. 8. estote—proni, comes.

5 Opponitur ei morositas. 1 Sam. xxv. 17. ipse nequior est quam ut alloquar eum.

Et pertinacia. Prov. iv. 24. remove abs te perversitatem oris— et xiv. 3. ori stulti inest baculus superbiæ. et xvi. 26. ipse molestus molestiam affert sibi; nam reflectitur in ipsum
 10 os eius. et xviii. 6. sermone stolidi incunt contentionem, et os eius contusiones advocat. et xxvii. 22. si contunderes stultum in mortario cum mola pistillo, non recederet ab eo stultitia eius.

Et comitas simulata seu affectata. Qualis illa Absalomi, 15 2 Sam. xv. 3, 4. Psal. xii. 4. exscindet omnia labia blanda—

URBANITAS est qua non solum sermo honesto lepore et elegantia conditur, sed etiam qua aliquid acute atque apposite dicitur aut respondetur. Prov. xxiv. 26. labia osculabitur eius, qui respondet verba recta. et xxv. 11. velut mala aurea cum 20 figuris argenteis, est verbum dictum commode. 1 Reg. xviii. 27. ludificans eos Elia— Col. iv. 6. sermo vester semper cum gratia sit sale conditus, ut sciatis quomodo oporteat vos unicuique respondere.

Huic opponitur scurrilitas et dicacitas. Eph. iv. 29. nullus 25 sermo corruptus, ex ore vestro egreditor. et v. 4. obsœnitas,

Thirdly, excess of taciturnity. 2 Kings vii. 9. "this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace."

COURTEOUSNESS consists in affability and readiness of access. 1 Pet. iii. 8. "be ye pitiful, courteous."

5 Opposed to this are, first, churlishness. 1 Sam. xxv. 17. "he is such a son of Belial, that a man cannot speak to him."

Secondly, frowardness. Prov. iv. 24. "put away from thee a froward mouth." xiv. 3. "in the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride." xvi. 26. "he that laboreth, laboreth for him-10 self; for his mouth craveth it of him." xviii. 6. "a fool's lips enter into contention, and his mouth calleth for strokes." xxvii. 22. "though thou shouldest bray a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him."

15 Thirdly, false or constrained courtesy; as that of Absalom, 2 Sam. xv. 3, 4. Psal. xii. 3. "Jehovah shall cut off all flattering lips."

URBANITY comprehends not only the innocent refinements and elegances of conversation, but acuteness and appropriate-20 ness of observation or reply. Prov. xxiv. 26. "every man shall kiss his lips that giveth a right answer." xxv. 11. "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." 1 Kings xviii. 27. "Elijah mocked them—." Col. iv. 6. "let your speech be alway with grace seasoned with salt, that ye 25 may know how ye ought to answer every man."

Opposed to this are obscenity and double meanings. Eph. iv. 29. "let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth." v. 4. "neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor seu scurrilitas, et stultiloquium, et dicacitas, quæ non conveniunt. Col. iii. 8. deponite hæc omnia; iram—, verborum obscœnitatem ab ore vestro. Obscœnitas proprie neque in verbis neque in rebus est, sed in ipsa hominis turpitudine, qui 5 iis abutitur vel ad irrisionem, vel ad libidinem pravam. Itaque pro obscœnis habenda non sunt in Hebræo textu, quorum loco Iudæi alia in margine legenda velut honestiora scilicet proponunt; cum vehementiæ potius aut indignationi dicentis danda sint. nec illa Deut. xxii. 17. expandent pannum eius

 10 coram senioribus.

LIBERTAS LOQUENDI est qua veritatem intrepide loquimur. Exod. xi. 8. tum descendent omnes servi tui ad me—. Iob. xii. 3. etiam mihi est animus ut vobis, non inferior sum quam vos; et apud quem non sunt huiusmodi? 1 Sam. xiii. 13.
 15 dixit Samuel Sauli, stulte te gessisti; non observasti mandatum Iehovæ—. Psal. cxix. 42. respondebo probro afficienti me rem. Prov. xxvi. 5. responde stolido secundum stultitiam eius—. In Elia et Elisæo, 2 Reg. vi. 32. et sæpe alias. In Hanania, 2 Chron. xvi. 7. In Zacharia, cap. xxiv. 20. Isa.
 20 i. 10, 23. audite verbum Iehovæ—: principes tui contumaces, et socii furum—. Ier. xiii. 18. dic regi et augustæ, abiectissime considete—. Ezech. xxi. 30. tu profane improbe, o rex Israelis—. Micæ vii. 4. optimus istorum similis est spinæ—. Matt.

jesting, which are not convenient." Col. iii. 8. "but now ye also put off all these; anger . . . filthy communication out of your mouth." Obscenity, properly speaking, consists neither in word nor in action, but in the filthiness of his mind, who out of derision or wantonness perverts them from their proper import. Hence those expressions in the Hebrew Scriptures, for which the Jewish commentators substitute others in the margin which they esteem more decent, are not to be considered as obscene, but are to be attributed to the vehemence or indignation of the speaker. Neither are the words of Deut. xxii. 17. to be regarded as indecent; "they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city."

FREEDOM OF SPEECH consists in speaking the truth with boldness. Exod. xi. 8. "all these thy servants shall come down unto me." Job xii. 3. "I have understanding as well as you; I am not inferior to you: yea, who knoweth not such things as these?" 1 Sam. xiii. 13. "Samuel said unto Saul, Thou hast done foolishly: thou hast not kept the commandment of Jehovah." Psal. cxix. 42. "so shall I have wherewith to answer him that reproacheth me." Prov. xxvi. 5. "answer a fool according to his folly." This virtue is exemplified in Elijah and Elisha, 2 Kings vi. 32. and in many others; in Hanani, 2 Chron. xvi. 7. in Zechariah, xxiv. 20. Isa. i. 10, 23. "hear the word of Jehovah . . . thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves." Jer. xiii. 18. "say unto the king and to the queen, Humble yourselves, sit down." Ezek. xxi. 25. "and thou, profane wicked prince of Israel—" Micah vii. 4. "the best of them is a briar." Matt. iii. 7, "O

5 into the world, that I should bear witness to the truth." Acts xiii. 10. "O full of all subtlety," &c. xix. 8, 9. "he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing," &c. xxiii. 3. "thou whited wall." Eph. vi. 20. "that therein I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak." Tit.
10 i. 12. "the Cretians are alway liars."

Opposed to this is timidity in speaking the truth. 1 Sam. iii. 15. "Samuel feared to show Eli the vision."

The spirit of admonition is that by which we freely warn sinners of their danger, without respect of persons. Gen.
15 xxxvii. 2. "Joseph brought unto his father their evil report." Lev. v. 1. "if a soul sin . . . if he do not utter it, then he shall bear his iniquity." xix. 17. "thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart; thou shalt in anywise rebuke thy neighbor, and not suffer sin upon him." Psal. cxli. 5. "let the 20 righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness." Prov. vi. 23. "reproofs of instruction are the way of life." x. 17. "he that refuseth reproof erreth." xii. 1. "he that hateth reproof is brutish." xiii. 18. "he that regardeth reproof shall be honored." xv. 5. "he that regardeth reproof is prudent." v. 10.
25 "he that hateth reproof shall die." v. 32. "he that refuseth instruction despiseth his own soul." xvii. 10. "a reproof entereth more into a wise man, than an hundred stripes into a fool." xxiv. 25. "to them that rebuke him shall be delight."

CHAPTER XIV.

THE SECOND CLASS OF SPECIAL DUTIES
TOWARDS OUR NEIGHBOR
CONTINUED.

THE virtues by which we promote the WORLDLY INTERESTS OF OUR NEIGHBOR, are integrity and beneficence.

INTEGRITY consists in refraining from the property of others, which is also called abstinence; and in honesty and 5 uprightness as regards our dealings with our neighbor, which is called commutative justice. Psal. xv. 2. "he that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness."

ABSTINENCE is exemplified in Moses, Num. xvi. 15. "I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them";
10 and in Samuel, 1 Sam. xii. 3. "whose ox have I taken?" On this subject laws are given Deut. xxiii. 24, 25. "when thou comest into thy neighbor's vineyard," &c.

The opposites to this are, first, theft. Exod. xx. 15. "thou shalt not steal." See also Lev. xix. 11. Prov. xxix. 24. "whoso 15 is partner with a thief hateth his own soul." xxii. 28. "remove not the ancient land-mark." See also xxiii. 10. This was the crime of Judas Iscariot, John xii. 6. Eph. iv. 28. "let him that stole steal no more, but rather let him labor." Laws against theft are given Exod. xxii. Prov. vi. 30. "men do not
20 despise a thief, if he steal to satisfy his soul when he is hungry." xxviii. 24. "whoso robbeth his father or mother," &c. Zech. v. 3. "every one that stealeth shall be cut off—."

Fraudatio. Lev. xix. 11. neque fallacia utimini ullus in proximum suum. Cuius nulla expiatio sine restitutione: Lev. v. 21, &c. repandat—: deinde reatum suum afferto. Prov. xxi. 6. comportati thesauri—. 1 Thess. iv. 6. nequis super- 5 grediatur et habeat quæstui in negotio fratrem suum.

Oppressio et spoliatio. Iob. v. 15. qui servat a manu fortis egentem—. et xx. 18, 19, &c. quia quassavit, dereliquit tenues—. Prov. xiv. 31. qui opprimit tenuem—. et xxii. 22, 23. ne diripias tenuem—. et xxx. 14. generatio cuius dentes
 10 sunt gladii—. Eccles. v. 8. si oppressionem pauperis—. et vii. 7. cum oppressio adigat ad insaniam—. Isa. iii. 15, 16. rapina pauperis est in domibus vestris—. et v. 7, 8. væ coniungentibus domum domui—. Ier. ii. 34. in alis vestium tuarum—. et xxii. 13, &c. væ ædificanti domum suam iniusti-

Amos. iv. 1, &c. audite verbum istud vaccæ Bashanis, quæ opprimitis tenues—. et v. 11. eo quod calcaturam agitis contra tenuem—. et viii. 4, 5, &c. audite hoc, qui anhelatis deiecturi egentem—. Micæ ii. 1, 2. qui concupiscunt agros 20 quos rapiant—. et iii. 2, 3. rapientes cutem—.

Damnum datum. Exod. xxi. 33. ita si ceciderit illuc bos aut

Secondly, fraud. Lev. xix. 11. "ye shall not deal falsely one to another." Under the law, fraud could not be expiated unless restitution were previously made. Lev. vi. 5, &c. "he shall even restore it in the principal . . . and he shall bring 5 his trespass offering unto Jehovah." Prov. xxi. 6. "the getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a vanity—" 1 Thess. iv. 6. "that no man go beyond or defraud his brother in any matter."

Thirdly, oppression and robbery. Job v. 15. "he saveth the 10 poor from the hand of the mighty." xx. 18, 19. "because he hath oppressed and hath forsaken the poor—" Prov. xiv. 31. "he that oppresseth the poor reproacheth his neighbor." xxii. 22, 23. "rob not the poor," &c. xxx. 14. "there is a generation whose teeth are as swords." Eccles. v. 8. "if thou seest the 15 oppression of the poor," &c. vii. 7. "surely oppression maketh a wise man mad." Isa. iii. 14. "the spoil of the poor is in your houses." v. 7, 8. "woe unto them that join house to house," &c. Jer. ii. 34. "in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents." xxii. 13, &c. "woe unto him
20 that buildeth his house by unrighteousness—" Neh. v. 8. "we after our ability have redeemed our brethren—" Amos iv. 1. "hear this word, ye kine of Bashan, which oppress the poor—" v. 11. "forasmuch therefore as your treading is upon the poor—" viii. 4, 5, &c. "hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail—"
25 Micah ii. 1, 2. "they covet fields, and take them by violence." iii. 2, 3. "who pluck the skin off from them—"

Fourthly, injury. Exod. xxi. 33. "if an ox or an ass fall asinus—. et v. 35, 36. si ferierit bos unius bovem alterius—.

At si indicatum est bovem petulcum fuisse—. et xxii. 5, 6.

IUSTITIA COMMUTATIVA versatur in rebus vel emendis ven-

In rebus emendis vendendisque. Lev. xix. 36. trutina

Iustitiæ in rebus emendis et vendendis opponuntur variæ fraudes: Prov. xi. 26. comprimentem triticum—: Ezech.

- 5 Fifthly, man-stealing. Exod. xxi. 16. "he that stealeth a man, or selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death." Deut. xxiv. 7. "if a man be found stealing any of his brethren," &c. 1 Tim. i. 10. "men-stealers."

Under COMMUTATIVE JUSTICE are included all transactions
10 of purchase and sale, of letting and hire, of lending and borrowing, of keeping and restoring deposits.

Transactions of sale and purchase. Lev. xix. 36. "just balances, just weights—." xxv. 14. "if thou sell ought unto thy neighbor, or buyest ought of thy neighbor's hand, ye shall 15 not oppress one another." Prov. xvi. 11. "a just weight and balance are Jehovah's; all the weights of the bag are his work."

To justice in matters of sale and purchase, are opposed various frauds. Prov. xi. 26. "he that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him." Ezek. xxviii. 16. "by the multitude 20 of thy merchandise they have filled the midst of thee with violence—." So also when counterfeit or adulterated goods are sold for genuine. Amos viii. 6. "that we may sell the refuse of the wheat." Or when false weights and measures are employed. Lev. xix. 35. "ye shall do no unrighteousness
25 in judgment, in meteyard, in weight, or in measure." Deut. xxv. 13-15. "thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights, a great and a small—." Prov. xi. 1. "a false balance is abomination to Jehovah." xx. 10. "divers weights and divers measures, both of them are alike abomination to Jehovah." See also v. 23. Hos. xii. 7. "he is a merchant, the balances of deceit are in his hand." Amos viii. 5. "making the ephah small." Micah vi. 11. "shall I count them pure with the 5 wicked balances?" Or when the buyer, on his part, uses dishonest artifices in the conclusion of a bargain. Prov. xx. 14. "it is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer."

Transactions of letting or hire. Lev. xix. 13. "the wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until 10 the morning." Exod. xxii. 15. "if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire." Deut. xxiv. 14, 15. "thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in the land within thy gates." Mal. iii. 5. "against those that oppress the hireling in 15 his wages." James v. 4. "behold, the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth."

Lending and borrowing. Deut. xv. 7, &c. "if there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren . . . thou 20 shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need in that which he wanteth." Psal. xxxvii. 26. "he is ever merciful, and lendeth." cxii. 5. "a good man showeth favor, and lendeth." Matt. v. 42. "from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away." Luke vi. 35. "lend, hoping for nothing again."
25 Prov. xix. 17. "he that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth to Jehovah." The case of loans to such as are not poor is different. Exod. xxii. 14. "if a man borrow ought of his neighbor, and it be hurt, or die," &c. Psal. xxxvii. 21. "the wicked borroweth and payeth not again."

In accommodandis violatur iustitia fœnore iniquo. Iniquum autem est imprimis omne quod a paupere accipitur. Exod. xxii. 25. pauperi ne esto fœnerator. Lev. xxv. 35, 36, 37. quum facultatibus attenuato fratre tuo apud te vacillabit
 5 manus eius, tum confirmabis illum, etiam peregrinum aut inquilinum, ut vivat tecum: non accipies ab eo usuram aut fœnus, sed timebis a Deo tuo—, ut vivat frater tuus tecum—. Sic intelligitur Deut. xxiii. 19. ne dato in usuram fratri tuo, usuram pecuniæ, usuram cibi, usuram ullius rei quæ in 10 usuram datur.

Verum de usura cum multi varie sentiant, huiusque loci propria hæc disputatio sit, videamus nunc breviter quid sit de ea sentiendum.

Usuram plerique statuunt non omnem illicitam esse; sed 15 ex fine, modo, obiecto denique id iudicari.

Obiectum, id est, eum a quo fœnus accipere liceat, esse iis facultatibus quemcunque præditum ut rependere aliquid creditori possit.

Modum, quem charitas vel saltem æquitas constituat.

20 Finem, ut quisque non sui solum, sed et proximi rationem habeat.

Hæc conditiones si observentur, vituperari usuram non posse: et merito sane; absque his enim conditionibus vix ullæ pactiones, ulla commercia licita esse possunt. Usuram itaque

In loans, justice is violated by the exaction of immoderate interest; under which denomination all interest is included, which is taken from the poor. Exod. xxii. 25. "if thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not
 5 be to him as an usurer." Lev. xxv. 35, 36. "if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee, then thou shalt relieve him; yea, though he be a stranger or a sojourner, that he may live with thee: take thou no usury of him, or increase; but fear thy God, that thy brother may live with thee."
 10 This is the meaning of the command in Deut. xxiii. 19. "thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother, usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury."

As however much difference of opinion exists with regard to usury, and as the discussion belongs properly to this place,
 15 we will consider briefly what is to be determined on the subject. It is the opinion of most, that usury is not in all cases unlawful, but that its legality or illegality is determined by the purpose for which it is exacted, the rate of interest, and the party by whom it is paid; that with regard to the party, it
 20 may be lawfully received from any one possessed of sufficient property for payment; that the rate of interest should be such as is consistent with equity at least, if not with charity; and that in exacting it we should have a view not to our own interests exclusively, but also to those of our neighbor. Where these 25 conditions are observed, they maintain that usury is perfectly allowable; nor is it without reason that these limitations are added, since without these there is scarcely any species of compact or commercial intercourse which can be considered as per se ac simpliciter non magis improbandam esse quam cætera quævis commercii civilis genera, ipsa ratio demonstrat:

1. quia si simpliciter reprehendenda esset, non permisisset Deus ut Israelitæ ab extraneo fœnus acciperent, Deut. xxiii.

- 5 20. præsertim cum alibi præcipiat ne extraneo iniuriam facerent, sed omni potius humanitate, egenti præsertim, subvenirent: 2. si iumentis, fundis, tectis et similium fructus esse potest, cur non pecuniæ? quæ cum non inopiæ sublevandæ, sed lucri faciendi causa sæpe mutuo accipiat, accipienti
- 10 mutuo quam danti fructuosior esse solet. Terræ quidem Israeliticæ fructum Deus usuris addictum esse noluit, cærimoniali quadam significatione, quemadmodum et agros mancipio noluit vendi, Lev. xxv. 23. Usura igitur duntaxat ea nunc damnanda est, quæ aut in pauperes, aut lucri solius studio,
- 15 præter charitatem et æquitatem, exercetur: atque hac profecto ratione quævis commercia lucrosa non minus quam usura damnanda sunt; nec minus merentur ut eodem nomine quo usura, אִשָּׁרָה, a morsu nominentur. Talis igitur usura prohibetur, Exod. xxii. 25. si pecuniam mutuam dederis populo
- 20 meo, pauperi nempe qui est tecum, ne esto ei tanquam fœneculator— Lev. xxv. 35, 36, 37. ut supra: qui duo loci cum primi omnium hac de re occurrant, debent certe sequentibus et lucem dare, et eandem illam exceptionem singulis inferre:

lawful. That usury is in itself equally justifiable with any other kind of civil contract, is evident from the following considerations; first, that if it were in itself reprehensible, God would not have permitted the Israelites to lend upon
 5 usury to strangers, Deut. xxiii. 20. especially as he elsewhere commands them to do no hurt to the stranger, but on the contrary to assist him with every kind of good office, especially in case of poverty. Secondly, if it be lawful to receive profit for the use of cattle, lands, houses, and the like, why
 10 not of money also? which, when borrowed, as it often is, not from necessity, but for purposes of gain, is apt to be more profitable to the borrower than to the lender. It is true that God prohibited the Israelites from lending upon usury on the produce of their land; but this was for a reason purely cere-
 15 monial, in like manner as he forbad them to sell their land in perpetuity, Lev. xxv. 23. Under the gospel, therefore, that usury only is to be condemned which is taken from the poor, or of which the sole object is gain, and which is exacted without a regard to charity and justice; even as any other species
 20 of lucrative commerce carried on in the same spirit would be equally reprehensible, and equally entitled to the Hebrew name signifying "a bite." This therefore is the usury prohibited Exod. xxii. 25. "if thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer."
 25 Lev. xxv. 35-37. as above. These are the earliest passages in which the subject occurs; they ought therefore to be considered as illustrating by anticipation those which come after, and the exception contained in them as applying equally to all

Deut. xxiii. 19. ut supra: Psal. xv. 5. qui pecuniam suam non exponit fœnori. Prov. xxviii. 8. qui auget substantiam suam usura et fœnore, gratiose largituro tenuibus congregaverit eam: Ezech. xviii. 8. in usuram non dedit, et fœnus non acceperit, ab iniquitate retraxerit manum suam—.

Iustitia in rebus custodiendis est quæ in depositis ac pignoribus repetendis aut restituendis observatur: de qua Exod. xxii. 7. si quis dederit proximo pecuniam aut suppellectilia ad servandum—. Sic. v. 10, 11. Ezech. xviii. 7. neminem oppres-

other occasions on which usury is mentioned: Deut. xxiii. 19. as above. Psal xv. 5. "he that putteth not out his money to usury . . . shall never be moved." Prov. xxviii. 8. "he that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall 5 gather it for him that will pity the poor." Ezek. xviii. 8. "he that hath not given forth upon usury, neither hath taken any increase, that hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity—."

Justice as regards the safe custody of property, is concerned in the demand or restitution of pledges, and of deposits in 10 trust; on which subject see Exod. xxii. 7. "if a man shall deliver unto his neighbor money or stuff to keep," &c. See also v. 10, 11. Ezek. xviii. 7. "hath not oppressed any, but hath restored to the debtor his pledge." Under what limitations a pledge may be received from a poor man, is seen Exod.
 15 xxii. 26. "if thou at all take thy neighbor's raiment to pledge," &c. Deut. xxiv. 6. "no man shall take the upper or nether millstone to pledge." The same chapter enjoins a regard to humanity in the taking of pledges, v. 10. "thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge."

20 Thus far of commutative justice. Under the same head may be classed MODERATION, which consists in voluntarily conceding some portion of an acknowledged right, or in abandoning it altogether. Gen. xiii. 9. "if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, 25 then I will go to the left."

BENEFICENCE consists in rendering willing assistance to our neighbor out of our own abundance; particularly to the poor within our reach. Lev. xix. 9. "when ye reap the harvest of 5 or a sojourner; that he may live with thee." Prov. iii. 27, 28. "withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it; say not unto thy neighbor, Go, and come again, and to-morrow I will give, when thou hast it by thee." Luke vi. 30. "give to every one that

"as we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them that are of the household of faith." 1 Thess. v. 15.  15 do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." Concerning the proper mode of receiving benefits, see above on MAGNANIMITY.

Beneficence, as shown in public distributions of any kind, is called LIBERALITY. Psal. cxii. 5. "a good man sheweth favor, 20 and lendeth." Prov. xi. 24, 25. "there is that scattereth, and yet increaseth—" xxi. 26. "the righteous giveth and spareth not." Eccles. xi. 1. "cast thy bread on the waters."

Opposed to liberality are, first, niggardliness, which gives nothing, or sparingly, or with a grudging mind. Prov. xxiii.
 25 6-8. "eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye, neither desire thou his dainty meats."

Secondly, prodigality. Prov. xxi. 20. "there is treasure to be desired, and oil in the dwelling of the wise, but a foolish man spendeth it up."

Beneficentia in maioribus, sive privatis sive publicis, beneficiis MAGNIFICENTIA nominatur. Exemplum est in Davide: 1 Chron. xxix. 2, &c. omnibus quidem viribus meis præparavi pro domo Dei mei, aurum ad aurea—: et amplius, quando
 5 quidem propendeo voluntate erga domum Dei mei, quod est mihi peculium—. In Iudæis reducibus, Ezræ ii. 68, 69. quidam sponte se offerentes ad domum Dei statuendum in sede ipsius, pro facultate sua dederunt—.

Beneficentiæ respondet GRATITUDO: qua quis beneficium pro
 10 beneficio reddit, aut gratiam. 2 Sam. ix. 1. dixit David, an nullus est adhuc qui relictus sit de familia Saulis ut exerceam erga eum benignitatem propter Ionathanem. et xix. 34, &c. dixit rex Barzillai; tu progredere mecum, et sustentabo te—.
 1 Reg. ii. 7. erga filios—Barzillai Gileaditæ exerceto benigni-
 15 nitatem—.

Contraria est ingratitude. Prov. xvii. 13. qui reddit malum pro bono, non amovetur malum a domo illius. Eccles. ix. 15. liberavit civitatem, nec tamen quisquam recordatus est viri indigi illius.

Beneficence, whether private or public, when exercised on an extraordinary scale, is called MAGNIFICENCE. This is exemplified in David, 1 Chron. xxix. 2. "I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God, the gold for things to be made
 5 of gold . . . moreover, because I have set my affection to the house of my God, I have of mine own proper good," &c. and in the Jews who returned from captivity, Ezra ii. 68, 69. "some offered freely for the house of God to set it up in its place; they gave after their ability unto the treasure of the work."

10 Corresponding with beneficence is GRATITUDE, which is shown in the requital, or, where this is impossible, in the thankful sense of a kindness. 2 Sam. ix. 1. "David said, Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul, that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake?" xix. 34, &c. "the king
 15 said unto Barzillai, Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me—" 1 Kings ii. 7. "show kindness unto the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite."

Opposed to this is ingratitude. Prov. xvii. 13. "whoso rewardeth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house."
 20 Eccles. ix. 15. "he by his wisdom delivered the city, yet no man remembered that same poor man."

OF THE RECIPROCAL DUTIES OF MAN
TOWARDS HIS NEIGHBOR; AND
DUTIES.

THUS far we have treated of the virtues or special duties which man owes to his neighbor simply as such; we are next to consider those which originate in circumstances of particular relationship. These duties are 5 either private or public.

The private duties are partly domestic, and partly such as are exercised towards those not of our own house. Gen. xviii. 19. "I know him, that he will command his children, and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of Jehovah."
10 1 Tim. v. 8. "if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel."

Under domestic duties are comprehended the reciprocal obligations of husband and wife, parent and child, brethren 15 and kinsmen, master and servant.

THE DUTIES OF HUSBAND AND WIFE are mutual or personal.

Mutual duties. 1 Cor. vii. 3. "let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence, and likewise also the wife unto the husband."

20 The personal duties appertaining to either party respectively are, first, those of the husband. Exod. xxi. 10, 11. "her

- Uxoris. food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage shall he not diminish; and if he do not these three unto her," &c. Prov. v. 18, 19. "rejoice with the wife of thy youth." Esther i. 22. "every man should bear rule in his own house." 1 Cor. xi. 3.

5 "I would have you know that the head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the man." Eph. v. 25. "husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church." Col. iii. 19. "husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them." 1 Pet. iii. 7. "likewise, ye husbands, dwell with 10 them according to knowledge, giving honor unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel." The contrary is reprov'd Mal. ii. 13, 14, &c. "Jehovah hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast dealt treacherously—" Prov. v. 20, 21. "why wilt thou, my son, be ravished with a 15 strange woman?"

Personal duties of the wife. Prov. xiv. 1. "every wise woman buildeth her house." xix. 14. "a prudent wife is from Jehovah." xxxi. 11, &c. "the heart of her husband doth safely trust in her." 1 Cor. xi. 3, &c. "the woman is the glory

20 of the man; for the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man." Eph. v. 22-24. "wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord; for the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church, and he is the Savior of the body; therefore as the church is sub-

25 ject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing." Col. iii. 18. "wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord." Tit. ii. 4, 5. "that they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their hustes, temperantes, castæ, domi manentes, bonæ, quæ sese subiiciant propriis viris; ne sermo Dei blasphemetur. 1 Pet. iii. 1, &c. uxores sese subiiciant suis viris; ut—. Monet idem ipsa mulieris origo: Gen. ii. 22. extruxit illam costam, quam

Prov. ix. 13. mulier stolida strepera est—. et vii. 11. in cuius domo non pedes eius. et xiv. 1. stulta autem manibus suis destruit eam. et xix. 13. stillæ continua iurgia mulieris. et xxvii. 15.

bands, to love their children, to be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed." 1 Pet. iii. 1, &c. "likewise, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands," &c. The same
 5 is implied in the original formation of the woman: Gen. ii. 22. "the rib which Jehovah had taken from man, made he a woman"; it cannot therefore be fitting that a single member, and that not one of the most important, should be independent of the whole body, and even of the head. Finally, such is the 10 express declaration of God: Gen. iii. 16. "he shall rule over thee."

Offences against these duties. Exod. iv. 25. "a bloody husband art thou to me." Job ii. 9. "then said his wife unto him, Dost thou still retain thine integrity?" &c. 2 Sam. vi. 20.
 15 "Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said," &c. Prov. ix. 13. "a foolish woman is clamorous." vii. 11. "her feet abide not in her house." xiv. 1. "the foolish plucketh it down with her hands." xix. 13. "the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping." See also xxvii. 15. xxi. 9.
 20 "it is better to dwell in a corner of the house top, than with a brawling woman in a wide house." v. 19. "it is better to dwell in the wilderness, than with a contentious and an angry woman." See also xxv. 24. Eccles. vii. 26. "I find more bitter than death the woman whose heart is snares and nets, and her
 25 hands as bands: whoso pleaseth God shall escape from her, but the sinner shall be taken by her." Above all, adultery: Deut. xxii. 14, 20. "I took this woman, and when I came unto her, I found her not a maid . . . if this thing be true," &c.

PARENTUM OFFICIA docentur. Deut. iv. 9. ut notas facias eas filiis tuis et nepotibus tuis. et vi. 6, 7. erunt ista verba quæ ego præcipio tibi hodie in corde tuo; eaque diligenter ingeres filiis tuis. Prov. xiii. 24. qui cohibet virgam suam, odit filium suum: qui autem amat eum, tempestive procurat eruditionem ei. et xix. 18. castiga filium tuum dum spes est; et ad perniciem eius ne condonato animus tuus. et xxii. 6. instrue puerum pro ratione viæ ipsius, etiam quum valde senuerit non recedet ab illa. et v. 15. stultitiam alligatam animo pueri, eam virga eruditionis amovebit procul ab ipso. et xxiii. 13, 14. ne subtrahito a puero castigationem; quum percusseris eum virga non morietur: tu virga percutito eum, et animam eius a sepulchro eripies. et xxix. 15, 17. virga et correptio dat sapientiam—. Lament. iii. 27, 28. bene est viro huic quum tulerit iugum in pueritia sua—. Deut. xxi. 18, 19, 20. Si cui fuerit filius contumax et rebellis, qui non auscultat voci patris sui et voci matris suæ quamvis castigaverint eum—. Eph. vi. 4. vos patres, ne irritate filios vestros, sed enutrite eos disciplina et admonitione Domini. Col. iii. 21. patres, ne irritate liberos vestros; ne concidant animo.

Opposita sunt indulgentia: qualis erat Eli sacerdotis, 1 Sam. ii. et Davidis erga Absalomum; et Adoniam, 1 Reg. i. 6. quem pater eius nunquam dolore afficiebat dicendo, Quare ita facis? Gen. xxv. 28. amabat Isaac Esauum, quia venatio—.

THE DUTIES OF PARENTS are inculcated. Deut. iv. 9. "teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons." vi. 6, 7. "these words which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart, and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children." Prov. 5 xiii. 24. "he that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." Prov. xix. 18. "chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying." xxii. 6. "train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." v. 15. "foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." xxiii. 13, 14. "withhold not correction from the child; for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die: thou shalt beat him with the rod, and deliver his soul from hell." xxix. 15, 17. "the rod and reproof 15 give wisdom." Lam. iii. 27, 28. "it is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth." Deut. xxi. 18-20. "if a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and that when they have chastened him will not hearken unto them." Eph. 20 vi. 4. "ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Col. iii. 21. "fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged."

The opposites are, first, unbounded indulgence; as that of 25 Eli the priest, 1 Sam. ii. and of David towards his sons Absalom and Adonijah, 1 Kings i. 6. "whom his father had not displeased at any time in saying, Why hast thou done so?" Gen. xxv. 28. "Isaac loved Esau, because he did eat of his venison."

Et nimia severitas. 1 Sam. xiv. 45. omnino moriturus es Ionathan.

LIBERORUM officia præcipiuntur. Gen. ix. 23, &c. tum accepit Sem pallium eius—. et xxiv. 15, &c. cum hydria sua humero suo imposita. et xxix. 9. advenit cum pecudibus quæ erant patris sui—. Exod. ii. 16. hauriebant aquam—, ut adaquarent greges patris sui. et xviii. 7. processit Moses obviam socero suo—. et xx. 12. honora patrem tuum—. Lev. xix. 3. quisque matrem suam et patrem suum timetote. 1 Sam. xx. 32. dixit Ionathan Sauli, quare morte afficeretur? quid fecit? 1 Reg. ii. 19. quum venisset Bathsheba ad regem—, assurgens rex—. Prov. i. 8. audi fili mi eruditionem patris tui, neque deseras doctrinam matris tuæ. et vi. 20, 21. custodi, fili mi, præceptum patris tui—. et xxiii. 22, 24, 25. ausculta patri tuo qui genuit te, neque contemnas quum senuerit matrem tuam—. Ier. xxxv. 5, 6. pater noster interdixit nobis dicendo—. Eph. vi. 1, 2, 3. liberi, auscultate in Domino parentibus vestris: id enim est iustum: honora—. Col. iii. 20. filii auscultate parentibus in omnibus: hoc enim placet Domino. 1 Tim. v. 4. si qua vidua liberos aut nepotes habet, discant prius in propriam domum pietatem exercere, et vicem rependere parentibus: hoc enim est honestum et acceptum in conspectu Dei.

Exempla contraria sunt in Chamo, Gen. ix. 22. respiciens Cham nuditatem patris sui—. Exod. xxi. 15. qui percutit patrem suum aut matrem suam, omnino morte plectitor. et

Secondly, excessive severity. 1 Sam. xiv. 44. "thou shalt surely die, Jonathan."

THE DUTIES OF CHILDREN are prescribed. Gen. ix. 23. "Shem and Japheth took a garment—" xxiv. 15, &c. "with her
 5 pitcher upon her shoulder—" xxix. 9. "Rachel came with her father's sheep." Exod. ii. 16. "they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock." xviii. 7. "Moses went out to meet his father-in-law." xx. 12. "honor thy father and thy mother." Lev. xix. 3. "ye shall 10 fear every man his mother and his father." 1 Sam. xx. 32. "Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain? what hath he done?" 1 Kings ii. 19. "Bathsheba went unto king Solomon . . . and the king rose up to meet her." Prov. i. 8. "my son, hear the in-
 15 struction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother." vi. 20, 21. "my son, keep thy father's commandment." xxiii. 22, 24, 25. "hearken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old." Jer. xxxv. 5, 6. "our father commanded us, saying—" Eph. vi. 1-3. "children, 20 obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right: honor thy father," &c. Col. iii. 20. "children, obey your parents in all things; for this is well pleasing unto the Lord." 1 Tim. v. 4. "if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn first to show piety at home, and to requite their parents, for that 25 is good and acceptable before God."

Contrary to the above is the conduct of Ham, Gen. ix. 22. "Ham saw the nakedness of his father." Exod. xxi. 15. "he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to

"ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or mother, It is a gift . . . and honor
- 15 not his father or mother, he shall be free." See also Mark vii. 11, 12. Also an extravagant and preposterous regard. Matt. viii. 21, 22. "suffer me first to go and bury my father."

Analogous to the relation of parent and child are those of guardian and ward, teacher and pupil, elder and younger;

20 in a word, of superior and inferior, whatever be the ground of distinction.

For the duties of GUARDIANS, see 2 Kings xi. 4, &c. "he showed them the king's son," &c.

The duties of WARDS. 2 Kings xii. 2. "Jehoash did that which

CHAPTER XVI.

OF THE REMAINING CLASS OF PRIVATE DUTIES.

THUS far of domestic duties. We are next to speak of those which are exercised towards strangers.

The principal virtues in this class are almsgiving and hospitality.

- 5 ALMSGIVING CONSISTS IN AFFORDING RELIEF TO THE POOR, ESPECIALLY TO SUCH AS ARE BRETHREN, IN PROPORTION TO OUR MEANS, OR EVEN BEYOND THEM, WITHOUT OSTENTATION, AND FROM THE MOTIVE OF TRUE CHARITY. Exod. xxiii. 11. "the seventh year thou shalt let the land rest, and lie still, that the
10 poor of thy people may eat." Deut. xv. 2. "this is the manner of the release," &c. v. 11. "thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor and to thy needy, in thy land." xxiv. 19-21. "when thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field—." Luke iii. 11. "he that hath two coats, let him impart
15 to him that hath none." xiv. 12-14. "when thou makest a dinner . . . call not thy friends . . . lest they also bid thee again . . . but call the poor, the lame," &c. xvi. 9. "make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, that 20 when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." Christ himself, although poor, set us an example of this virtue. John xiii. 29. "that he should give something to the poor." Eph. iv. 28. "rather let him labor . . . that he may have to give to him that needeth."

PRO FACULTATIBUS. Matt. x. 42. quicumque potum dederit uni ex his parvis poculum frigida solum—. Luc. xi. 41. ea quæ penes vos sunt date in eleemosynam. Act. iii. 6. argentum et aurum non est mihi; quod autem habeo, hoc tibi do—.

5 2 Cor. viii. 12, 13. si adsit promptus animus aliquis acceptus est pro eo quod habet, non pro eo quod non habet—.

VEL ETIAM ULTRA. Luc. xxi. 4. hi omnes ex eo quod sibi redundat, immiserunt quæ donarent Deo; hæc autem immisit ex penuria sua totum victum quem habebat. 2 Cor. viii. 3.

10 pro viribus (testor) atque supra vires voluntarii fuerunt. Sed tamen, 2 Cor. viii. 13. non dico ut aliis sit relaxatio, vobis autem afflictio; sed ut pari conditione quod vobis superest suppleat hoc tempore quod illis deest. Et hic quoque geometrica proportio adhibenda est non arithmetica, ut unius-

15 cuiusque ratio habeatur pro ordine et gradu dignitatis, pro conditione vitæ educationisque, ne absurda æquatio inæquale fiat.

EGENTI: nimirum qui se sua opera aut industria sustentare non potest. Lev. xxv. 35. quum attenuato fratre tuo apud te, 20 vacillabit manus eius, tunc confirmabis illum, etiam peregrinum—. Deut. xv. 7, &c. si fuerit apud te egens quispiam—. 2 Thess. iii. 10. si quis nolit operari, etiam ne edito. Non igitur sponte vagis et mendicis: 2 Thess. iii. 11, 12.

IN PROPORTION TO OUR MEANS. Matt. x. 42. "whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in my name—" Luke xi. 41. "rather give alms of such things as ye have." Acts iii. 6. "silver and gold have I none, but 5 such as I have give I thee." 2 Cor. viii. 12, 13. "if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not."

OR EVEN BEYOND THEM. Luke xxi. 4. "all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God, but she of her 10 penury hath cast in all the living that she had." 2 Cor. viii. 3. "to their power, I bear record, yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves." He subjoins however, v. 13. "I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened; but by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may 15 be a supply for their want." On this, as on similar occasions, we are to be guided by geometrical rather than by arithmetical proportion, regulating our bounty according to the rank and dignity, the education and previous condition of each individual; lest we fall into the absurdity of equalizing those 20 whom nature never intended for an equality.

TO THE POOR; that is, to such as are unable to support themselves by their own labor and exertions. Lev. xxv. 35. "if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee, then thou shalt relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger." Deut.
 25 xv. 7, &c. "if there be among you a poor man," &c. 2 Thess. iii. 10. "if any would not work, neither should he eat." Hence we are not bound to relieve those vagrants and beggars who are such of choice, and not of necessity. v. 11, 12. "we hear audivimus enim quosdam ambulare inter vos inordinate, nihil agentes, sed inaniter satagentes: iis autem qui sunt istiusmodi denuntiamus et hortamur eos per Dominum nostrum Iesum Christum, ut cum quiete operantes pane suo vescantur.

- 5 Egentibus annumerandi sunt orphani et viduæ; propter illorum ætatem, harum solitudinem opis indigentem. Exod. xxii. 22, 23, 24. nullam viduam aut orphanum affligitote—. Deut. x. 18. agit causam pupillæ et viduæ—. et xiv. 28, 29. a fine trium annorum depromito omnes decimas—: quem
10 venientes peregrini pupillique et viduæ comedant—. et xxvii. 19. maledictus qui pervertit ius pupilli aut viduæ. Iob. xxix. 11, &c. me eripere pauperem vociferantem, pupillumque—. et xxxi. 16, &c. si cohibui me ab optato tenuium, aut oculos viduæ confeci, et comedi frustum cibi mei solus, ac non

- Et quacunque ratione debiles aut inopes atque afflicti, religionis maxime causa. Isa. lviii. 7. ut partiaris esurienti panem tuum, et pauperes eiectos introducas domum; quum videris nudum, ut tegas eum; et a carne tua non abscondas te. Matt.

that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busybodies; now them that are such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread." Among the 5 poor are to be reckoned orphans and widows, on account of the desolate situation of the one, and the tender age of the other. Exod. xxii. 22–24. "ye shall not afflict any widow or fatherless child." Deut. x. 18. "he doth create the judgment of the fatherless and widow." xiv. 28, 29. "at the end of
10 three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase . . . and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied." xxvii. 19. "cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the fatherless or widow." Job xxix. 11, &c.
15 "because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless—" xxxi. 16. "if I have withheld the poor from their desire, or have caused the eyes of the widow to fail; or have eaten my morsel myself alone, and the fatherless have not eaten thereof." Psal. lxviii. 5. "a father of the fatherless, and a judge
20 of the widows, is God in his holy habitation." cxlvi. 9. "he relieveth the fatherless and widow." Prov. xxiii. 10, 11. "enter not into the fields of the fatherless; for their redeemer is mighty." To these may be added such as are weak or helpless from any cause whatever, and all who are in affliction, 25 especially for religion's sake. Isa. lviii. 7. "is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?"

xxv. 36. nudus, et amicum vestrum me; agrotus—. Luc. xiv. 13. voca mendicos, mancos, claudos, cæcos. Heb. vi. 10. non enim iniustus est Deus, ut obliviscatur operis vestri et laboriosæ charitatis, quam ostendistis erga ipsius nomen: ut qui 5 ministraveritis sanctis et ministretis.

SINE OSTENTATIONE. Prov. xxi. 14. donum in abdito avertit iram, et munus in sinu excandescit vehementer. Matt. vi. 1, &c. quum præstabis eleemosynam—neurato buccina cani—. 2 Cor. viii. 24. itaque demonstrationem charitatis 10 vestræ et nostræ de vobis gloriationis, edite in eos, in conspectu ecclesiarum.

EX VERA CHARITATE. 1 Cor. xiii. 3. si frustulatim distribuero omnia quæ mihi suppetunt, et si tradam corpus meum ut comburam, charitatem autem non habeam, hoc mihi nihil prodest.
 15 Non ergo coacte. 2 Cor. viii. 3. voluntarii fuerunt. et v. 8. non ex imperio dico, sed aliorum studio vestræ quoque dilectionis sinceritatem reddens exploratam.

Eleemosynarum præmium in scripturis passim magnum declaratur. Iob. xxix. a v. 11. usque ad finem cap.; nam
 20 auris audiens beatum prædicabat me,— me eripere pauperem vociferantem—. Psal. xli. 2. beatus qui attendit ad attenuatum; tempore mali liberabit eum Iehova. et cxii. 9. cum
 2 Cor. ix. 8, 9. potens est Deus efficere ut omnis gratia in vos exundet, ut in omnibus omni tempore omne quod sufficiat
 25 habentes, exundetis ad omne opus bonum: sicut scriptum est; Dispersit, dedit pauperibus: iustitia eius manet in sæculum—. Prov. xiv. 21. qui gratiam facit pauperibus, o beatum

Matt. xxv. 36. "naked, and ye clothed me; sick," &c. Luke xiv. 13. "call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind." Heb. vi. 10. "God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love which ye have showed toward his name, in that 5 ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister."

WITHOUT OSTENTATION. Prov. xxi. 14. "a gift in secret pacifieth anger, and a reward in the bosom strong wrath." Matt. vi. 1, &c. "when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee—" 2 Cor. viii. 24. "wherefore show ye to 10 them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf."

OUT OF TRUE CHARITY. 1 Cor. xiii. 3. "though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, I am nothing." Not there-

Scripture everywhere declares that the reward of alms-20 giving is great. Job xxix. 11-25. "when the ear heard me, then it blessed me . . . because I delivered the poor that cried," &c. Psal. xli. 1. "he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." 1 Tim. vi. 18, 19. "laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they 20 may lay hold on eternal life."

On the other hand, the neglect of this duty is condemned, Prov. xxi. 13. "whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard." xxviii. 27. "he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse." Matt.
 25 xxv. 45. "inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me." 2 Cor. ix. 6. "he which soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly."

HOSPITALITY consists in receiving under our own roof, or providing for the kind reception of the poor and strangers; especially such as are recommended to us by the churches, or by our brethren in the faith. Deut. xxiii. 7, 8. "thou shalt not abhor an Edomite, for he is thy brother; thou shalt not abhor

 5 an Egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his land." Job xxxi. 32. "the stranger did not lodge in the street—" Rom. xii. 13. "distributing to the necessity of saints, given to hospitality." xvi. 2. "that ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath
 10 need of you, for she hath been a succorer of many, and of myself also." Heb. xiii. 2. "be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." 1 Pet. iv. 9. "use hospitality one to another without grudging." 3 John 5, 6, &c. "beloved, thou doest faithfully
 15 whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers; which have borne witness of thy charity before the church." The reward of a hospitable spirit is signally exemplified in the woman of Sarepta, and in the Shunammite, who received prophets under their roof.

20 Injury or oppression of guests or strangers was forbidden by various laws, recorded Exod. xxii. 21, &c. Lev. xix. 33, 34. Deut. x. 18, 19.

Opposed to this is inhospitality. Deut. xxvii. 19. "cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the stranger." Ezek.
 25 xxii. 29. "they have vexed the poor and needy, yea, they have oppressed the stranger wrongfully." 3 John 10. "not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church."

CHAPTER XVII.
OF PUBLIC DUTIES TOWARDS
OUR NEIGHBOR.

HITHERTO we have treated of the private duties of man towards his neighbor. Public duties are of two kinds, political and ecclesiastical.

Under political duties are comprehended the obligations of 5 the magistrate and the people to each other, and to foreign nations.

THE DUTIES OF THE MAGISTRATE TO THE PEOPLE are described Exod. xxiii. 8. "thou shalt take no gift, for the gift blindeth the wise." xxxii. 11. "Moses besought Jehovah his God, and 10 said, Jehovah, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people?" Lev. xix. 15. "thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty; but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbor." Num. xi. 11, &c.
"wherefore have I not found favor in thy sight, that thou 15 layest the burden of all this people upon me?" xiv. 13.
"Moses said unto Jehovah, Then the Egyptians shall hear it—." Deut. i. 9. "I am not able to bear you myself alone."
xvii. 20. "that his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment to the 20 right hand or to the left." 1 Kings ii. 3. "keep the charge of Jehovah thy God—" iii. 8–10. "give thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people—" See also 2 Chron.
i. 10. 1 Chron. xiii. 2. "David said unto all the congregation

The following texts show what is contrary to the duties of the magistrate. Psal. xxvi. 10. “their right hand is full of bribes.” xciv. 20. “shall the throne of iniquity have fellow-10 ship with thee?” Prov. xvii. 23. “a wicked man taketh a gift out of the bosom to pervert the ways of judgment.” xxi. 7. “they refuse to do judgment.” xxviii. 15, 16. “as a roaring lion and a ranging bear, so is a wicked ruler over the poor people.” xxix. 4. “he that receiveth gifts overthroweth the 15 land.” v. 12. “if a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked.” Eccles. iv. 13. “better is a poor and wise child, than an old and foolish king who will no more be admonished.” x. 5, 6. “there is an evil which I have seen under the sun, as an error which proceedeth from the ruler; folly is set in great
 20 dignity—.” v. 16, 17. “woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning.” Isa. i. 23. “thy princes are rebellious and companions of thieves, every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards, they judge not the fatherless, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto 25 them.” iii. 4. “I will give children to be their princes, and babes shall rule over them.” v. 12. “as for my people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them.” v. 14. “Jehovah will enter into judgment with the ancients of his populi sui—. et v. 23. absolventibus improbum propter munus—. et x. 12. animadvertam in fructum insolentis animi regis Assyriæ—. Ezech. xxix. 3, &c. ecce me contra te, o Pharao rex Ægypti—. Amos. v. 7. mutantes in absinthium ius—. et vi. 12. idem. Micæ iii. 11. quorum primores munere iudicant—. et vii. 3. princeps poscit, et iudex pro retributione—.

Aulicorum nequitia perspicitur, Gen. xii. 15. nam visa ea principes Pharaonis laudaverunt eam apud Pharaonem—.
 10 Prov. xxv. 4. ut—: ita auferendo improbum a conspectu regis, stabilitur iustitia solium eius. 2 Chron. xxiv. 17. post mortem Iehoiadæ venientes principes Iehudæ—. Isa. xxii. 15, 16. age, accede adiutorem istum, Sebnam, qui præest domui—.
 1 Reg. xxi. 7. dixit ei Iezebel uxor eius, tunc nunc exerces
 15 regnum super Israele—. Esth. iii. 6. sed quum sperneret in oculis suis mittere manum in Mordecaium solum—. et v. 9. si apud regem bonum videtur, scribatur ut perdant eos—. Dan. vi. 8. consilium invenerunt omnes Eparchi regni, &c.

20 Magistratuum imprimis est religionem et cultum Dei, præsertim publicum fovere, et ecclesiam revereri. Isa. xlix. 23. erunt reges nutricii tui et fœminæ principes eorum nutrices tuæ; vultu in terram demisso incurvabunt se habentes honorem tibi, pulveremque pedum tuorum lingent. Non nempe
 25 indigere magistratuum curatione ecclesias, sed propriis legibus people—.” v. 23. “which justify the wicked for reward.”

 x. 12. “I will punish the fruit of the stout heart of the king of Assyria.” Ezek. xxix. 3. “behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt,” &c. Amos v. 7. “ye who turn judgment 5 to wormwood—.” See also vi. 12. Micah iii. 11. “the heads thereof judge for reward—.” vii. 3. “the prince asketh, and the judge asketh for a reward.”

The licentiousness of courts is exposed, Gen. xii. 15. “the princes also of Pharaoh saw her and commended her before 10 Pharaoh.” Prov. xxv. 5. “take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne shall be established in righteousness.”
 2 Chron. xxiv. 17. “after the death of Jehoiada came the princes of Judah,” &c. Isa. xxii. 15, 16. “get thee unto this treasurer, even unto Shebna, which is over the house,” &c.
 15 1 Kings xxi. 7. “Jezebel his wife said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel?” Esth. iii. 6. “he thought scorn to lay hands on Mordecai alone—.” v. 9. “if it please the king, let it be written that they may be destroyed.” Dan.
 vi. 7. “all the presidents of the kingdom . . . have consulted 20 together to make a royal decree—.”

It is especially the duty of the magistrate to encourage religion and the service of God, public worship in particular, and to reverence the church. Isa. xlix. 23. “kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers; 25 they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet.” That the church, however, does not stand in need of the superintendence of the magistrate, but that, if left in peace, she is fully qualified, in the ac disciplina, pax modo concedatur, optime se regere atque amplificare posse, testimonio est ille locus, Act. ix. 31. ecclesiæ per totam Iudæam et Galilæam et Samariam habentes pacem, ædificabantur; et pergentes in timore Domini, et consolatione sancti spiritus, multiplicabantur.

Defendenda itaque religio est a magistratibus, non cogenda. Ios. xxiv. 15. quod si malum videtur in oculis vestris—eligite vobis hodie quem colatis—ego vero et familia mea colemus Iehovam. Psal. cv. 14. non permisit cuiquam
 10 opprimere eos, etiam reprehendit propter eos reges: ne attingitote (inquiens) unctos meos, et prophetas meos ne afficitote malo. Certe si religiosis hominibus ullo modo vim afferre reges hic vetantur, quanto magis eorum conscientis in ipsa religione iisque præsertim controversiis in quibus rex aut
 15 magistratus æque ac papa falli potest, et sæpe fallitur? nisi ipse æque ac Papa eam præcipue ob causam pro Antichristo haberi se velit. Iudicabant quidem in religione reges et magistratus olim Iudæorum, et vim etiam afferebant: at, iis in rebus, de quibus ex lege Dei clarissima sine ullo errore aut contro-
 20 versia iudicari a magistratu potuit: nunc Christiani iis de rebus vexantur sæpe aut puniuntur quæ aut controversæ sunt, exercise of her own proper laws and discipline, to govern herself aright, and enlarge her boundaries, is evident from Acts ix. 31. "then had the churches rest throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria, and were edified, and walking in the 5 fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied."

Religion therefore is to be protected by the magistrate, not forced upon the people. Josh. xxiv. 15. "if it seem evil unto you to serve Jehovah, choose you this day whom ye will serve 10 . . . but as for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah." Psal. cv. 14. "he suffered no man to do them wrong, yea, he reproved kings for their sakes, saying, Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm." If then kings are forbidden to exercise violence against religious persons in any
15 matter whatever, much more are they forbidden to force the consciences of such persons in the matter of religion itself, especially on points where the magistrate is fully as liable to be mistaken as the pope, and is actually mistaken in many instances; unless indeed they are content, like him, to be
20 accounted antichrist, a name given to the pope himself chiefly from his encroachments on the consciences of mankind. True it is, that the Jewish kings and magistrates interposed their judgment in matters of religion, and even employed force in the execution of their decrees; but this was only in cases
25 where the law of God was clear and express, and where the magistrate might safely decide without danger of mistake or controversy. In our own times, on the contrary, Christians are on many occasions persecuted or subjected to punishment aut libertati Christianæ permittuntur, aut denique in ipso evangelio clare non docentur. Contra tales igitur magistratus nomine solum Christianos in iudicio surgent multi magistratus Ethnici et Iudæi; et primum ipse Pontius Pilatus: is 5 enim Iudæorum usque eo rationem habuit, ut ingredi prætorium propter religionem nolentibus ipse exire quamvis proconsul non recusaverit, Ioan. xviii. 28, 29. et Gamaliel, Act. v. 39. Sin ex Deo est, non est facultas in manibus vestris—: Et Gallio, Act. xviii. 15. iudex istarum rerum esse nolo.

Hic quod nonnulli magistratibus non tantum piis sed etiam tyrannis prava imperantibus parendum esse affirmant, id nulla divina auctoritate confirmatur. Locus enim iste, 1 Pet. ii. 13. de quavis humana ordinatione, de quavis specie intelligitur,
10 earum quæ legitimæ sunt, ut ex v. 14. manifestissimum est: quod autem ex v. 18. de servis affertur, ad officium nihil attinet liberorum populorum; qui longe alio iure censendi sunt atque servi vel emtiti vel mercede conducti. De Israelitis porro Pharaoni obtemperantibus, quis scit, sponte an inviti,
15 recte an secus id fecerint: quandoquidem nullibi iussos aut ob id laudatos accepimus. Postremo, Danielis captivi exemplum non minus alienum est: quid enim potuit facere captivus? Certe Psal. lx. 6. dedisti timentibus te vexillum, quo utantur, propter veritatem potentissime.

20 Verum in rebus licitis etiam tyrannis parere, vel potius

Opposed to this are, first, rebellion. Num. xvi. 1. "now Korah . . . took men—" 2 Sam. xx. 1. "and there happened to be there a man of Belial, whose name was Sheba," &c.

Secondly, obedience in things unlawful. 1 Sam. xxii. 18.
5 "Doeg the Edomite turned, and he fell upon the priests," &c.

The opinion maintained by some, that obedience is due to the commands not only of an upright magistrate, but of an usurper, and that in matters contrary to justice, has no foundation in Scripture. For with regard to 1 Pet. ii. 13. "submit 10 yourselves to every ordinance of man," it is evident from v. 14. that although this passage comprehends all human ordinances, all forms of government indiscriminately, it applies to them only so far as they are legitimately constituted. The eighteenth verse, which is alleged to the same purpose, relates
15 to servants exclusively, and affords no rule for the conduct of free nations, whose rights are of a kind altogether distinct from those of purchased or hired servants. As for the obedience of the Israelites to Pharaoh, we have no means of ascertaining whether it was voluntary or compulsory, or whether in obey-
20 ing they acted rightly or otherwise, inasmuch as we are nowhere told, either that they were enjoined to obey him, or that their obedience was made matter of commendation. The conduct of Daniel in captivity is equally foreign to the purpose, as under his circumstances it was impossible for him to 25 act otherwise. Besides, it is written, Psal. lx. 4. "thou hast given a banner to them that feared thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth." That it may be the part of prudence to obey the commands even of a tyrant in lawful things, or, more properly, to comply with the necessity of the times for the sake of public peace, as well as of personal safety, I am far from denying.

The duties of the magistrate and people TOWARDS THEIR 5 NEIGHBORS regard the transactions of peace and war.

Under the head of PEACE are included international treaties. In order to ascertain whether, in particular cases, these may be lawfully contracted with the wicked, we ought to consider the purposes for which treaties are concluded, whether simply 10 for the sake of peace, or of mutual defence and closer intimacy.

Of the former class are the confederacy of Abraham with the men of Mamre, Gen. xiv. 13. and with Abimelech, xxi. 27. that of Isaac with Abimelech, xxvi. 29—31. that of Solomon with Hiram, 1 Kings v. 12. from which examples the 15 lawfulness of such alliances appears evident.

Of the latter class are the treaties of Asa with Benhadad, 1 Kings xv. 19. of Jehoshaphat with the house of Ahab, 2 Chron. xviii. 1. compared with xix. 2. of Amaziah with the Israelites, xxv. 6—8. of Ahaz with the Assyrians, 2 Kings xvi.
20 7. and that which the Jews sought to contract with the Egyptians, Isa. xxx. 2, &c. These were unlawful, and led to calamitous results. Exod. xxiii. 32. "thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods." xxxiv. 12. "take heed to thyself lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of 25 the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee." See also v. 15. Deut. vii. 4. "they will turn away thy son from following me." Ezek. xvi. 26. "thou hast committed fornication with the Egyptians thy neighbors, great of

Asa, 2 Chron. xvi. 3. and Zedekiah, xxxvi. 13. Ezek. xvii. are examples of the violation of treaties.

On the subject of asylums see Num. xxxv. 6-15. Deut. xxiii. 15.

With regard to the duties of war, it is enjoined, first, that it be not undertaken without mature deliberation. Prov. xx. 18. xxiv. 6. Luke xiv. 31. "what king going to make war against another king sitteth not down first and consulteth—?" Secondly, that it be carried on wisely and skilfully. 1 Sam. xiv. 28. "thy father straitly charged the people with an oath," &c. xxiii. 22. "it is told me that he dealeth very subtly." 15 Prov. xxi. 22. "a wise man scaleth the city of the mighty." Thirdly, that it be prosecuted with moderation. Deut. xx. 19. "thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof," &c. Fourthly, that it be waged in a spirit of godliness. Deut. xxiii. 9, &c. "when the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then keep thee 20 from every wicked thing." xxxii. 29, 30. "O that they were wise . . . how should one chase a thousand—!" 1 Sam. vii. 10. "as Samuel was offering up the burnt-offering . . . Jehovah thundered with a great thunder on that day against the Philistines." Isa. xxxi. 6. "turn ye unto him . . . then 25 shall the Assyrian fall with the sword." Amos i. 13. "because they have ripped up the women with child of Gilead, that they might enlarge their border." Fifthly, that no mercy be shown to a merciless enemy. 1 Sam. xv. 33. "as thy sword

There seems no reason why war should be unlawful now, any more than in the time of the Jews; nor is it anywhere forbidden in the New Testament. Psal. cxlix. 6. "let a two-

PREFATORY NOTE

THE manuscript of the De Doctrina Christiana was discovered among the public records in the Old State Paper Office at Whitehall by Robert Lemon, Deputy Keeper of the State Papers, in 1823. The Royal Librarian, Charles R. Sumner, later Bishop of Winchester, was commissioned by George IV to publish and translate it. His edition was issued from the Cambridge University Press in two quarto volumes, one containing the Latin text, the other the translation, in 1825. An American issue of Sumner's translation appeared in two volumes the same year.¹ The Latin, verbatim et literatim from Sumner's text, was reprinted in one volume by E. Fleischer, Braunschweig, in 1827. There have been no subsequent issues of the original as a whole, though the translation, considerably revised by Sumner himself, was included in the Bohn edition of the Prose Works of John Milton, edited by J. A. St. John, London, 1848-1853. For this edition Sumner added to his original "Preliminary Observations" an account of certain additional documents discovered by Lemon, which confirmed Milton's authorship of the work and fully established the record of its posthumous history.

The manuscript itself, which is now in the Public Records Office, consists of 735 numbered pages of text. Of these, pages 1-196, the first fourteen chapters of Book I, are in a hand now known to be that of Daniel Skinner.² The rest, except for marginal additions and recopied pages, is in another hand, which Mr. Hanford, one of the present editors, has identified as that of Jeremie Picard, an amanuensis employed by Milton from about 1657 till some years after the Restoration.³ There can be little doubt that the whole text, as Milton dictated it, originally stood in the hand of this scribe. It was subsequently revised, probably more than once, at Milton's direction, for there are many changes in the latter part of the manuscript in several hands distinct from either Skinner's or Picard's. Skinner's occupation with the manuscript, that of a copyist only, was evidently subsequent to Milton's death. Setting out to transcribe the work for the press he desisted at the fifteenth chapter, contenting himself with recopying the less legible parts of the latter half of the manuscript, and pasting his transcriptions in the margins or inserting the pages which contained them. In one instance he has left the original page in Picard's hand beside his own copy. At some later time either Skinner or a subsequent reviser went through the whole, and made small corrections chiefly in the biblical citations. Finally a modern editor, presumably Sumner, prepared the copy for the press, adding in pencil further alterations, with directions to the compositor. The text of 1825 seems to have been set directly from the manuscript. The final modifications in Sumner's text must have been made in proof. In more recent times the manuscript has been bound in such a way as to conceal the edges of the text in many of the pages toward the end.

In addition to the facts thus outlined on the basis of the present state of the manuscript, we have proof, in the correspondence already alluded to, that Skinner, who was perhaps designated by Milton as one of his literary executors, actually gave the De Doctrina, together with a transcription of the Latin Letters of State, to Elzevir at Amsterdam in 1675. The publisher, noting its heretical character, delayed the printing of it, and Skinner, warned by Isaac Barrow that his responsibility for publishing such materials would entail loss of his minor fellowship at Trinity College, on a later visit to Amsterdam recalled the manuscript both of the De Doctrina and of the Letters. The manuscripts somehow found their way among the State Papers, where they remained together in a packet inscribed "To Mr. Skinner, Merchant," until their discovery by Lemon.

The present edition is based on Sumner's with a complete collation of the manuscript in a rotograph copy belonging to Columbia University and the restoration of some of its characteristic features to the text. Sumner himself remarks in a note on page 129 of the 1825 Latin text that he has followed his scribal originals with minute fidelity, "ne puncto quidem mutato, et litteris maiusculis fideliter servatis." This statement is, however, wide of the truth. Whatever he may have originally intended, Sumner could not bring himself to even such limited reproduction of the manuscript as is possible in type, and there are in each printed page of his text perhaps a dozen variations from the original. These are, for the most part, minutiae of spelling, punctuation, and capitalization. In some cases, however, he has silently supplied, corrected, and even rearranged biblical references, broken or combined paragraphs, and adopted small emendations. There are also a few misreadings of the manuscript, and an occasional misprint. As a whole, however, his text is remarkably correct in all essentials. It has seemed desirable to treat it as an editio princeps and to adopt many of its editorial features, while endeavoring to correct its errors and to bring it into a somewhat closer conformity with the manuscript. The result is a compromise between a complete reproduction of the original, which would in any case be possible only in a facsimile, and a reduction of the text to some such consistency as might have been given it if a seventeenth century printer had set it, and Milton with his own eyes corrected the proof. Modernization has not in general been the aim. Our steady endeavor has been to give a text which presents Milton's meaning faithfully.

The main practices in the present treatment of the text may be summarized as follows:

1. Typographical display. Sumner's use of capitals for headings and definitions and of italics for biblical quotations is adhered to. Some such display was evidently intended by Picard, the original scribe, who employs special scripts for these materials, though not consistently.

2. Punctuation. The scribal pointing, which Sumner altered freely, is really neither very inconsistent nor very misleading. It is in general preserved in the present text, except in the case of biblical references, where a standardized form corresponding approximately to the usage in Skinner's part of the text is adopted, and at the ends of sentences or broken quotations, where periods, regularly omitted in the work of one of the later scribes, are restored, and such meaningless anomalies as —. or ,—. or ,—, are simplified to —. or —, etc. A few passages in which the scribe has evidently misunderstood the sense are repointed, with appropriate indication in the textual notes. Finally Sumner's pointing has necessarily been adopted for the portions of the text no longer legible in the manuscript.

3. Capitalization. Scribal practice is adhered to, except that proper names and biblical titles are regularly capitalized where a small letter was occasionally written by one or another scribe. Sumner, in the interests of theological propriety, regularly capitalizes Filius and Spiritus Sanctus where the scribes, possibly at Milton's direction, refrained from doing so.

4. Spelling and abbreviations. In the matter of spelling, also, scribal usage has generally been adhered to against Sumner's alterations. A few inconsistencies, however, as in the word auctor, spelt variously by the scribes, are normalized, and some incorrect or unusual forms, such as acomodo, oponitur, for accomodo, opponitur; exolvo, exurgo, for exsolvo, exsurgo; and quanquam for quamquam have been modernized; but the manuscript spelling has been in each case recorded in the notes when it first appears. So also with proper names, which sometimes occur in unfamiliar forms. The digraphs æ and æ are indistinguishable in the manuscript, and words containing them appear in the text in their usual forms. I and J are also generally indistinguishable. We have employed the I throughout, and have extended this modernization also to the small letter according to the principles laid down for the Miltonic text by E. K. Rand.⁴ Accent marks, used sporadically by the scribes, are omitted. Certain abbreviations not usually reproduced in type, such as the sign for que, \tilde{u} = um, ib. = ibus, and n. = nempe, have been expanded. Caput 1^{mo}, etc., in headings, appears as Caput I, etc. Finally Sumner's standard form for the abbreviation of biblical titles has been retained.

5. Emendations. Sumner's alterations of doubtful manuscript readings are very few, but he has discussed a considerable number of textual difficulties in his notes, and suggested various emendations. This material has been carefully reviewed, and such emendations as are reasonably certain are incorporated in the text.

Milton's references are to the Junius and Tremellius Latin Bible, probably to the edition published at Geneva in 1630. In quoting, Milton employs the rendering of Tremellius for the Old Testament and that of Beza, which is printed parallel with the version of Tremellius, for the New. He often modifies the quotation, however, either by incorporating a suggestion from the notes or by a new translation from the Hebrew or the Greek, and sometimes in the New Testament passages the scribe copies from the Tremellius rather than the Beza column by mistake.⁵

⁴ See his article "J and I in Milton's Latin Script" in Modern Philology, xix, 315-319.

⁵ See Harris Fletcher, "The Use of the Bible in Milton's Prose," University of Illinois Studies in Language and Literature, xiv, 3.

6. Corrections and deletions. In the critical notes we have attempted to render a fairly complete account of the scribal alterations of the manuscript. We have also deciphered most of the deleted passages, and distinguished the added materials from the original text. Indicating the various scribal hands we have designated the work of Skinner as "first hand," that of Picard as "second hand," and that of the revisers of Picard's text as "later hand." Chronologically, of course, Picard came first and the revisers second. No mention is ordinarily made of Sumner's penciled notes.

The English translation is that of Sumner in its revised form. His rendering, though liberal, is masterly in its interpretation of Milton's essential meaning, and could not well be rivaled by anyone less versed in the history and terminology of Christian thought. His version no doubt reflects some of his theological beliefs. To emend or to translate anew would not, however, avail much. In either case theological prepossessions or the absence of them would likewise be operative. Scholars who do not fancy Sumner's translation may refer to the Latin text, and please themselves. They would do that, we feel sure, whatever the translation placed before them.

NOTES ON THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION

In reprinting Sumner's English translation we have modernized the punctuation considerably, altered the typographical display in a few instances, and silently corrected typographical and other errors.

VOLUME XIV

—21-22 they . . . fault] Sumner gives William Cowper's translation.

—24-27 Perverse . . . fate] Sumner gives Alexander Pope's translation.

—24-25 With . . . form?] Sumner gives no translation. We give James Lonsdale and Samuel Lee's.

VOLUME XV

The present order, however, is that of both the original translation and the revised translation of the Bohn edition. It seems likely, therefore, that it represents Sumner's deliberate purpose.

SUMNER'S NOTES ON THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION

In reprinting these notes we have corrected obvious errors, cited Milton's writings by a leading word or phrase of the titles, imposed a general uniformity upon the manner of reference to volumes and pages, and occasionally altered the typographical display. Now and then we have adapted a statement for the sake of brevity, but for the most part the notes stand exactly as Sumner prepared them for the Bohn edition of Milton's Prose Works. In a few instances we have added in brackets an additional pertinent note. The volume and page references conform to the present Columbia University edition of Milton's Works.

—17 superstition] "Our victory at once against two the most prevailing usurpers over mankind, superstition and tyranny." Commonwealth, vi. 116. "He has gloriously delivered you, the first of nations from the two greatest mischiefs of this life, and most pernicious to virtue—tyranny and superstition." First Defence, vii. 553.

—15 God] Compare this appeal to God respecting the purity of his motives with the solemn invocation at the beginning of Reformation in England. "And here withal I invoke the immortal Deity, revealer and judge of secrets, that wherever I have in this book plainly and roundly (though worthily and truly) laid open the faults and blemishes of fathers, martyrs, or Christian emperors, or have otherwise inveighed against error and superstition with vehement expressions; I have done it neither out of malice, nor list to speak evil, nor any vain glory, but of mere necessity to vindicate the spotless truth from an ignominious bondage." Reformation, iii. Pt. i. 10.

—14 learned] "I would be heard only, if it might be by the elegant and learned reader, to whom principally for a while I shall beg leave I may address myself." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 234. "I seek not to seduce the simple and illiterate; my errand is to find out the choicest and the learnedest, who have this high gift of wisdom to answer solidly, or to be convinced." Address to the Parliament of England, prefixed to Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 378. —27 doctrine] "Sad it is to think how that doctrine of the Gospel, planted by teachers divinely inspired, and by them winnowed and sifted from the chaff of overdated ceremonies," &c. Reformation, iii. Pt. i. 1.

—1 persuasion] "For me, I have determined to lay up as the best treasure and solace of a good old age, if God vouchsafe it me, the honest liberty of free speech from my youth, where I shall think it available in so dear a concernment as the Church's good." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 232. "To Protestants, therefore, whose common rule and touchstone is the Scripture, nothing can with more conscience, more equity, nothing more Protestantly can be permitted, than a free and lawful debate at all times by writing, conference, or disputation of what opinion soever, disputable by Scripture, concluding that no man in religion is properly a heretic at this day, but he who maintains traditions or opinions not probable by Scripture, who for aught I know is the Papist only; he the only heretic who counts all heretics but himself." Civil Power, vi. 13-14.

—12 foolish men] Milton probably alludes to the numerous censures directed against him after the publication of his treatises on divorce. An ample notice of these attacks will be found in Todd's Account of the Life and Writings, &c. One of Milton's opponents, Herbert Palmer, B.D., in a sermon before the Parliament at Westminster, endeavored to excite his audience to brand the author of the new opinions with some heavy mark of their displeasure. His address to them was as follows: "If any plead conscience for the lawfulness of polygamy, (or for divorce for other causes than Christ and his apostles mention; of which a wicked book is abroad and uncensured, though deserving to be burnt, whose author hath been so impudent as to set his name to it, and dedicate it to yourselves), or for liberty to marry incestuously, will you grant a toleration for all this?" See the beginning of Tetrachordon, where an allusion is made to this discourse, and the eleventh and twelfth sonnets, on the detraction which followed certain of the author's writings.

—15 testimonies] "But we shall not carry it thus; another Greek apparition stands in our way, heresy and heretic; in like manner also railed at to the people as in a tongue unknown. . . . In apostolic time, therefore, ere the Scripture was written, heresy was a doctrine maintained against the doctrine by them delivered; which in these times can be no otherwise defined than a doctrine maintained against the light, which we now only have, of the Scripture." Civil Power, vi. 11-12. "As for those terrible names of sectaries and schismatics, which ye have got together, we know your manner of fight, when the quiver of your arguments, which is ever thin, and weakly stored, after the first brunt is quite empty, your course is to betake ye to your other quiver of slander, wherein lies your best archery. And whom you could not move by sophistical arguing, them you think to confute by scandalous misnaming; thereby inciting the blinder sort of people to dislike and deride sound doctrine and good Christianity, under two or three vile and hateful terms." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 216.

—7 orthodox] "Yea those that are reckoned for orthodox, began to make sad and shameful rents in the Church about the trivial celebration of feasts," &c. Reformation, iii. Pt. i. 20. —17 recognize] "With good and religious reason, therefore, all Protestant Churches with one consent, and particularly the Church of England in her 39 Articles (6th, 19th, 20th, 21st, and elsewhere), maintain these two points, as the main principles of true religion; that the rule of true religion is the word of God only: and that this faith ought not to be an implicit faith, that is, to believe, though as the Church believes, against or without express authority of Scripture." True Religion, vi. 166. "This is the direct way to bring in that papistical implicit faith, which we all disclaim." Ibid. vi. 177. —24 J. M.] Symmons states that on the first publication of Lycidas the author was indicated in the same manner.

—14 God] Milton, as is usual with him, here employs the word love or charity to signify the whole "knot of Christian graces"; or, in other words, practical religion, comprehending all the fruits of the Spirit flowing from, and founded upon, vital faith.

By name to come call'd Charity, the soul

Of all the rest. PL, xii. 583-585.

"Christ having cancelled the handwriting of ordinances which was against us, Col. ii. 14. and interpreted the fulfilling of all through charity, hath in that respect set us over love, in the free custody of his love, and left us victorious under the guidance of his living Spirit, not under the dead letter; to follow that which most edifies, most aids and furthers a religious life." Tetrachordon, iv. 74-75. And again, in a passage bearing a remarkable similarity to the sentence above: "What evangelic religion is, is told in two words, Faith and Charity, or Belief and Practice." Civil Power, vi. 21.

—15 God] Unless there be who think not God at all:

For of such doctrine never was there school,

But the heart of the fool,

In allusion to the doctrines of the Stoics, &c. Seneca De Beneficiis, iv. 8. "Sic hunc naturam vocas, fatum, fortunam; omnia eiusdem Dei nomina sunt, varie utentis sua potestate." Nat. Quæst. ii. 45. "Vis illum fatum vocare? non errabis." See, for the different reasonings of ancient philosophers on this subject, Cicero De Fato and De Divinatione. Hume acknowledges that it "has been found hitherto to exceed all the skill of philosophy." On Liberty and Necessity. The next clauses of this sentence contain in the original two of those conceits which are so frequent in Milton's works, and which can scarcely be preserved in a translation. The passage stands thus: sed natura natam . . . et fatum . . . effatum . . . esse? [See across, page 26.]

- 6 reason] Since thy original lapse, true liberty
Is lost, which always with right reason dwells

Though not but by the Spirit understood. PL, xii. 513-514.
"It will require no great labor of exposition to unfold what is here meant by matters of religion; being as soon apprehended as defined, such things as belong chiefly to the knowledge and service of God, and are either above the reach and light of nature without revelation from above, and therefore liable to be variously understood by human reason," &c. Civil Power, vi. 5.
"True religion is the true worship and service of God, learnt and believed from the word of God only. No man or angel can know how God would be worshipped and served, unless God reveal it." True Religion, vi. 165-166.

- 7 subtleties] Solicit not thy thoughts with matters hid:
Leave them to God above; him serve and fear.
PL, viii. 167-168.
Heaven is for thee too high

To know what passes there. Be lowly wise;
Think only what concerns thee, and thy being;
Dream not of other worlds, what creatures there
Live, in what state, condition, or degree. PL, viii. 172-176.

- 9 anthropopathy] "Two ways then may the Spirit of God be said to be grieved, in Himself, in his Saints; in Himself, by an anthropopathia, as we call it; in his Saints, by a sympathia; the former is by way of allusion to human passion and carriage." Bp. Hall's Rem. p. 106. See also Beveridge, speaking of the anthropomorphites, Works, ix. 29.

- 19 form] The Humanitarians held that God was to be understood as having really a human form. See Clarke's Sermons, vol. i. 26, fol. edn. The drift of Milton's argument leads him to employ language which would appear at first sight to verge upon their doctrine, but it will be seen immediately that he guards himself against the charge of having adopted one of the most ignorant errors of the dark ages of the Church. It is in opposition to this opinion that, in our own articles, God is declared to be incorporeus, impartibilis, impassibilis, "without body, parts, or passions." Art. 1. The reasoning of Milton on this subject throws great light on a passage in Paradise Lost, put into the mouth of Raphael:

Of human sense, I shall delineate so,
By likening spiritual to corporal forms
As may express them best; though what if Earth
Be but the shadow of Heaven, and things therein
Each to other like, more than on Earth is thought?

v. 571-576

Here Newton observes the artful suggestion that there may be a greater similitude and resemblance between things in Heaven and things in Earth than is generally imagined, and supposes it may have been intended as an apology for the bold figures which the Poet has employed. We now see that his deliberate opinion seems to have leaned to the belief that the fabric of the invisible world was the pattern of the visible. Mede introduces a hint of a similar kind in his tenth discourse, as Newton remarks.

—3 "will be"] The original of this passage presents considerable difficulty. It is thus written in the MS. [See across to page 40: Cap. . . . prolatum, lines 2-5.] In the translation I have considered Ehie qui sum vel ero, as an absolute sentence; and conceiving the next clause to have been incorrectly transcribed, I have rendered it as if it had been written et si persona prima in tertiam affinis verbi mutatur, Jave, qui est, vel erit, &c. Simon in his Hebrew lexicon has the following remark on the word יְהוָה: "יְהוָה nomen proprium Dei, a Mose demum introductum, eum qui re præstiturus sit, quod olim promiserit, ex ipsa loci Mosaiici authentica explicatione, Exod. iii. 14. significans, adeoque יְהוָה vel יְהוָה proprie efferendum, ut ex veteribus Theodoretus et Epiphanius Jave, i.e. Jave scripserunt." If the sense of the passage has been rightly conceived, the kindred verb will be יָסִיד, sedit, fuit vel factus est. See Simon in voce. See also Buxtorf's Lexicon ad Rad. יָסִיד and Cappelli *Vindic. —19 end] The disputes among the schoolmen respecting the proper definition of eternity could not have been forgotten by Milton. It appears, therefore, that at this time the famous definition of Boëthius was generally rejected: aternitas est interminabilis vitae tota simul et perfecta possessio. According to these terms, God would not necessarily have been without a beginning. Compare Paradise Regained, iv. 389-392.

—21 Scripture] The following lines contain the sum of the doctrine laid down by Milton in this and the following chapter, and the coincidences of expression are not unfrequently as striking as the similarity of reasoning.

so will fall

He and his faithless progeny: Whose fault?
Whose but his own? Ingrate, he had of me
All he could have; I made him just and right,
Sufficient to have stood, though free to fall.
Such I created all the Ethereal Powers
And Spirits, both them who stood, and them who fail'd;
Freely they stood who stood, and fell who fell.
Not free, what proof could they have given sincere
Of true allegiance, constant faith, or love,
Where only what they needs must do appear'd,
Not what they would? what praise could they receive,
What pleasure I, from such obedience paid,
When will and reason (reason also is choice)
Useless and vain, of freedom both despoil'd,
Made passive both, had serv'd necessity,
Not me? They therefore as to right belong'd,
So were created, nor can justly accuse
Their Maker, or their making, or their fate,
As if predestination over-rul'd
Their will, dispos'd by absolute decree
Or high foreknowledge; they themselves decreed
Their own revolt, not I; if I foreknew, Foreknowledge had no influence on their fault,
Which had no less prov'd certain, unforeknown, &c.

Sed conditionem in promisso quod acceperat inclusam fuisse, non obscure liquet ex verbis quibus conceptum fuit, ecce Deus κεχαρίσται σοι omnes qui tecum navigant, id est, largitus est tibi hanc gratiam, ut eos omnes tuo consilio a morte liberes, si illi obtemperarint; alioqui de iis actum erit, et ipsi culpa sua peribunt.” Curcellæi Institutio, iii. 11. 4.

—2 to it] See this position maintained in Thomas Aquinas, with his inferential distinction between free will in sensu composito and in sensu diviso. —18 necessity] Archb. King has an able chapter on the opinion of those who admit of freedom from compulsion only, but not from necessity. Origin of Evil, chap. v. sect. 1. subject 1. On the whole subject, consult Taylor's Ductor Dubitantium, Bk. iv. chap. i. and Locke On Human Understanding, Bk. ii. chap. xxi. —22 schools] “But when I say that the divine decree or promise imprints a necessity upon things, it may, to prevent misapprehension, be needful to explain what kind of necessity this is, that so the liberty of second causes be not thereby wholly cashiered and taken away. For this therefore we are to observe that the schools distinguish of a twofold necessity, physical and logical, or causal and consequential; which terms are commonly thus explained: viz. that physical or causal necessity is when a thing by an efficient productive influence certainly and naturally produces such an effect," &c. South's Sermon on the Resurrection, vol. iii. p. 398. "Graviter itaque errare censendi sunt, qui duplicem necessitatem rebus tribuunt, ex providentia divina, unam immutabilitatis, quia cum Deus non mutet decretum, sicut dicitur Psal. xxxiii. 11. Mal. iii. 6. quicquid omnino decrevit, certissime evenit: alteram infallibilitatis, quia," &c. Curcellæi Institutio, iii. 12. 16. See also lib. iv. 2. 5.

I have quoted the whole sentence, because, independently of the similarity of expression in the concluding clause, it contains a remarkable indication of Milton's opinion respecting other subjects mentioned in the course of this treatise.

—3 accidens] "Tertio causa efficiens per se efficit, aut per accidens. Tertium hoc par modorum efficiendi est, ab Aristotele etiam et veteribus notatum." Artis Logicæ, xi. 38. And again: "Quæ autem natura necessario, quæ consilio, libere agunt; necessario agit quæ aliter agere non potest, sed ad unum quidpiam agendum determinatur, idque solum sua propensione agit, quæ necessitas naturæ dicitur . . . Libere agit efficiens non hoc duntaxat ut naturale agens, sed hoc vel illud pro arbitrio, idque absolute, vel ex hypothesis . . . Per accidens efficit causa quæ externa facultate efficit; id est, non sua; cum principium effecti est extra efficientem, externumque principium interno oppositum; sic nempe efficiens non efficit per se, sed per aliud . . . Coactione fit aliquid, cum efficiens vi cogitur ad effectum. Ut cum lapis sursum vel recta prolicitur, qui suapte natura deorsum fertur. Hæc necessitas coactionis dicitur, et causis etiam liberis nonnunquam accidere potest." Ibid, xi. 40-44.

—19 free] "Absolute solus Deus libere agit omnia; id est, quicquid vult; et agere potest, vel non agere; testantur hoc passim sacræ literæ?" Artis Logicæ, xi. 42.

—25 agents] The allusion appears to be to the doctrine of Thomas Aquinas and the Dominicans, who held that God predetermined the will by a physical influence, so that the Deity was the first cause of the action, and the creature the second cause, all the guilt of the sin being attributed to the latter party. With regard to the logical distinction, nearly the very words of the original occur elsewhere. "Secundo, causa efficiens sola efficit, aut cum aliis. Earumque omnium sæpe alia principalis, alia minus principalis, sive adiuvens et ministra." Artis Logicæ, xi. 34.

In asserting the possibility of a predetermination of all things, implied in the idea of divine omniscience, co-existing with the moral freedom of man, Milton takes the same line of argument which Horsley has adopted on the same subject in his sermon on Matt. xx. 23.

It seems more probable that dilecti has been inserted by the carelessness of the transcriber.

Dr. Townsend in his Chronological Arrangement of the New Testament also brings together the senses given to the word by various divines. See his note on the passage. Derivatives from this word are used with the same metaphorical signification. ὅστις παραλαβὼν πολέμουμένης τὰς πόλεις, ἔξωθεν μὲν ὑπὸ πλήθους καὶ μανίας βαρβαρικῆς, ἐνδοθεν δὲ ὑπὸ στρατιωτικῆς ἀταξίας, καὶ τῆς τῶν ταξιαρχῶν πλεονεξίας. Synes. Epist. 62. νοθετεῖτε τοῖς ἀτάκτοις. 1 Thess. v. 14.

—19 work] Milton employs the word "fitted" in a similar sense in his History of Britain, x. 198. "But when God hath decreed servitude on a sinful nation, fitted by their own vices for no condition but servile, all estates of government are alike unable to avoid it." See also in this vol. xiv. page 165, line 17.

 Not our necessitated; such with him
 Finds no acceptance, nor can find; for how Can hearts, not free, be tried whether they serve Willing or no, who will but what they must
 By destiny, and can no other choose? PL, v. 524-534

"Many there be that complain of Divine Providence for suffering Adam to transgress. Foolish tongues! when God gave him reason, he gave him freedom to choose, for reason is but choosing; he had been else a mere artificial Adam such an Adam as he is in the motions. We ourselves esteem not of that obedience, or love, or gift, which is of force; God therefore left him free, set before him a provoking object, ever almost in his eyes; herein consisted his merit, herein the right of his reward, the praise of his abstinence." Areopagitica, iv. 319. —6 doctrine] See the works of Twiss, Rutherford, and Bishop Davenant, Edwards on Free Will, Calvin's Institutes, and the School Divines in general.

"If these things be true, that God hath absolutely decreed to damn the greatest part of men, and to make good this decree, he permits them to sin, not by a bare permission of leaving them to themselves, but by such a permission as shall be efficacious; that is, he will so permit them to sin as they cannot avoid it; then those who are under this decree of God are under a necessity of sinning; which necessity, now it does not proceed from themselves, but from the decree of God, does by consequence make God the author of sin."

For Scripture, your men deny very plainly and frequently that this doctrine can be proved by it. See if you please this plainly taught, and urged very earnestly by Cardinal Hosius, De Auctor. Sacr. lib. iii. p. 53. by Gordonius Huntlaeus, Tom. I. Controv. 1. De Verbo Dei, lib. x. by Gretserus and Tannerus, in Colloquio Ratisbon. and also by Vega, Possevin, Wickus, and others." Compare also Dr. Pye Smith On the Scripture Testimony to the Messiah, ii. 186; Magee On the Atonement, i. 81-88, edn. 1816. —23 contrary]

Such is the doctrine of our own article, of which the expressions are "begotten from everlasting of the Father, the very and eternal God, of one substance with the Father." These words are not in King Edward's articles of 1552, but were added in 1562, probably because the growth of Socinianism made it expedient to insert an explicit declaration of the true faith. The wise reflections of Alexander, Bishop of Alexandria, are so applicable to the discussions respecting the generation of the Son, on which Milton now enters, that it is impossible not to quote them as a caution to future speculators on this holy mystery. Εἰς ἑνσεβεῖς ὄνκ οἶμαι λογιζομένους τοὺς μέχρι τοῦτων ἑπρωτῶν, τί τολμῶντας διὰ τὸ ἀνέκουν τοῦ. χαλεπώτερα σου μὴ ζήτη. καὶ ὑψηλότερά σου μὴ ἐξέταζε. εἰ γὰρ ἐτέρων πολλῶν ἢ γινώσις, καὶ τοῦτων ἀσυνρίτως, κολοβντέρων, κέκρυπται τὴν ἀνθρωπίνην κατάληψιν. . . πῶς ἂν περιεργάσαιτό τις τὴν τοῦ θεοῦ λόγον ὑπόστασιν, ἑκτὸς εἰ μὴ μελαγχολικῇ διαθέσει ληφοῖς τῇ χάνει; περὶ ἧς τὸ προφητικὸν πνεῦμά φησι, τὴν γενεὰν αὐτοῦ τις διηγήσεται. Epist. ad Alexandrum Constantinop. apud Theodorit. *Eccles. Would'st thou admit for his contempt of thee
That proud excuse? yet him not thy election,
But natural necessity begot. PL, x. 760-765.

—13 John xiv. 16.] The allusion may be, amongst others, to Diodati, the friend of Milton, whose annotations on Scripture were doubtless well known to him. Diodati's remark on this verse is: "That the Holy Ghost is distinct from the Sonne in his personall subsistence, and in the manner of working in believers." Annotations on the Holy Bible, Third edn. London, 1651.

—24 essentially] "Res etiam singulæ, sive individua, quæ vulgo vocant, singulas sibi que proprias formas habent; differunt quippe numero inter se, quod nemo non fatetur. Quid autem est aliud numero inter se, nisi singulis formis differre? Numerus enim, ut recte Scaliger, est affectio essentialiam consequens. Quæ igitur numero, essentia quoque differunt; et nequaquam numero, nisi essentia, differrent. Evigilent hic theologi. Quod si quæcunque numero, essentia quoque differunt, nec tamen materia, necesse est formis inter se differant; non autem communibus, ergo propriis." Artis Logicae, xi. 58. The hint thrown out to the theologians in this passage is very remarkable; but I am not aware that it has ever been noticed as affording a clue to the opinion of Milton on the important subject alluded to, which could scarcely have been expected to be found in a treatise on Logic. See on line 2, page 311.

—6 Syriac] This is true of the manuscripts of the old Syriac version, but the printed editions of the Syriac as well as of the Armenian versions contain the disputed clause. See Bishop Marsh's Letters to Archdeacon Travis. Preface, Notes 8, 9, 10, 11. Mill, Adnotat. ad locum, in the volume of tracts published by Bishop Burgess, page 43; Wetstein, Ibid. 79; Bengelius, Ibid. 144; Selden, Ibid. 206; Buddæus, Ibid. 225; and especially Schmidius, Ibid. 243. With respect to the Greek manuscripts Milton expresses himself cautiously. Griesbach has shown that the clause is found in only one Greek manuscript, and that a manuscript of the fifteenth or sixteenth century. For an elaborate account of the arguments for and against its authenticity, see Horne's Introduction, &c. Pt. II. chap. iv. sect. 5. §. 6. where references are given to the principal authorities. See also Hey's Lectures, Bk. iv. Appendix, where a list, though not a very perfect one, is given of the chief opposers and defenders of the genuineness of the text. —15 writings] "Annon illico poterunt tergiversari, de consensu dictum esse, non de eadem essentia? . . . PAGE 261

—Lord] In the list of various readings given in Bp. Wilson's Bible, it is stated that the reading of "the Lord" exists in one of the English Bibles printed by Whitchurch, which is probably the "recent translation" alluded to by Milton. This printer published many editions of the Bible, separately or in conjunction with Grafton, about the middle of the sixteenth century. The library at St. Paul's contains ten editions published in different years between 1530 and 1560, but the reading alluded to appears in none of them. The libraries of the British Museum, Lambeth, and Canterbury (which latter collection contains about fifty ancient English Bibles and Testaments presented by the late Dr. Coombe) the Bodleian library at Oxford, the University library, and the libraries of Trinity and St. John's Colleges, Cambridge, have also been searched without success for a copy of the edition in question. The same reading is found in the late Improved Version of the New Testament, as it is called by the Unitarians. [According to Harris Fletcher the "recent translation" was Brian Walton's Biblia Sacra Polyglotta, 1657. See Fletcher's article in Modern Language Notes, February 1927, pp. 84-87.] —14 Θεοῦ] This is the reading of the Codex Passionæi, the date of which, however, is not earlier than the eighth or ninth century, and of sixty-three other MSS. none of which are among the most correct or authoritative. See Horne's Introduction, &c. ii. 352, for an analysis of what Griesbach, Hale, Michaelis, and others have written on the verse. The sum of the whole is that ἐκκλησία τοῦ Θεοῦ, "Church of God," the received reading, "is better supported than any of the other readings, and consequently we may conclude that it was the identical expression uttered by Paul, and recorded by Luke." See Wetstein, Mill, and Griesbach (who prefers Κυρίου), in loc. and Hey's Lectures, Bk. iv. art. 1. sect. 18. —26 Son] "Sanctus Cyprianus ad-

Erasmi Annotationes ad Rom. ix. 5. See also his treatise entitled Responsio de Filii divinitate, Tom. ix. 849. Macknight in his notes on the passage of the Romans answers Erasmus with regard to both the points which Milton mentions, and Mill testifies that all the manuscripts and ancient versions are in favor of the present reading.

—11 copies] "Ambrosius et Vulgatus Interpres legerunt pro Θεός, ὁ, id est, quod." Erasmus ad 1 Tim. iii. 16. The Clermont MS. the Vulgate, and some other ancient versions read ὁ, which. The Colbertine MS. reads ὁς, who. All the other Greek MSS. have Θεός. For a defence of the latter reading see Mill and Macknight in loco, and Pearson On the Creed. See also Waterland, Works, ii. 158.

—25 both] Since the time of Milton the importance of the Greek article has become better understood. See Mr. Granville Sharp's Remarks on the Uses of the Definitive Article, &c.; Dr. Wordsworth's Six Letters to Mr. Sharp; Mr. Boyd's Supplementary Researches; and Bp. Middleton's Doctrine of the Greek Article. Mr. Sharp's canon, now generally received, is, that when two or more substantives or pronouns of the same gender, number, and case, are connected by the copulative καὶ, if the first has the definite article, and the others have not, all, in such case, relate to the same thing.

—6 manuscripts] Neither Mill nor Wetstein take notice of this reading: the latter mentions that two MSS. read τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν after χριστοῦ. —28 same] The Ethiopic version reads αὐτοῦ. Mill omits Θεοῦ.

—5 true] This is the interpretation of Benson, Wetstein, Schleusner, Macknight, &c. In support of the other construction see Beza, Whitby, and particularly Waterland, Works, ii. 123. The following remark deserves to be carefully noted: "Abutuntur autem hac observatione Photiniani, dum, 1 Ioh. v. 20. verba οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ ἀληθινός Θεός, καὶ ἡ ζωὴ αἰώνιος, non ad proxime præcedens, filium scilicet Dei, Iesum Christum, sed ad remotius, Deum scilicet Patrem, referenda esse dicunt; quo veram Iesu Christi Deitatem subvertant, ut ex Socino contra Bellarmin. et Wieck, cap. v. clas. 3. argum. 12. et in comment. 1 Epist. Ioh. cap. v. page 516 videre est." Glasii Philologia Sacra, edit. Dathe, i. 156. Transpositos igitur fuisse arbitror hos versiculos, nempe 12 et 13," &c. According to the order subsequently proposed by Beza, the verses would stand thus: 14, 15, 16, 13, 12, 17, &c. Eusebius classes the Apocalypse among the ἀντιλεγόμενα, or disputed books, and it is omitted in the catalogues of canonical books formed by Cyril Bishop of Jerusalem (A. D. 340), and by the council of Laodicea (A. D. 364), and in one or two other early catalogues of the Scriptures; but this omission was probably not owing to any suspicion concerning its authenticity or genuineness, but because its obscurity and mysteriousness were thought to render it less fit to be read publicly and generally. I have omitted in the translation the latter clauses of the sentence, which could scarcely be made intelligible in a language without inflections.

On which passage Mr. Upton, Critical Observations on Shakespeare, Bk. ii. sect. vii. page 200, remarks that it should be "the invisible," τὸ ἀόρατον κατ' ἐξοχὴν, quoting Col. i. 14. "who is the image of the invisible God;" and PL, iii. 385-386:

Made visible, the Almighty Father shines.

Mr. Todd approves this correction, and quotes from Drummond's Flowers of Sion, O blest abode! O happy dwelling place!

Where visibly the invisible doth reign.

The distinction so pointedly made in the passage above between "the one invisible God," and "the only begotten and visible," seems to confirm the propriety of Mr. Upton's conjecture.

"Opinio tamen in Deum non cadit, quia per causas æque omnia cognoscit." For, as he says in Areopagitica, iv. 341, "opinion is but knowledge in the making." —27 than I] A satisfactory explanation of this and similar passages, by referring to the relative character of Christ, in his nature and subsistence as a Son, will be found in the Defence of Sherlock's Notion of a Trinity in Unity, page 29, and in Jenkins On the Reasonableness and Certainty of the Christian Religion, ii. chap. xxvi.

—11 Church] The following remarkable passage occurs in True Religion, vi. 169, which was Milton's last publication, and did not appear till the year before his death: "The Arian and Socinian are charged to dispute against the Trinity; yet they affirm to believe the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, according to Scripture and the Apostolic Creed. As for the terms Trinity, Triunity, Coessentiality, Tripersonality, and the like, they reject them as scholastic notions, not to be found in Scripture."

arose between the Eastern and the Western Churches on the subject of the spiration or procession of the Holy Ghost from the Father and the Son. —20 mind] “Sciunt, qui in Hebræis literis versati sunt, quam late pateat Spiritus nomen. Origine sua ventum significat; ob cuius subtilitatem, quæ visum fugit, ad alia transfertur: primum ad substantias; nam Deus, angeli boni malique, deinde ipse hominis animus eo vocabulo nuncupatur.” Grotius ad Luc. ix. 55. See also Gloucester Ridley’s First Sermon on the Divinity and Personality of the Holy Ghost, where he cautions against those grosser errors which arise from a confusion of kind.

—1 waters] Milton seems to allude to the Rabbinical interpretation of this passage, which, following the opinion of some of the Fathers, explains the Spirit of God to mean τὴν δύναμιν διαπλαστικὴν, or τὴν ἐνεργείαν ζωτικὴν, the creative or vivifying power. It seems extraordinary that Patrick should have chosen to adopt a mode of explanation nearly similar, and not less objectionable. “This therefore we are to understand to be here meant; the infinite wisdom and power of God, which made a vehement commotion and mighty fermentation (by raising perhaps a great wind) upon the face of the waters.” So too Grotius. —13 up] The Spanish Jesuit Sanctius, and Pradus, In Ezechielem Explanationes, &c. Romæ, 1596, understand this passage in the sense attributed to it by Milton.

—19 John xiii. 20.] Clarke, as might be expected, gives the same explanation of the passage, (Scripture Doctrine, Pt. I. Sect. 2. No. 66.) also quoting 1 Thess. iv. 8. He supports his opinion on the authority of Athanasius. Ὡστε ὁ ψευδόμενος τῷ ἀγίῳ πνεύματι, τῷ Θεῷ ἐψέβησας, τῷ κατοικοῦντι ἐν ἀνθρώποις διὰ τοῦ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ ὅπου γὰρ ἐστὶ τὸ πνεῦμα τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἐκεῖ ἐστιν ὁ Θεός. ἐν τούτῳ γὰρ, φησί, γινώσκουμεν ὅτι ὁ Θεός ἐν ἡμῖν μένει, ὅτι ἐκ τοῦ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ δέδωκεν ἡμῖν. De Incarnat. Verbi et contra Arianos. Lardner gives a different, but not less unsatisfactory explanation of the passage.

He says that as the apostles were plainly under an extraordinary divine influence and direction, when Ananias and Sapphira attempted to impose upon them by a false account, they were justly said to lie to God himself, and not to man. Letters on the Logos, Works, ii. 151.

—26 Father] There is some error in this passage in the manuscript, where it is written thus: "Quicquid incertum est annon hoc loco Spiritus Sanctus Deum Patrem significat: idem enim Petrus," &c. Unless we suppose that some words have fallen out, the sentence may be corrected by a very slight alteration: Quid, quod incertum est annon hoc loco Spiritus Sanctus Deum Patrem significet? idem, &c. I have followed this conjecture in the translation, as it is a form of sentence very frequently used in other parts of the treatise.

—26 day] The assertion that the Holy Ghost was unknown to the Jews before the Christian dispensation is as old as the time of Gregory of Nazianzum, who proves that they had certain means of knowing him by their Scriptures, in his treatise De Spiritu Sancto. Gloucester Ridley demonstrates the same thing at some length in his Second Sermon on Acts xix. 1-3, tracing the Jewish and Pagan opinions, and answering the objection to his conclusions derived from his text. Mr. Whitaker also proves very learnedly that the Jews possessed the same faith respecting the Trinity that we do, deriving it at first from their ancestors, the Patriarchs, and retaining it through all the ages of their history. They have only lost it now, as they have lost their title to the favor of God, and as they have lost other articles in the creed of their fathers. Origin of Arianism Disclosed, pp. 7, 240, &c.

—6 invocation] On this subject Milton is again at variance with himself. He speaks of some works which he meditated, the accomplishment of which was only to be obtained "by devout prayer to the Eternal Spirit, who can enrich with all utterance and knowledge, and sends out his seraphim with the hallowed fire of his altar to touch and purify the lips of whom he pleases." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 241. It should be remembered, however, that this treatise was written as early as 1642, when Milton was not more than thirty-four.

paulo post tribuuntur Christo. Unius enim Dei est, et quidem qui homo sit factus, sanguine suo ablueret mundi peccata; neque usquam angelis gloria et robur æternum tribuitur, sed hoc ipsum est quod angeli Dei acclamant. Christus ergo ut Deus hic describitur; septem autem isti spiritus ut ministri ante thronum collocantur; ergo etiam coram Christo, ut qui Deo Patri assideat. Denique ut nemo de hoc possit ambigere, iidem isti septem Spiritus infra v. 5, 6. Agni cornua et oculi, id est, ministri, dicuntur." Beza ad Apoc. i. 4. Drusius coincides in opinion with Beza, and Mede, B.I. Disc. 10. —111 Father] According to the doctrine of the Socinians. "Respondemus Spiritum Sanctum quidem per se, et, ut in scholis loquuntur, abstracte sumptum, qualitatem re vera esse, non substantiam." Crellius, in answer to the question "an Spiritus Sanctus substantia quædam sit, an vero mera tantum qualitas a Deo profecta." The expression of the old Socinian catechism is "Spiritus Sanctus est virtus Dei." The earliest heresy on this subject was that of Macedonius, in the middle of the fourth century; in opposition to which the following words were added to the Nicene creed by the second general council, assembled at Constantinople, A.D. 381: "The Lord and giver of life, who proceedeth from the Father, who with the Father and the Son together is worshipped and glorified, who spake by the prophets." The words "and the Son" were added subsequently by the Spanish and Gallic churches. See Bull's Judgment of the Catholic Church, chap. vi.

—2 Creation] Mr. Dunster, Considerations on Milton's Early Reading and the Prima Stamina of Paradise Lost, has undertaken to prove, and Mr. Todd, An Inquiry into the Origin of Paradise Lost, prefixed to Milton's Poetical Works, ii. 246, coincides in the opinion that the poet has adopted several thoughts and expressions from Joshua Sylvester's translation of the Divine Weekes and Workes of Du Bartas. As the subject of the poem is the same as that of this chapter, it seemed proper to refer to it for the purpose of ascertaining whether any passages appeared to have been present to the mind of Milton while discussing the same topic. They differ in some important particulars; as, for instance, on the Trinity, and on the creation of the world out of nothing, Du Bartas maintaining that "all this all did once of nought begin." There are, however, a few points sufficiently coincident to deserve noting, which the reader will find quoted in the proper places. The questions alluded to in the first paragraph of this chapter are thus noticed by Du Bartas:

Thou scoffing Atheist, that inquierest what
Th' Almighty did before he framed that;
What weighty worke his minde was busied on Eternally, before this world begun

God was not void of sacred exercise;
He did admire his glories' mysteries:
His power, his justice, and his providence,
His bounteous grace, and great beneficence
Were th' holy object of his heavenly thought,
Upon the which eternally it wrought.
It may be also that he meditated
The world's idea, ere it was created.

3d Edn. Sylvester's translation, London, 1611, page 3.

—5 question] Milton elsewhere alludes to the less serious employments of the Deity before the creation of the world, referring to Prov. viii. 24, 25, 30. "God himself conceals us not his own recreations before the world was built; I was, saith the eternal Wisdom, daily his delight, playing always before him." Tetrachordon, iv. 85. And again,

Before the hills appear'd, or fountain flow'd,
Thou with eternal Wisdom didst converse,
Wisdom thy sister, and with her didst play
In presence of th' Almighty Father, pleas'd
With thy celestial song. PL, vii. 8-12.

"Hinc causa proprie dicta, principium quoque nominatur a Cic. I. de Nat. Deorum, sed frequentius apud Græcos." Blackwall defends the active sense of ἀρχή in Rev. iii. 14. on the authority of Plato, quoting a passage from the Phædo, where the word is similarly used. Sacred Classics, ii. 177, edn. 1731. Who out of smallest things could without end
Have rais'd incessant armies to defeat

page 4, edn. 1734, London. —5 theory] So Drusius, Paulus Fagius, Estius, &c. and nearly all the English commentators. Tillotson takes occasion to reply to the objections raised against the doctrine, in his sermon On the Power of God, from Psal. lxi. 11. With regard to the opinion of the Fathers, Lactantius says, (De Orig. Error. lib. ii.) “Nemo quærat ex quibus ista materiis tam magna, tam mirifica opera Deus fecerit; omnia enim fecit ex nihilo.” Tertullian, (Advers. Hermog. cap. xlv.) “Igitur in quantum constitit materiam nullam fuisse, ex hoc etiam quod nec talem competat fuisse qualis inducitur, in tantum probatur omnia a Deo ex nihilo facta.” Justin (Aristotel. Dogm. evers.) εἰ οὕτως ἐστὶν ἡ ὕλη ἀγέννητος, ὥς ὁ Θεός, καὶ δύναιται ὁ Θεὸς ἐκ τοῦ ἀγέννητου ποιῆσαι τι, δέλον ὡς δύναται ὁ Θεὸς καὶ ἐκ τοῦ ἀπλῶς μὴ ὄντος ποιῆσαι τι. The Valentinians first affirmed matter to have been co-eternal with God, and the Gnostics followed them in a still more senseless modification of this heresy. See King On the Creed, page 81, edn. 1719. Stillingfleet’s Origines Sacre, Bk. iii. ch. 2. —7 nothing] See this argument answered by Beveridge, Exposition of the First Article, Works, ix. 50.

—3 things] There seems to be an error in the Latin MS. in this passage. It stands thus: neque compingi ex multis tanquam ex nihilo quicquam potest. It is probable that a confusion has arisen in the arrangement of the words, and that the sentence ought to have been: neque compingi ex nihilo tanquam ex multis quicquam potest.

—8 God] I am by no means confident that I have succeeded in conveying the meaning intended to have been expressed by Milton in the preceding sentences. In the original the passage is evidently corrupt, and it is not very easy to propose satisfactory emendations. I have ventured to translate it on the supposition that it was originally written and pointed thus: Ut extra Deum semper fuerit materia (quamvis principium tantummodo passivum sit, a Deo pendeat, eique subserviat; quamvis ut numeri, ita et ævi, vel sempiterni, nulla vis, nulla apud se efficacia sit) tamen ut ab æterno, inquam, per se materia extiterit intelligi non potest; nec si ab æterno non fuit, unde tandem fuerit intellectus est facilius; restat igitur hoc solum, præeunte præsertim scriptura, fuisse omnia ex Deo. —14 final] “Quot autem modis alicuius vi res est, tot esse species causæ statuendum est: Modis autem quatuor alicuius vi res est; ut recte Aristot. Phys. ii. 7. et nos supra diximus; vel enim a quo, vel ex quo, vel per quod, vel propter quod res una quæque est, eius vi esse recte dicitur. His modis nec plures inveniuntur, nec pauciores esse possunt; recte igitur causa distribuitur in causam a qua, ex qua, per quam, et propter quam, id est, efficientem, et materiam, aut formam, et finem.” Artis Logicæ, xi. 32.

Devoid of sense and notion. PL, ii. 151.

That is, devoid of all external and internal sense. This is the excellent correction of Mr. Upton, Critical Observations on Shakespeare, Bk. ii. sect. 10. page 225, for the old reading "motion." He remarks that "notion" is used both by Shakespeare and Milton in the same sense as Cicero intends by the word "idea."

—15 &c.] The opinion that angels were not created, but self-existent, according to the Manichæan system, is with great propriety attributed to Satan in Paradise Lost.

'That we were form'd then say'st thou? and the work
Of secondary hands, by task transferr'd
From Father to his Son? strange point and new!
Doctrine which we would know whence learn'd! who saw
When this creation was? remember'st thou
Thy making, while the Maker gave thee being?
We know no time when we were not as now;
Know none before us, self-begot, self-rai'd
By our own quick'ning power, when fatal course
Had circled his full orb, the birth mature
Of this our native Heav'n, ethereal sons.' PL, v. 853-863.

See Jortin's observations on this passage, Remarks on Ecclesiastical History, i. 411. In another place Satan proposes the question as doubtful:

Whether such virtue spent of old now fail'd
More angels to create, if they at least
Are his created. PL, ix. 145-147.

—15 first] So Jenkins, quoting Job xxxviii. 7. On the Reasonableness of the Christian Religion, Bk. ii. ch. 9. —28 world] "Plures e patribus Christianis angelos extitisse ante terram, vel ante mundum Mosaicum, per ignota nobis sæcula, statuerunt; aliqui etiam cœlos supremos, vel cœlum empyreum. Philos.* l. ii. c. 8. It is observable that Milton had indirectly declared himself to have believed in the pre-existence of angels in the Paradise Lost, where he represents Uriel to have been present at the creation of the visible world, and puts into his mouth the beautiful description quoted in a preceding page, "I saw when at his word the formless mass," &c.

in which passage the original reading, even in the copies corrected by Milton, was "fowl" instead of "soul." Dr. Newton agrees with Bentley, Pearce, and Richardson, in preferring "soul," and gives the following reason: "We have observed before, that when Milton makes the Divine Person speak, he keeps closely to Scripture. Now what we render 'living creature' (Gen. i. 24) is 'living soul' in the Hebrew, which Milton usually follows rather than our translation."

—18 order] The question which Milton now begins to discuss, is thus stated by Fiddes in his Body of Divinity, Bk. iii. Pt. i. "Whether they were all created at once in order to be united to certain bodies which should be prepared afterwards in convenient time for their reception; or whether they are created at the instant when the bodies they are to inform are fit to receive them, are questions which have been much controverted. . . . But the arguments which have been produced for the pre-existence of souls appear to be more specious, and in the opinion of some of the greatest men of antiquity, heathen and Christian, whom certain moderns of distinction in the learned world have followed, really conclusive." Our articles seem to leave the question undetermined, unless descent by propagation be conceived to be implied in the following words of the 9th article: "Every man that is naturally engendered of the offspring of Adam." —22 soul]

"Super animæ statu memini vestræ quæstiunculæ, immo maxime Ecclesiasticæ questionis; utrum lapsa de cælo sit, ut Pythagoras philosophus, omnesque Platonici, et Origenes putant; an a propria Dei substantia, ut Stoici, Manichæus, et Hispana Priscilliani hæresis suspicantur; an in thesauro habeantur Dei olim conditæ, ut quidam Ecclesiastici stulta persuasione confidunt; an quotidie a Deo fiant, et mittantur in corpora, secundum illud quod in evangelio scriptum est, Pater meus usque modo operatur ei ego operor; an certe ex traduce, ut Tertullianus, Apollinarius, et maxima pars occidentalium autumant, ut quomodo corpus ex corpore, sic anima nascatur ex anima, et simili cum brutis animalibus conditione subsistat." Hieronymi Epist. 82. (78 Edit. Benedict.) ad Marcellinum et Anapsychiam. Οὐκ ἄρα νῦν αἱ ψυχαὶ γίνονται· τὸ γὰρ, ὁ Πατήρ μου ἕως ἄρτι ἐργάζεται, οὐκ ἐπὶ τοῦ κτίζειν, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τοῦ προνοεῖν εἰρησθαι· καὶ αὐτῷ δοκεῖ Ἀπολλινάριω τὰς ψυχὰς ἀπὸ τῶν ψυχῶν τίκτεσθαι ὥσπερ ἀπὸ τῶν σωμάτων. προεῖναι γὰρ τὴν ψυχὴν κατὰ διαδοχὴν τοῦ πρώτου ἀνθρώπου εἰς τοὺς ἐξ ἐκείνου τεχθέντας, καθάπερ τὴν σωματικὴν διαδοχὴν. On which passage, in answer to Warburton's insinuation that one would think by this outward that Milton was of the sect of Anthropomorphites, as well as Materialists, Mr. Todd has well observed that the poet only meant to allude to the complete nature of man, the animal and the intellectual parts united, which the learned Hale, treating of the words "in the image of God made he man," minutely and admirably illustrates. sense. In his English works he commonly expresses it by the word "shape."

"Discipline is not only the removal of disorder; but if any visible shape can be given to divine things, the very visible shape and image of virtue." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 185. "regenerate in us the lovely shapes of virtues and graces." Ibid. iii. Pt. i. 191. "Truth indeed came once into the world with her divine master, and was a perfect shape most glorious to look on." Areopagitica, iv. 337. —13 souls] "We cannot deny but that besides Origen, several others of the ancient fathers before the fifth council seem either to have espoused the pre-existence of souls, or at least to have had a favor and kindness for it; in-somuch that St. Augustine himself is sometimes staggering in this point, and thinks it to be a great secret whether men's souls existed before their generations or no, and somewhere concludes it to be a matter of indifferency, wherein every one may have his liberty of opinion either way without offence." Cudworth's Intellectual System, chap. v. "Huius igitur damnationis in parvulis causam requiro, quia neque animarum, si novæ fiunt singulis singulæ, video esse ullum in illa ætate peccatum, nec a Deo damnari aliquam credo quam videt nullum habere peccatum." Augustinus De Origine animæ, &c. ad Hieron. "Quære ubi, vel unde, vel quando cœperint [animæ] damnationis meritum habere, si novæ sunt, ita sane ut Deum non facias, nec aliquam naturam, quam non condidit Deus, vel peccati earum vel innocentium damnationis auctorem. Et si inveneris quod te quærere admonui, quod ipse adhuc, fateor, non inveni, defende quantum potes, atque asserere animam infantium eiusmodi esse novitatem, ut nulla propagatione ducantur; et nobiscum quod inveneris fraterna dilectione communica." PAGE 53

—23 Gen. ii. 20.] In this illustration the chief stress is laid upon the suddenness with which Adam was enabled to give appropriate names to the brute creation, as it passed in review before him. Milton has two other allusions to this event, and the same circumstance is marked as the prominent feature of the case in both passages. There is nothing in the scriptural narration to suggest the particular idea, or the coincidence would have been less remarkable.

I nam'd them as they pass'd, and understood
Their nature, with such knowledge God endu'd
My sudden apprehension. PL, viii. 352-354.

"But Adam, who had the wisdom given him to know all creatures, and to name them according to their properties, no doubt but had the gift to discern perfectly that which concerned him much more, and to apprehend at first sight the true fitness of that consort which God provided him." Tetrachordon, iv. 92.

—17 power] See the versions of Beza and Tremellius, who translate the clause, sustineatque omnia verbo potentiae suae, or verbo illo suo potente, and, sustinet omnia virtute verbi sui. Mill reads αἰτοῦ, without noticing the other reading, nor have I remarked that Waterland, who often quotes and argues upon the passage, takes any notice of the variation. It is however mentioned by Doddridge; and Wetstein, who reads αἰτοῦ, has the following note: "αἰτοῦ, ut ad Patrem referatur. Christus verbo potentiae paternae cuncta fert. Editio Erasmi, Colinæi." To these two names Archbishop Newcome has added that of Bengelius, in the copy of Wetstein's New Testament which formerly belonged to that prelate, and which is enriched with several annotations in his hand-writing.

The opinion is expressed in the same doubtful manner in a speech of Raphael:

Time may come, when men
With angels may participate
And from these corporal nutriment perhaps
Your bodies may at last turn all to spirit,

—11 believers] This is the interpretation of Grotius, Hammond, (who quotes from the Fathers in support of his opinion) Wolf, Doddridge, Pearce, &c. But Milton probably alluded to Tremellius, whose version he principally used, and whose note is as follows: "Huius autem rei testes sunt et observatores angeli in ecclesia Dei, ab externo ordine internam Dei gratiam et pietatem membrorum optime recognoscentes. Psal. xxxiv. 8. et xci. 11. Matt. xviii. 10. John i. 52. Eph. iii. 10. 1 Tim. v. 21. Heb. i. 14. 1 Pet. i. 12." These seem to have been the "numerous examples" referred to above.

This is a favorite doctrine with Milton, and the accounts of his domestic life prove that he acted upon it in his intercourse with his family. Johnson has truly remarked that throughout Paradise Lost, both before and after the fall, the superiority of Adam to Eve is diligently sustained. See volume xvii, page 353, note on line 11. Speaking of Boadicea in the History of Britain, x. 68, he considers her bearing authority as "the rankest note of barbarism, as if in Britain women were men, and men women." See also his contemptuous mention of the sex, Paradise Lost, x. 888-895. Again, "For he in vain makes a vaunt of liberty in the senate or in the forum, who languishes under the vilest servitude, to an inferior at home." Second Defence, viii. 133.

—19 marriage] "Certain it is that whereas other nations used a liberty not unnatural, for one man to have many wives, the Britons altogether as licentious, but more absurd and preposterous in their license, had one or many wives in common among ten or twelve husbands." History, x. 87. With the exception of this hint, I am not aware of any passage in Milton's printed works which contains a clue to his opinions respecting polygamy. His history was written just before he became Latin Secretary to the Council, about the year 1650; and it is observable that although, according to the above quotation, he appears to have been inclined in favor of the practice, he then admitted its licentiousness.

—25 reality] See the title to Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 512, "wherein also are set down the bad consequences of abolishing, or condemning of sin, that which the law of God allows, and Christ abolished not." "In these opinions it would be more religion to advise well, lest we make ourselves juster than God, by censuring rashly that for sin, which his unspotted law without rebuke allows, and his people without being conscious of displeasing him have used." Ibid. iii. —14 faith] Though the words of this difficult clause are rendered very variously by the different commentators, yet, with the exception of Grotius, who explains the passage with reference to the origin of souls ex traduce from our natural parents, nearly all agree in considering it as an argument against polygamy. The interpretation which Milton seems to prefer is suggested by Tirinus and Menochius. See Poole's Synopsis in loc.

—2 Nehemiah] "It wrought so little disorder among the Jews, that from Moses till after the captivity, not one of the prophets thought it worth the rebuking; for that of Malachi well looked into will appear to be not against divorcing, but rather against keeping strange concubines, to the vexation of their Hebrew wives." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 509. "He that reads attentively will soon perceive, that God blames not here the Jews for putting away their wives, but for keeping strange concubines, to the profaning of Judah's holiness, and the vexation of their Hebrew wives, v. 11 and 14. Judah hath married the daughter of a strange god: and exhorts them rather to put away their wives whom they hate, as the law permitted, than to keep them under such affronts. And it is received, that this prophet lived in those times of Ezra and Nehemiah (nay by some is thought to be Ezra himself) when the people were forced by these two worthies to put their strange wives away. So that what the story of those times, and the plain context of the 11th verse, from whence this rebuke begins, can give us to conjecture of the obscure and curt Ebraisms that follow, this prophet does not forbid putting away, but forbids keeping, and commands putting away according to God's law, which is the plainest interpreter both of what God will, and what he can best suffer." Tetrachordon, iv. 109-110.

—13 conclusion] The original of this sentence affords no satisfactory sense. "Id eiusmodi est profecto, ut argumentum ipsum pro adulterio sit protinus repudiandum." The fondness for that play upon words which is so characteristic of Milton, and of which, as has been already observed (see vol. xiv, page 27, line 12) this treatise furnishes numerous examples, renders it not improbable that it was originally written pro adulterino; for which the amanuensis employed in transcribing this part of the manuscript, substituted the more common word adulterio. The same word is used with a similar conceit in another treatise. "Si quis conductitunculus, et compositos venalissimi hominis ploratus, si quis declamatiunculas, quas etiam ancilaris concubitus, adulterinas edixit et spurias, Morilli nothi gemellas, fide satis locupletes, arbitratur esse, ad me quod attinet, nihil quidem moror, quo minus ita existimet." Defensio Secunda, viii. 144-146.

"Marriage is a divine institution . . . common duty than matrimonial." Ibid. iv. 105-106. —16 state] "If we speak of a command in the strictest definition, then marriage itself is no more a command than divorce; but only a free permission to him that cannot contain." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 479. "But here the Christian prudence lies, to consider what God hath joined: shall we say that God hath joined error, fraud, unfitness, wrath, contention, perpetual loneliness, perpetual discord; whatever lust, or wine, or witchery, threat or enticement, avarice or ambition hath joined together, faithful with unfaithful, christian with anti-christian, hate with hate, or hate with love, shall we say this is God's joining?" Tetrachordon, iv. 151. —26 genius] "It is error or some evil angel which either blindly or maliciously hath drawn together, in two persons ill embarked in wedlock, the sleeping discords and enmities of nature." Divorce, iii. And these were they, not for whom Moses made the law (God forbid), but whose hardness of heart taking ill advantage of this law, he held it better to suffer as by accident where it could not be detected, rather than good men should lose their just and lawful privilege of remedy; Christ therefore having to answer these tempting Pharisees, according as his custom was, not meaning to inform their proud ignorance what Moses did in the true intent of the law, which they had ill-cited, suppressing the true cause for which

Moses gave it, and extending it to every slight matter, tells them their own, what Moses was forced to suffer by their abuse of his law." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 454-455. See also pp. 482-483: "Moses had granted . . . contentious cause whatsoever." But that it was not thus suffered from the beginning ever since the race of men corrupted, and laws were made, he who will affirm must have found out other antiquities than are yet known. Besides, we must consider now, what can be so as from the beginning, not only what should be so. In the beginning, had men continued perfect, it had been just that all things should have remained, as they began to Adam and Eve," &c. Tetrachordon, iv. 170. —20 only] "For the language of Scripture signifies by fornication . . . not only the trespass of body . . . but signifies also any notable disobedience, or intractable carriage of the wife to the husband." Tetrachordon, iv. 179. —23 Hebræa] See Book iii. chap. xxii and xxvii. Selden is quoted again with approbation in the Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 505. "Let him hasten to be acquainted with that noble volume written by our learned Selden, Of the Law of Nature and of Nations, a work more useful and more worthy to be perused by whosoever studies to be a great man in wisdom, equity, and justice," &c. He calls him also in Areopagitica, iv. 309, "the chief of learned men reported in this land." Again, in the Second Defence, viii. 132, referring to the treatise here quoted, he says: "quid item de excepta solum fornicatione sentiendum sit, et meam aliorumque sententiam exprompsi, et clarissimus vir Seldenus noster, in Uxore Hebræa plus minus biennio post edita, uberius demonstravit." —27 treatise] This is the only direct reference to any of Milton's printed works which this treatise contains. The allusion is to a passage in Tetrachordon, iv. 177-185, where the author explains the text, saving for the cause of fornication. It has been generally supposed that Milton's opinions on the subject of divorce were influenced by the well-known circumstances connected with his first marriage, and Warton says that he published Tetrachordon in consequence. Some probability seems to have been given to this conjecture by the passage quoted in the note on line 26, page 163. But though Milton's attention may have been first directed to this subject by his own domestic unhappiness, it is evident from the work now published, that his sentiments respecting divorce were deliberately conceived, and that the treatises which he printed during his life time were not merely intended to serve a temporary purpose in which he was personally interested. —11 husband] "Grotius shows also, that fornication is taken in Scripture for such a continual head-strong behavior, as tends to plain contempt of the husband, and proves it out of Judg. xix. 2. where the Levite's wife is said to have played the whore against him; which Josephus and the Septuagint, with the Chaldean, interpret only of stubbornness and rebellion against her husband. . . . Had it been whoredom, she would have chosen any other place to run to than to her father's house, it being so infamous for a Hebrew woman to play the harlot, and so opprobrious to the parents. Fornication then in this place of the Judges is understood for stubborn disobedience against the husband, and not for adultery." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 487-488. —12 unbeliever] See 1 Cor. vii. 15.

Now if it be plain that a Christian may be brought into unworthy bondage, and his religious peace not only interrupted now and then, but perpetually and finally hindered in wedlock, by misyoking with a diversity of nature as well as of religion, the reasons of St. Paul cannot be made special to that one case of infidelity, but are of equal moment to divorce wherever Christian liberty and peace are without fault equally obstructed." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 491. —15 Christian] "St. Paul here warrants us to seek peace rather than to remain in bondage. If God hath called us to peace, why should not we follow him? why should we miserably stay in perpetual discord under a servitude not required?" Tetrachordon, iv. 201.

—10 saying] "But if it be thought that the disciples, offended at the rigor of Christ's answer, could yet obtain no mitigation of the former sentence pronounced to the Pharisees, it may be fully answered, that our Savior continues the same reply to his disciples, as men leavened with the same customary license which the Pharisees maintained, and displeased at the removing of a traditional abuse, whereto they had so long not unwillingly been used." Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 460. "Some may think, if this our Savior's sentence be so fair, as not commanding aught that patience or nature cannot brook, why then did the disciples murmur and say, it is not good to marry? I answer, that the disciples had been longer bred up under the Pharisaean doctrine, than under that of Christ, and so no marvel though they yet retained the infection of loving old licentious customs; no marvel though they thought it hard they might not for any offence, that thoroughly angered them, divorce a wife, as well as put away a servant, since it was but giving her a bill, as they were taught." Tetrachordon, iv. 187. —19 institution] "For although God in the first ordaining of marriage taught us to what end he did it, in words expressly implying the apt and cheerful conversation of man with woman, to comfort and refresh him against the evil of solitary life, not mentioning the purpose of generation till afterwards, as being but a secondary end in dignity, though not in necessity," &c. Divorce, iii. But when they passed the bounds that God had appointed them, as unworthy of God's benefits, they are expelled and driven out of Paradise; they may no longer eat the fruits of that garden, which by excess they had so much abused." Newton has the following note on these lines. "The divines, especially those of Milton's communion, reckon up several sins as included in this one act of eating the forbidden fruit; namely, pride, uxoriousness, wicked curiosity, infidelity, disobedience, &c. so that for such complicated guilt, he deserved to fall from his happy state in Paradise." He says again, on the first appearance of Adam and Eve before God after their fall,

Love was not in their looks, either to God,
Or to each other, but apparent guilt,
And shame, and perturbation, and despair,
Anger and obstinacy and hate and guile. PL, x. 111-114.

See also PL, ix. 6-8. Milton may perhaps have remembered the following lines of Du Bartas:

Now Adam's fault was not indeed so light
As seems to reason's sin-blear'd owlie sight;
But 'twas a chain where all the greatest sins
Were one in other linked fast, as twins:
Ingratitude, pride, treason, gluttony,

Too curious skill-thirst, envie, felony,
 Too-light, too-late belief, were the sweet baits
 That made him wander from Heav'n's holy straights.

—3 physical] "These do also think that the threatening made to Adam, that upon his eating the forbidden fruit he should surely die, is to be taken literally, and is to be carried no further than to a natural death. . . . All this these divines apprehend is conceivable, and no more; therefore they put original sin in this only, for which they pretend they have all the Fathers with them before St. Austin, and particularly St. Chrysostom and Theodoret, from whom all the later Greeks have done little more than copied out their words." Burnet On the Ninth Article. The view taken of original sin by Jeremy Taylor seems not to have been essentially different from the opinion contained in the preceding quotation. Bp. Heber points out in a masterly and candid manner the inaccuracy of reasoning which led to his partial heterodoxy on this subject. Life prefixed to Taylor's Works, ccxx-ccxxxi. —28 guiltless]

And from these corporal nutriments perhaps
Your bodies may at last turn all to spirit,

Lest that pure breath of life, the spirit of man

But I shall die a living death? O thought Horrid, if true! yet why? it was but breath
Of life that sinn'd; what dies but what had life
And sin? the body properly hath neither.
All of me then shall die: let this appease
The doubt, since human reach no further knows.

When Milton wrote Il Penseroso, his opinions respecting the soul seem to have been different. He there summons the spirit of Plato to unfold the mystery of the separate state in which he supposed it to exist after death.

The present treatise contains nine quotations from the classics, seven of which are from the authors mentioned. Aristotle, whom in the Tenure, v. 12. he calls "one of the best interpreters of nature and morality," is likewise often expressly quoted, or alluded to; but not a single direct reference is made to Plato, who, as Mr. Todd justly remarks on the authority of the poet himself, was one of the principal objects of his regard. It seems to have been brought in from the Platonic school in the second century, to express the union of the three persons; and about the fourth century, when disputes concerning the nature of the Godhead first began to excite much attention, it came into general use as the most convenient term for expressing the Scripture doctrine on the subject. Nam λόγος in utero virginis existens, humanam naturam sibi ipse, in seipso, tum corpus ex substantia Mariæ formando, tum animam simul creando, assumpsit; atque ita illam in seipso, et sibi assumpsit, ut illa natura nunquam per se substituerit, extra λόγον; sed et tum primum, et deinceps semper in ὅτι ταντὺν substituerit." It may be proper to subjoin the language of our own article too on the subject, that it may be seen in what degree Milton differs from it. "The Son . . . the very and eternal God, of one substance with the Father, took man's nature in the womb of the blessed virgin of her substance; so that two whole and perfect natures, that is, the Godhead and manhood, were joined together in one person, never to be divided; whereof is one Christ, very God and very man." The two great heresies on this doctrine were those of Nestorius and Eutyches, of whom the one confounded the natures, the other divided the persons. The council of Chalcedon declared it to be the true faith that Christ was perfect God and perfect man, ἀσυγχύτως, ἀτρέπτως, ἀδιαίρετως, ἀχωρίστως. See Euagrii Eccles. Histor. lib. ii. cap. 4. Several of the expressions in the soliloquy from which these lines are extracted are founded on the supposition, that Christ was not possessed of all the knowledge which his human nature was capable of receiving by virtue of the union of the two natures, and from the first moment of that union. See the authorities by which this opinion is supported, in the note on the above passage in Dr. Hawkins's edition of Milton's poetical works.

—8 ubiquity] This alludes to the doctrine of the Ubiquitarians, who held the omnipresence of the human body of Christ. This opinion seems to have been first maintained by Brentius, one of the earliest reformers, in 1560. Luther favored it in his controversy with Zuingli, but subsequently acknowledged its difficulties, especially as connected with the corporal presence in the Eucharist. After his death it was again advanced by Brentius, supported by Chemnitius and Andræus. The Lutheran church has received the doctrine. Curcellæus, Instit. v. 15. 9-15. argues against it; Milton alludes to it in the Artis Logica, xi. 374-376, instancing the fallacy of an argument by which it is sometimes supported. "Peccatur autem terminis pluribus, vel aperit, vel tectus. . . . Giving to death, and dying to redeem. PL, iii. 299.
 Which line is thus explained by Warburton. "Milton's system of divinity taught, not only that man was redeemed, but likewise that a real price was paid for his redemption; dying to redeem therefore signifying only redemption in a vague uncertain sense, but imperfectly represents his system; so imperfectly, that it may as well be called the Socinian; the price paid (which implies a proper redemption) is wanting. But to pay a price implying a voluntary act, the poet therefore well expresses it by giving to death, that is, giving himself to death; so that the sense of the line fully expresses Milton's notion; heavenly love gave a price for the redemption of mankind, and by virtue of that price really redeemed them." —6 mankind] See the texts and arguments on which this doctrine is supported in Whitby's Second Discourse on the Five Points, entitled The Extent of Christ's Redemption, and —24 faith] Ut pœnitentia ad resipiscentiam, ita fides huiusmodi se habet ad finem salvificam. This is probably an allusion to the distinction made by Lactantius between these two words. "Is enim quem facti sui pœnitet, errorem suum pristinum intelligit: ideoque Græci melius et significantius μετάνοιαν dicunt; quam nos possimus resipiscentiam dicere; resipiscit enim, ac mentem suam quasi ab insania recipit, quem errati piget, castigatque seipsum demeritæ, et confirmat animum suum ad rectius vivendum; tum illud maxime cavet, ne rursus in eosdem laqueos inducatur." Lib. 6. De Vero Cultu, c. 24. Tertullian, however, in his treatise on Repentance, and the Fathers in general, use the two words indiscriminately. Hey, Lectures, Bk. iv. art. 16. sect. 23, note d, is incorrect in stating, on the authority of Ainsworth, that the word "resipiscentia" was coined from μετάνοια in the time of Lactantius. The expression "resipiscere" in the 16th Article, Latin, is translated in the English articles both of 1552 and 1562 by the phrase "amend our lives." The last words of the same article, in both sets of the Latin, is "vere resipiscentibus"; which in the English of 1552 is rendered "to such as truly repent and amend their lives"; in the English of 1562 the words in italics are omitted.

Chapter title] Some ambiguity is caused in this chapter from the two significations of the word δικαιοσύνη, which our translators have sometimes rendered by the word "justification," sometimes by "righteousness." —13-14 condition] This will be best explained by a parallel passage in Whitby. "Whereas some take refuge in the supposed conditional proposal of the words, which, say they, assert nothing; they fly for refuge to a mere mistake, the words in the original being not "if," but "beshub," ἐν ἡ ἂν ἡμέρα ἐπιστρέφῃ, "in the day that he turns away from his righteousness." And again, "when I say to the righteous he shall live, vehu, and he trust in his righteousness." On the Five Points, page 393.

—28 law] This opinion, that it was inconsistent with the liberty of the gospel to consider the decalogue as a law binding on Christians, is probably the reason why Milton forbears to mention it, where Michael describes to Adam the civil and ritual commandments delivered to the Jews. The omission is too remarkable not to have been designed, considering the noble opportunity which would have been afforded for enlarging on its moral precepts. See Paradise Lost, xii. 230-248.

—18 water] In profluentem aquam. By the admission of this word into the definition, it is evident that Milton attributed some importance to this circumstance, probably considering that the superior purity of running water was peculiarly typical of the thing signified. Hence it appears that the same epithet employed in Paradise Lost, in a passage very similar to the present, is not merely a poetical ornament.

Tertullian concludes differently, arguing that any water which can be conveniently procured, is sufficient for the spirit of the ordinance. "Nulla distinctio est mari quis an stagno, flumine an fonte, lacu an alveo diluatur; nec quidquam refert inter eos quos Ioannes in Iordane, et quos Petrus in Tiberi tinxit; nisi et ille spado quem Philippus inter vias fortuita aqua tinxit, plus salutis aut minus retulit." De Baptismo, iv.

Our divines deny it to be a sacrament, yet retained the celebration, till prudently a late parliament recovered the civil liberty of marriage from their encroachment, and transferred the ratifying and registering thereof from the canonical shop to the proper cognizance of civil magistrates." Hirelings, vi. 72-73.

Of the moderns, Beza, Lightfoot, &c., have adopted the same opinion. On the other side are Tertullian, Ambrose, Basil, Whitby, Pere Simon, Grotius, &c. See Barrow On the Pope's Supremacy; Hammond and Whitby on Matt. x. 2. —19 committed] Milton elsewhere, to ridicule the notion that Peter and his successors are specially entrusted with the keys of heaven, places him at the "wicket," while "embryos and idiots, eremites and friars, white, black and gray, with all their trumpet," are "blown transverse" into the paradise of fools.

And now Saint Peter at heaven's wicket seems

To wait them with his keys. PL, iii. 484-485.

In Lycidas, however, the allusion to the keys is introduced more seriously.

Two massy keys he bore of metals twain,

—26-27 constituted] This is an important passage, because it discloses Milton's real views upon a point on which his opinions have been represented in a more unfavorable light than they seem to have deserved. Bishop Newton remarks that "in the latter part of his life he was not a professed member of any particular sect of Christians, he frequented no public worship, nor used any religious rite in his family. Whether so many different forms of worship as he had seen had made him indifferent to all forms; or whether he thought that all Christians had in some things corrupted the purity and simplicity of the gospel; or whether he disliked their endless and uncharitable disputes, and that love of dominion and inclination to persecution which he said was a piece of popery inseparable from all churches; or whether he believed that a man might be a good Christian without joining in any communion; or whether he did not look upon himself as inspired, as wrapt up in God, and above all forms and ceremonies, it is not easy to determine: to his own master he standeth or falleth: but if he was of any denomination, he was a sort of Quietist, and was full of the interior of religion, though he so little regarded the exterior." The note of Dr. Hawkins on this passage, in his edition of Milton's Poetical Works, i. 101, deserves to be mentioned as containing a very candid and judicious estimate of Milton's character in regard to the point in question. Many parts of the present treatise bear a remarkable testimony to the acuteness with which Dr. Hawkins has detected some of the errors of Milton's religious system, by the unprejudiced spirit in which he has examined the imperfect materials afforded him in the printed works. He observes as follows on Milton's alleged disuse of public worship, which is asserted on the authority of Toland. "The reproach that has been thrown on him of frequenting no place of worship in his latter days, should be received, as Dr. Symmons observes, with some caution. His blindness and other infirmities might be in part his excuse; and it is certain that his daily employments were always ushered in by devout meditation and study of the Scriptures."

It is remarkable that this despiser of academical distinctions not only took his first two degrees in regular course at Cambridge, B.A. 1628, M.A. 1632, but was also admitted ad eundem at Oxford in 1635. See Wood, Fasti Oxonienses, x. 262.

—12 minister] It is evident from many passages in the printed works of Milton, that even the Presbyterian institutions did not accord with his notions of Christian liberty. He often attacks the presbyters, during the time when episcopacy was abolished, with as much severity as the bishops during their ascendancy. Warton observes, that he contended for that sort of individual or personal religion, by which every man is to be his own priest. See his edition of Milton's smaller Poems, p. 326. edn. 1785. "The third priesthood only remaining, is common to all the faithful." Hirelings, vi. 88. "If all the faithful be now a holy and a royal priesthood, 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9. not excluded from the dispensation of things holiest, after free election of the church, and imposition of hand . . . for the gospel makes no difference from the magistrate himself to the meanest artificer, if God evidently favor him with spiritual gifts, as he can easily, and oft hath done." Ibid. vi. 98 "So is he by the same appointment [of God] ordained, and by the church's call admitted, to such offices of discipline in the church, to which his own spiritual gifts . . . have authorized him." Reason, iii. Pt. i. 257-258. "Ecclesiasticorum duntaxat bona fuere, qui hoc maxime sensu clerici, vel etiam holoclerici, ut qui sortem totam invasissent, rectius nominari poterant." Defensio Secunda, viii. 180. Milton seems to intimate that the distinction between clergy and laity is of modern date, whereas it was known in the time of Clemens Romanus. See Bingham's Antiquities, Clem. ad Cor. i. 5. sect. 40.

Matt. ix. 38. Acts xx. 28. Rom. x. 15. how shall they preach, unless they be sent? By whom sent? By the university, or the magistrate, or their belly? No surely, but sent from God only, and that God who is not their belly." Hirelings, vi. 93. It is remarkable that in the articles of 1552 no list is given. Compare Cosin, and Jones On the Canon of Scripture.

—9 comments] Considering the language employed in parts of this treatise, Milton more frequently censures the metaphysical divinity than might have been expected. His practice at least, in this as well as in some other points, is not very consistent with his theory. He speaks, however, in other works in the same slighting manner of the sophistry of the schools. In the following passage it is not impossible that he may allude to the very treatise now published. "Somewhere or other, I trust, may be found some wholesome body of divinity, as they call it, without school-terms and metaphysical notions, which have obscured rather than explained our religion, and made it difficult without cause." Hirelings, vi. 78.

See Blackwall On Sacred Classics, i. 115. —25 himself] Milton, as might be expected, asserts in the most unqualified terms the right of private judgment. The doctrine of the Church of England is that the Church has authority in controversies of Faith; yet, as it ought not to decree anything against Holy Writ, so besides the same ought it not to enforce anything to be believed for necessity of salvation. See Art 20. —26 him] "Every true Christian, able to give a reason of his faith, hath the word of God before him, the promised Holy Spirit, and the mind of Christ within: 1 Cor. ii. 16." Civil Power, vi. 7.

It is singular that Milton should have fallen into this error, which is that of the Quakers. Once it is admitted, it opens the door to any wild conceit which the imagination can frame. —18 adultery]

"With good cause, therefore, it is the general consent of all sound Protestant writers, that neither traditions, councils, nor canons of any visible church, much less edicts of any magistrate or civil session, but the Scripture only, can be the final judge or rule in matters of religion, and that only in the conscience of every Christian to himself." Civil Power, vi. 6-7. —23 unwritten] "He hath revealed and taught it us in the Holy Scriptures by inspired ministers, and in the gospel by his own Son and his apostles, with strictest command to reject all other traditions or additions whatsoever; according to that of St. Paul, Gal. i. 8. and Deut. iv. 2. Wolves shall succeed for teachers, grievous wolves. PL, xii. 508.

"Not long after, as the apostle foretold, hirelings like wolves came in by herds." Hirelings, vi. 49. To the same effect Milton quotes Gildas's character of the Saxon clergy: "subtle prowlers, pastors in name, but indeed wolves; intent upon all occasions, not to feed the flock, but to pamper and well-line themselves." History of Britain, x. 134. "Immo lupi verius plerique eorum, quam aliud quidvis erant dicendi . . . pingua illis plerumque omnia, ne ingenio quidem excepto; decimis enim saginantur, improbato ab aliis omnibus ecclesiis more; Deoque sic diffidunt, ut eas malint per magistratum atque per vim suis gregibus extorquere, quam vel divinæ providentiæ, vel ecclesiarum benevolentia et gratitudini debere." Defensio Secunda, viii. 180-182. —28 own] "Under the law he gave them tithes; under the gospel, having left all things in his church to charity and Christian freedom, he hath given them only what is justly given them. That, as well under the gospel, as under the law, say our English divines, and they only of all Protestants, is tithes; and they say true, if any man be so minded to give them of his own the tenth or twentieth; but that the law therefore of tithes is in force under the gospel, all other Protestant divines, though equally concerned, yet constantly deny." Hirelings, vi. 50-51.

"If he give it as to his teacher, what justice or equity compels him to pay for learning that religion which leaves freely to his choice whether he will learn it or no, whether of this teacher or of another, and especially to pay for what he never learned, or approves not?" Ibid. vi. 85. —17 themselves] This passage is remarkable for being perhaps the only remark in the treatise which alludes directly to Milton's times. He refers to the ministers of the Presbyterian establishment, of whom he complains heavily in other works. "They have fed themselves, and not their flocks." Animadversions, iii. Pt. i. 170. "Rambling from benefice to benefice, like ravenous wolves, seeking where they may devour the biggest." Tenure, v. 44. "Aliis fortasse in locis haud æque ministris provisum; nostris iam satis superque bene erat; oves potius appellandi quam pastores, pascuntur magis quam pascunt." Defensio Secunda, viii. 180. —18 live] In Hirelings, vi. 80, Milton answers the "sluggish objection" of how ministers shall live, by proposing the public foundations for their education should be so conducted that "the youth therein may be at once brought up to a competence of learning and to an honest trade; and the hours of teaching so ordered, as their study may be no hindrance to their labor or other calling." The destruction of the clerical order for which Milton contends in these passages is a singular proposal. It is extraordinary that he should have seen no distinction between the ordinary case of religious teachers, and that of our Lord, even if he had united a secular business with his ministry, which Mark vi. 3. does not prove, or of St. Paul and other inspired men.

—24 Paul] "Our great clerks think that these men, because they have a trade, (as Christ himself and St. Paul had) cannot therefore attain to some good measure of knowledge." Animadversions, iii. Pt. i. 118. "This was the breeding of St. Paul, though born of no mean parents, a free citizen of the Roman empire; so little did his trade debase him, that it rather enabled him to use that magnanimity of preaching the gospel through Asia and Europe at his own charges." Hirelings, vi. 80. "The church elected them to be her teachers and overseers, though not thereby to separate them from whatever calling she then found them following beside; as the example of St. Paul declares, and the first times of Christianity." Ibid. vi. 98. —28 occurred] "They pretend that their education, either at school or university, hath been very chargeable, and therefore ought to be repaired in future by a plentiful maintenance." Hirelings, vi. 91. See also Animadversions, iii. Pt. i. 160.

For how else can be fulfilled that which God hath promised, to pour out such abundance of knowledge upon all sorts of men in the times of the gospel? How should the people examine the doctrine which is taught them, as Christ and his apostles continually bid them do? How should they discern and beware of false prophets, and try every spirit, if they must be thought unfit to judge of the minister's abilities?" Smectymmuus, iii. Pt. i. 344. "Every member of the church, at least of any breeding or capacity, so well ought to be grounded in spiritual knowledge, as, if need be, to examine their teachers themselves, Acts xvii. 11. Rev. ii. 2. How should any private Christian try his teachers, unless he be well grounded himself in the rule of Scripture by which he is taught?" True Religion, vi. 176.

owing to Milton's dislike of councils, that he describes in his epic poems the consultations of the fallen angels in terms borrowed from ecclesiastical assemblies. The devils are said to "sit in secret conclave," Paradise Lost, i. 795; and their council is styled "a gloomy consistory," Paradise Regained, i. 442. He also says in a letter to a friend, written in the year 1659, "I pray that the Protestant synod, which you say is soon to meet at Leyden, may have a happy termination, which has never yet happened to any synod that has ever met before." [Epistolarum Familiarum, No. 29.]

A most improbable way, and such as never yet was used, at least with good success, by any Protestant kingdom or state since the reformation." Eikonklastes, v. 208. See also Ibid. v. 248. Among the subjects for tragedies, given by Birch and Todd from Milton's MSS. is "Ahab; beginning at the synod of false prophets." Of councils, however, composed as he supposes them to have been in the early times of Christianity, he speaks otherwise in Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 376.

Such pleasure she reserv'd,
Adam relating, she sole auditress;
Her husband the relater she preferr'd
Before the angel, and of him to ask Chose rather. viii. 50-54.

The same decorum is observed subsequently, when Eve is not permitted to see the vision which Michael displays to Adam from the highest hill of Paradise. On descending from the "specular mount" to the bower where Eve had been left sleeping, the angel says to his companion, thou, at season fit,

Let her with thee partake what thou hast heard;

Chiefly what may concern her faith to know. PL, xii. 597-599.

—17 subdued] The Millenarians or Fifth Monarchy men of the 17th century were sufficiently numerous to occupy a place in the history of Milton's times. It appears from this treatise, that he himself was far from holding the extravagant and fanatical opinions which characterized the greater part of this sect. He believes, in common with Irenæus and Lactantius among the fathers, and with Joseph Mede and Bp. Newton among the moderns, that Christ will "reign on earth with his saints, until all his enemies shall be subdued." Allusions to this belief are frequent in all his works. Iren. lib. v. cap. 35. And again in a splendid passage near the end of Reformation, iii. Pt. i. 78-79:
 "Thou, the eternal and shortly expected King, shalt open the clouds to judge the several kingdoms of the world, and distributing national honors and rewards to religious and just commonwealths, shall put an end to all earthly tyrannies, proclaiming thy universal and mild monarchy through heaven and earth; where they undoubtedly, that by their labors, counsels, and prayers, have been earnest for the common good of religion and their country, shall receive above the inferior orders of the blessed, the regal addition of principalities, legions, and thrones into their glorious titles, and in supereminence of beatific vision, progressing the dateless and irrevoluble circle of eternity, shall clasp inseparable hands with joy and bliss, in over-measure for ever." —27 it] "Veniebat; perfecturus in terris mysterium redemptionis nostræ." Junius on Dan. vii. 13.

Chrysost. in Ep. ad Rom. Homil. 31. The opinions of the Fathers and others on this subject are quoted by King On the Creed, 225-230. Milton elsewhere refers to the locality of hell:

 As from the center thrice to th' utmost pole. PL, i. 70-74.

Pt. ii. 442. See, however, PL, xii. 41, where Milton is inconsistent with himself, as Bentley has noticed. —[15 vision] The distinction which Milton makes between the beginnings of bliss which are attainable in this life, and that perfect glorification which will ensue hereafter, coincides with the expressions in the Hymn on the Nativity:

And then at last our bliss

—2 Christianity] "He [Constantine] gave and ministered occasion to bring in a deluge of ceremonies, thereby either to draw in the heathen by a resemblance of their rites, or to set a gloss upon the simplicity and plainness of Christianity, which, to the gorgeous solemnities of paganism, and the sense of the world's children, seemed but a homely and yeomanly religion." Reformation, iii. Pt. i. 24-25. "This was that which made the old Christians paganize, while by their scandalous and base conforming to heathenism they did no more, when they had done their utmost, but bring some pagans to Christianize; for true Christians they neither were themselves, nor could make others in this fashion." Animadversions, iii. Pt. i. 130. For numerous instances of these corruptions, see the ecclesiastical historians and other authorities. The policy which led to what one of the most eloquent of living writers happily calls "paganizing Christianity in order to christen paganism," has found its supporters in Mosheim and Gibbon. The former says: "in these early times it was both wise and necessary to show, in the establishment of outward forms of worship, some indulgence to the ancient opinions, manners and laws of the respective nations to whom the gospel was preached. . . . In a word, the external forms of worship used in the times of old must necessarily have been regulated and modified according to the character, genius, and manners of the different nations on which the light of the gospel arose." Ecclesiastical History, i. 100. "The bishops augmented the number of religious rites in the Christian worship, by way of accommodation to the infirmities and prejudices both of Jews and heathens, in order to facilitate thus their conversion to Christianity," &c. Ibid. 162. "After the conversion of the Imperial city, the Christians still continued in the month of February the annual celebration of the Lupercalia; to which they ascribed a secret and mysterious influence on the genial powers of the animal and vegetable world." Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, chap. xxxvi. Barbeyrac, Traité de la Morale des Pères, chap. v. sect. 59, &c. accuses Clemens Alexandrinus of having permitted the heathen converts to worship the sun, moon, and other heavenly bodies; but the passage alluded to, when candidly considered, seems to admit of a different construction. See Strom. lib. vi. cap. xiv. pp. 795, 796. Edn. Oxon. The author of the life of Gregory Thaumaturgus mentions the following instance of a concession granted to the Christians of the second century. "Cum animadvertisset [Gregorius] quod ob corporeas delectationes et voluptates simplex et imperitum vulgus in simulacrorum cultus errore permaneret . . . permisit eis, ut in memoriam et recordationem sanctorum martyrum sese oblectarent, et in lætitiā effunderentur, quod successu temporis aliquando futurum esset ut sua sponte ad honestiorem et accuratiorem vitæ rationem transirent." In the sixth century, Gregory the First, Bishop of Rome, even went so far as to rebuke Serenus,

Bishop of Marseilles, for breaking the images placed in churches, stating that he was desirous of conciliating the affections of the people by permitting the use of them, as pieces of history to instruct their minds in the leading facts of Christianity. See Milner's Church History, iii. 55. Acting on the same principle, he also wrote to Mellitus, a missionary proceeding to Britain, recommending certain concessions to the early converts among our own countrymen, who had been accustomed to propitiate demons, and to indulge in sacrificial feasts. Ibid. p. 79. Tertullian seems to have formed a better judgment respecting the spirit of Christianity. See the treatise De Creatione, where he complains of the unnecessary introduction of additional rites into the church, borrowed from the enemies of the true religion. —₁₂ mind] This is one of the faults with which Milton reproaches King Charles. He admits the diligence and exactitude with which that monarch performed all the external acts of religion, or, as he terms it, "the outward work of devotion," but charges him with insincerity and formality in prayer. "He who from such a kind of psalmistry, or any other verbal devotion, without the pledge and earnest of suitable deeds, can be persuaded of a zeal and true righteousness in the person, hath much yet to learn; and knows not that the deepest policy of a tyrant hath been ever to counterfeit religious." Eikonklastes, v. 83-84.

See this answered by Mede, Bk. i. Disc. 1 on Matt. vi. 9. —₁₂ respect] Conformably with his opinions on this subject, Milton ascribes extemporaneous effusions to our first parents:

Lowly they bow'd adoring, and began
Their orisons, each morning duly paid
In various style; for neither various style
Nor holy rapture wanted they to praise
Their Maker, in fit strains pronounc'd, or sung Unmeditated. PL, v. 144-149.

"It is not the goodness of matter, therefore, which is not, nor can be owed to the liturgy, that will bear it out, if the form, which is the essence of it, be fantastic and superstitious, the end sinister, and the imposition violent." Animadversions, iii. Pt. i. 129-130. "Neither can any true Christian find a reason why liturgy should be at all admitted, a prescription not imposed or practised by those first founders of the church, who alone had that authority," &c. Eikonklastes, v. 221. Compare also the whole of the chapter entitled "On the Ordinance against the Common Prayer Book," from which the last quotation is taken. On the other side of the question see Heylin's Ecclesia Vindicata, Bp. Jeremy Taylor's Apology for Authorized and Set Forms of Liturgy, Works, vii. Hammond's View of the New Directory.

Pt. i. 124.  the twofold power, ecclesiastical and political, claimed by the Roman Catholics, Milton proceeds thus: "Whether therefore it be fit or reasonable to tolerate men thus principled in religion towards the state, I submit it to the consideration of all magistrates, who are best able to provide for their own and the public safety. As for tolerating the exercise of their religion, supposing their state-activities not to be dangerous, I answer, that toleration is either public or private; and the exercise of their religion, as far as it is idolatrous, can be tolerated neither way: not publicly, without grievous and unsufferable scandal given to all conscientious beholders; not privately, without great offence to God, declared against all kind of idolatry, though secret. Ezek. viii. 7, 8. . . . Having shown thus, that popery, as being idolatrous, is not to be tolerated either in public or in private, it must now be thought how to remove it," &c. &c.

In 1644, and the two following years, nearly an hundred persons suffered the sentence of the law in the three counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex, for alleged conspiracy with evil spirits. The same absurdities continued to be believed long after the Restoration, and numerous victims are on record whose lives were forfeited to the popular superstition.

These last words probably allude to the star, mentioned below, by which the birth of Christ, as "King of the Jews," was announced to the wise men.—18 bodies] It is remarkable that among those who ridiculed the astrologers of Milton's times, was one of his own nephews, John Philips. At the close of the year 1659, he published a pamphlet entitled "Montelion, 1660: or the Prophetical Almanack; being a true and an exact Accompt of all the Revolutions that are to happen in the World, this present year 1660, till this time Twelvemonth. By Montelion, Knight of the Oracle, a Wellwisher to the Mathematicks." This almanac was so well received that he continued his plan by a similar publication for the following year, which contained among other articles an "exact Chronology of memorable things, after the manner of an Almanac, stating how many years it is since each event happened." Among the entries is the following. It will be remembered that it was to a Mr. Skinner that the custody of this treatise was entrusted. "Since Mr. Skinner spoke discreetly at the Rota. 1 year." John Philips subsequently published another burlesque work on the same subject, under the title of "Montelion's Introduction to Astrology, after a new, but more Easie Way, shewing the whole Method of that Learned Art." But the most celebrated of the Astrologers of the time were the famous William Lilly and John Booker, who were frequently consulted by the Parliament and the generals of the Army, as to the countenance which the stars portended to their undertakings. Among other prophecies, Lilly was unfortunate enough to foretell a long and prosperous reign to the Protector Richard, of which prediction, less than eight months sufficed to prove the falsity. —4 Ames] Dr. William Ames, a Puritan divine in the time of James and Charles the First, and Professor of Divinity in the University of Franeker, a town of the Netherlands, in Friesland. It was partly from the work quoted above, and partly from The Abridgement of Christian Divinitie by Wollebius, that Milton, according to Philips, compiled for the use of his pupils a system of divinity, which they wrote on Sundays at his dictation. An English translation of Ames's treatise was published by order of the House of Commons in 1642, under the title of The Marrow of Sacred Divinity, drawne out of the Holy Scriptures and the Interpreters thereof, and brought into method. It is divided into two books, of which the first, entitled On Faith in God, contains forty-one chapters, and the second, On Observance toward God, twenty-two. It is quite evident that Milton has frequently availed himself of this volume, both in the distribution of his subject and arrangement of the chapters, which frequently coincide with that of Ames, and in the citation of particular passages and applications of Scripture; though their opinions differ materially on several important points. The translation is very badly executed, as the version of the passage quoted in the text will show. "That rule therefore of interpreting the Scriptures which is wont to be delivered by some, is not universally true; that all those duties [are] morall and immutable, which have morall and immutable reasons joyned to them; except it be thus understood, that those duties doe follow upon those reasons, no speciall command coming betweene." Milton quotes in his Tetrachordon the definition of marriage given by Ames, and passes a just censure on it. See iv. 102-103. The Treatise of Wollebius is also divided into two parts, On the Knowledge and On the Worship of God, the first comprised in thirty-six, and the second in fourteen chapters. The plan of the latter division is very similar to the corresponding portion of Milton's work, and not only the arguments, but even whole sentences are sometimes almost identically the same. Besides Ames and Wollebius, the following, among the writers who published general systems of divinity between the Reformation and the time of Milton, appear certainly to have been known to him: Calvin, Institutio Christiana Religionis, first published in 1536, and an enlarged edition in the following year; Episcopius, Institutio, &c. contained in the first volume of his Opera Theologica, Amster. 1650; Beza, Confessio Christianæ Fidei, 1560; Polanus, Syntagma Theologiæ Christianæ, Han. 1609. An abridgement of theology will also be found in the first volume of Placcæus's Works. —11 God] [Sumner does not translate, but gives Ames's Latin text: "Non est catholicæ veritatis illa regula interpretandi scripturas quæ tradi solet a quibusdam, officia illa omnia esse moralia et immutabilia quæ rationes morales et immutabiles habent sibi annexas; nisi sic intelligatur ut illa officia sequantur ex illis rationibus, nullo singulari Dei præcepto intercedente." The translation here given is by Jean Stoner on the basis of the text of the third edition, 1629, which is considered a much better text than that of earlier editions. In the third edition the clause after "a quibusdam" is a substantive clause introduced by "quod" with a finite verb "sunt" in place of the indirect discourse of the text quoted by Sumner. The clause from "quod" to "annexas" is in italics, and is evidently quoted with some degree of entirety from another theological work.]

—14 expressed] Several of these divines are elsewhere mentioned by Milton in terms of commendation. "Bucer (whom our famous Dr. Rainolds was wont to prefer before Calvin) in his comment on Matthew, and in his second book of the kingdom of Christ. . . . This book he wrote here in England, where he lived the greatest admired man." Tetrachordon, iv. 224. See also the address to the Parliament, prefixed to the Judgment of Martin Bucer concerning Divorce, iv. 7-20. Peter Martyr is twice quoted with reference to the same subjects. Ibid. iv. 5, 225. Musculus is also called "a divine of no mean fame." Ibid. iv. 226. In proof of Milton's assertion that these divines agree with him on the subject of the sabbath, the following passages may be cited from their respective works. "Sic de sabbatho. Quod septimo die, illa quæ a Iudæis observatur numeratione, ab omni opere servili vacandum erat, præceptum legis externum fuit, solis Iudæis, quibus datum exstitit, observandum, &c. . . . Hæc ergo ad nos pertinent, illa Iudæis recte relinquuntur." Bucer in sacra quatuor Evangelia Enarrat. Perpet. ad Matt. x. 9. "Cæterum non dubium quin Domini Christi adventu, quod cæremoniale hic [in sabbatho] erat, abolitum fuerit. Ipse enim veritas est, cuius præsentia figuræ omnes evanescent . . . Ideo sublatam umbram fuisse rei futuræ alibi scribit apostolus; corpus exstare in Christo, hoc est, solidam veritatis substantiam, quam illo loco bene explicavit. Ea non uno die contenta est, sed toto vitæ nostræ cursu, donec penitus nobismetipsis mortui, Dei vita impleamur. A Christianis ergo abesse debet superstitiosa dierum observatio," &c. &c. Calvin. Instit. Christian. cap. viii. Sect. 31. See also Comment. in quinque libros Moysis, nearly at the end of the preface to the remarks on the Mosaic law. "Deinde quod locum Pauli Heb. iii. et iv. concernit, notandum est illud hodie non esse alligandum septimo diei, sed exigere a nobis perpetuum obedientiam verbo Dei præstandam. Est enim nobis perpetuus sabbathismus, quo coram Deo in spiritu comparentes, maiestatem illius celebramus, cum adoratione invocamus, ac vocem illius audimus; verum hic sensus et modus iste mystici sabbathismi non excludit ecclesiasticorum conventuum usum, sicut hodie fanatici quidam homines somniant, ac seipso una cum aliis ab ecclesiæ conventibus abducunt." Musculus, Comment. in Psalm. xcv. 8. "Cum igitur sabbathum septimani diei typus fuerit, admonens populum et de suo officio, sive de pietate erga Deum, et de beneficio Dei erga populum per Christum præstando, una cum aliis cæremoniis, adventu Christi, per quem est impletum quod illa significabant, abrogatum est. Quod etiam Paulus testatur Col. ii." &c. &c. Ursinus, Tractat. Theolog. in expositione Quarti Præcepti. "Christiani respondent Iudæis . . . sabbathum abrogatum ratione cæremoniæ et geminæ circumstantiæ, &c. . . . deinde observatione septimi illius diei definiti. Quo modo appendix erat legis moralis, ad populum Iudaicum solum pertinens." Gomarus, Oper. Theolog. in Explicatione Ep. ad Colossenses, cap. ii. Peter Martyr, however, seems to hold a different opinion. "Qui autem robustiori fide erant præditi, illi omnes dies perinde habuerunt. Dominicam tamen diem excipimus; pertinet enim ad decalogum, ut ex hebdomada integra unus dies divino cultui consecratur," &c. Comment. in Ep. ad Romanos, cap. xiv.

—18 drinking] Abstinence in diet, says a biographer of Milton, was one of his favorite virtues, which he practised invariably through life, and availed himself of every opportunity to recommend in his writings. He is reported to have partaken rarely of wine or of any strong liquors. In his Areopagitica, iv. 309, the following passage occurs: "How great a virtue is temperance, how much of moment through the whole life of man! Yet God commits the managing so great a trust, without particular law or prescription, wholly to the demeanor of every grown man." Again, in Paradise Lost, xi. 530-534,

The rule of Not too much, by temperance taught,
In what thou eat'st and drink'st, seeking from thence Due nourishment, not gluttonous delight,
Till many years over thy head return.

See also Samson Agonistes, 542, &c. and the second elegy to Diodati. In Smectymnus, iii. Pt. i. 307 he vindicates himself with some indignation against the charge of being a sack-drinker, which one of his opponents had brought against him. He concludes his defence with the following sentence. "For the readers [of the book in which the accusation appeared], if they can believe me, principally for those reasons which I have alleged, to be of life and purpose neither dishonest nor unchaste, they will be easily induced to think me sober both of wine and of word; but if I have been already successful in persuading them, all that I can further say will be but vain; and it will be better thrift to save two tedious labors, mine of excusing, and theirs of needless hearing."

—25 sleep] Milton is known on his own authority to have seldom gone to bed before midnight, after the twelfth year of his age; to which practise he attributes his subsequent blindness. See Defensio Secunda, viii. 68-70, and Todd's Life, &c. page 7, note t. His habit of early rising is also mentioned by all his biographers. In summer he rose at four, in winter at five; or if he remained in bed beyond these hours, he employed a person to read to him from the time of his awaking. He has left the following account of his mode of living during his early years in Smectymnuus, iii. Pt. i. 298-299: "Those morning haunts are where they should be, at home; not sleeping, or concocting the surfeits of an irregular feast, but up and stirring, in winter often ere the sound of any bell awake men to labor or devotion; in summer as oft with the bird that first rouses, or not much tardier, to read good authors or cause them to be read, till the attention be weary, or memory have his full fraught: then with useful and generous labors preserving the body's health and hardiness to render lightsome, clear, and not lumpish obedience to the mind, to the cause of religion, and our country's liberty, when it shall require firm hearts in sound bodies to stand and cover their stations, rather than to see the ruin of our protestation, and the enforcement of a slavish life."

—7 injury] The same enemy of Milton who was alluded to in a preceding page as charging him with intemperance in drinking, also accuses him of licentiousness, and of frequenting "play-houses and the bordelloes." The imputation is thus repelled: "Having had the doctrine of Holy Scripture, unfolding those chaste and high mysteries, with timeliest care infused, that the body is for the Lord, and the Lord for the body, thus also I argued to myself, that if unchastity in a woman, whom St. Paul terms the glory of man, be such a scandal and dishonor, then certainly in a man, who is both the image and glory of God, it must, though commonly not so thought, be much more deflowering and dishonorable; in that he sins both against his own body, which is the perfecter sex, and his own glory, which is in the woman; and that which is worst, against the image and glory of God, which is in himself. Nor did I slumber over that place expressing such high rewards of ever accompanying the Lamb, with those celestial songs to others inapprehensible, but not to those who were not defiled with women, which doubtless means fornication, for marriage must not be called a defilement. Thus large I have purposely been, that if I had been justly taxed with this crime, it may come upon me, after all this my confession, with a tenfold shame; but if I have hitherto deserved no such opprobrious word or suspicion, I may hereby engage myself now openly to the faithful observation of what I have professed." Smectymnuus, iii. Pt. i. 306. Elsewhere, in speaking of his return to England through Geneva, he takes occasion to repel the slanders of Morus, by asserting the purity of his conduct during his stay in Italy. "Quæ urbs, cum in mentem mihi hinc veniat Mori calumniatoris, facit ut Deum hic rursus testem invocem, me his omnibus in locis, ubi tam multa licent, ab omni flagitio ac probro integrum atque intactum vixisse, illud perpetuo cogitantem, si hominum latere oculos possem, Dei certe non posse." Defensio Secunda, viii. 126. He repeats the protestation in Pro Se Defensio, ix. 178. Compare also "Ego ergo scortator . . . et perspexero facile et risero." Ibid. ix. 162-164. See also the noble passage in Comus, 418-475.

—19 door] The character of Eve is constructed throughout with a most beautiful attention to the decencies of female decorum. While the angel and Adam conversed together, she remained at a distance, but within view. When, however, they entered "on studious thoughts abstruse," she withdrew entirely.

which Eve
Perceiving, where she sat retir'd in sight,
With lowliness majestic from her seat,
And grace that won who said to wish her stay,
Rose, and went forth among her fruits and flowers.

Subsequently, Adam bears testimony that she seemed "well to know her own." PL, viii. 548.

—17 individuals] A scrupulous attention is paid throughout Paradise Lost to this duty, and inferiors are generally represented as showing their respect to personages of superior dignity in the manner here mentioned. Thus it is said of the fallen angels worshipping Satan,

Towards him they bend,
With awful reverence prone. ii. 477-478.

Of the angels in heaven:

Lowly reverent
Towards either throne they bow, and to the ground
With solemn adoration down they cast
Their crowns. iii. 349-352.

Of the angels stationed to guard Paradise, at the appearance of Raphael:
to his state

And to his message high in honor rise,
For on some message high they guess'd him bound. v. 288-290.

Of Adam in presence of Raphael:

though not aw'd,
Yet with submiss approach and rev'rence meek,
As to superior nature bowing low,
Thus said. v. 358-361.

Of the Messiah when leaving the Father to go against the rebel angels:
he o'er his scepter bowing, rose

From the right hand of glory where he sat. vi. 746-747.

Of Eve before the tree of knowledge:

from the tree her step she turn'd;
But first low reverence done, as to the Pow'r
That dwelt within. ix. 834-836.

Thus also in his early poem of Arcades:

the great mistress of yon princely shrine,
Whom with low reverence I adore as mine. 36-37.

"In his whole deportment," says Symmons, "there was visible a certain dignity of mind, and a something of conscious superiority, which could not at all times be suppressed or wholly withdrawn from observation. His temper was grave, without any taint of melancholy." vii. 512.

"Of this great man the manners are universally allowed to have been affable and graceful, the conversation cheerful, instructive, and engaging. His youngest daughter . . . affirmed that he was delightful company; the life of the conversation, not only on account of his flow of subject, but of his unaffected cheerfulness and civility." Isaac Vossius describes him as "comen, affabilem, multisque aliis præditum virtutibus." Burmann, Syll. iii. 618. See also N. Heinsius: "Virum esse miti comique ingenio aiunt, quique aliam non habuisse se causam proficitur Scribonium acerbè insectandi, quam quod ille et viros e maximis celeberrimisque multos nihil benignius exceperit, et quod in universam Anglorum gentem conviciis atrocissimis iniurius valde fuerit." Burmann, Syll. iii. 276. Salmasius is here alluded to under the name of Scribonius.

Sed in Novo Testamento in malam partem usurpatur pro scurrilitate. Eam vocem pro scurrilitate apostolus posuit, quod plerumque qui urbanitatem affectant, a medio virtutis aberrantes, ad scurrilitatem declinent. Qua in significatione etiam Pindarus poeta Græcam vocem usurpasse legitur. Itaque recte noster interpretes scurrilitatem vertit." Estius in locum. See Leigh's Critica Sacra, Schleusner, Wetstein, Elsner, and Macknight. —10 speaker] "The Spirit of God, who is purity itself, when he would reprove any fault severely, or but relate things done or said with indignation by others, abstains not from some words not civil at other times to be spoken, &c. &c. . . . whereas God, who is the author both of purity and eloquence, chose this phrase as fittest in that vehement character wherein he spake, otherwise that plain word might have easily been forborne: which the masoreths and rabbinical scholiasts not well attending, have often used to blur the margin with Keri instead of Ketiv, and gave us this insulse rule out of their Talmud, 'that all words which in the law are written obscenely, must be changed to more civil words;' fools, who would teach men to read more decently than God thought good to write." Smectymnus, iii. Pt. i. 315-316. "Ask a Talmudist what ails the modesty of his marginal Keri, that Moses and all the prophets cannot persuade him to pronounce the textual Ketiv." Areopagitica, iv. 312. "Tu fortasse, ut sunt fere hypocritæ, verbis tetrici, rebus obscæni, ne ipsum quidem Mosen ista noxa immunem abs te dimiseris; cum alibi sæpius, tum etiam ubi Phineæ hasta qua parte mulierem transfixerit, si qua fides Hebræis, aperte narrat. . . . Non te Salomonis Euphemismi censorem, non prophetarum scripta tuam turpiculi immo nonnunquam plane obscæni censuram effugerint, quoties Masorethis et Rabbinis, pro eo quod diserte scriptum est, suum libet Keri adscribere. Ad me quod attinet, fateor malle me cum sacris scriptoribus εὐθρημονα, quem cum futilibus Rabbinis εὐσχημονα esse." Pro Se Defensio, ix. 110-112.

—10 trust] The biographers of Milton relate that he himself suffered no inconsiderable injury from the want of good faith in those to whom he had entrusted a large part of his fortune. "He sustained such losses as might well have broke any person less frugal and temperate than himself; no less than 2000*l.* which he put for security and improvement into the excise office, but neglecting to recal it in time, could never after get it out, with all the power and interest he had in the great ones of those times; besides another great sum, by mismanagement and for want of good advice." Edward Philips, Life of Milton. No. II. Appendix to Godwin's Lives of Edward and John Philips, page 382.

"Nevertheless, as I find that Grotius on this place hath observed, the Christian emperors, Theodosius the second and Justinian, men of high wisdom and reputed piety, decreed it to be a divorcive fornication, if the wife attempted either against the knowledge, or obstinately against the will of her husband, such things as gave open suspicion of adulterizing, as the wilful haunting of feasts, and invitations with men not of her near kindred, the lying forth of her house without probable cause, the frequenting of theatres against her husband's mind," &c. Divorce, iii. Pt. ii. 487.

—1 severity] Milton has been accused of treating his children with severity, but the charge seems to have been unfounded. From one instance of his alleged harshness his character has been vindicated by Mrs. Hannah More, in her Strictures on the Modern System of Female Education. It seems indeed that there are good grounds for believing that Milton himself had reason to complain of the misconduct and inattention of his daughters. His nuncupative will contains the following passage: "The portion due to me from Mr. Powell, my former wife's father, I leave to the unkind children I had by her, having received no parte of it: but my meaning is, they shall have no other benefit of my estate than the said portion, and what I have besides done for them, they having been very undutifull to me." Hawkins's edn. Milton's Poetical Works, page cxv. Christopher Milton, the testator's brother, proves as follows in his examination respecting the validity of this will in the Pre-rogative Court: "The said deceased was then ill of the goute, and what he then spoke touching his will was in a very calme manner; only [he] complained, but without passion, that his children had been unkind to him. . . .

He knoweth not how the parties ministring these interrogatories frequent the church, or in what manner of behaviour of life and conversacion they are of, they living apart from their father four or five yeares last past; and as touching his the deceased's displeasure with them, he only heard him say at the tyme of declaring of his will, that they were undutifull and unkind to him, not expressing any particulars; but in former tymes he hath herd him complain, that they were careless of him being blind, and made nothing of deserting him." The testimony of Elizabeth Fisher, Milton's maid-servant, contains some curious additional particulars. "This respondent hath heard the deceased declare his displeasure against the parties ministrant his children; and particularly the deceased declared to this respondent that a little before he was marryed to Elizabeth Milton, his own relict, a former maid-servant of his told Mary, one of the deceased's daughters, and one of the ministrants, that she heard the deceased was to be marryed, to which the said Mary replied to the said maid-servant, that that was no news to heare of his wedding, but if she could heare of his death that was something; and further told this respondent, that all his said children did combine together and counsel his maid-servant to cheat him the deceased in her markettings, and that his said children had made away some of his bookes, and would have sold the rest of his bookes to the dunghill women, or hee the deceased spoke words to this respondent to the selfsame effect and purpose."

—2 prophets] The words of our translation, as well as of the Septuagint and the Latin Vulgate, do not necessarily imply that Samuel taught, but that he presided in the schools of the prophets. But Milton probably understands the text in the right manner. Jonathan renders it "et Samuelem stantem docentem super eos." See Stillingfleet's elaborate account of the schools of the prophets, Origines Sacrae, Bk. ii. chap. iv. sect. 3. It will be remembered that Milton was reproached by his enemies with having been a schoolmaster. In the Transproser Rehearsed, written by R. Leigh, Oxon. 1673, 12mo. he is called a Latin Secretary and an English Schoolmaster, p. 128. and Salmasius in his posthumous reply to the Defence of the People of England, describes him as "ludimagister in schola triviali Londinensi." Newton and Symmons have vindicated him from this crime with more seriousness than the charge seems to deserve.

—8 charity] Milton, when speaking of his mother, particularly notices her charitable disposition. "Londini sum natus . . . matre probatissima, et eleemosynis per viciniam potissimum nota." Defensio Secunda, viii. 118.

PAGE 375

—28 necessity] This is an allusion to the mendicant Friars, who made poverty a part of the rule of their order. Their increase was so great, owing to the encouragement shewn them by Pope Innocent III, that Gregory the Tenth found it necessary to reduce them to the four orders of Dominicans, Franciscans, Carmelites, and Augustines.

PAGE 395

—8 people] See on this and the following paragraph Civil Power throughout, and the History of Britain, x. 322. “While they taught compulsion without conviction, which not long before they complained of as executed unchristianly against themselves, these intents are clear to have been no better than antichristian; setting up a spiritual tyranny by a secular power, to the advancing of their own authority above the magistrate, whom they would have made their executioner to punish church-delinquencies, whereof civil laws have no cognizance.” This was one of the paragraphs omitted for political reasons in all the early editions of the History of Britain. It appeared first in the collection of Milton’s Works published in 2 vols. folio, 1738. [Observe the differences in the wording of the two texts.]

—15 authority] “Why did he lay restraints, and force enlargements upon our consciences in things for which we were to answer God only and the church? God bids us ‘be subject for conscience sake,’ that is, as to a magistrate, and in the laws, not usurping over spiritual things, as Lucifer beyond his sphere.” Eikonklastes, v. 218.

—9 Scripture] “Neither God nor nature put civil power into the hands of any whomsoever, but to a lawful end, and commands our obedience to the authority of law only, not to the tyrannical force of any person.” Eikonklastes, v. 241–242. “Quæ autem potestas, qui magistratus, contraria his facit, neque illa, neque hic, a Deo proprie ordinatus est. Unde neque tali vel potestati vel magistratui subiectio debetur aut præcipitur, neque nos prudenter obsistere prohibemur.” First Defence, vii. 174–176.

PAGE 405

—2 safety] This is a remarkable passage, considering the prominent part taken by the author not only against the monarchy, but against the monarch himself. It is evident that his experience of the miseries caused by the civil disturbances of those evil times had taught him that a regard to the general good might sometimes render a temporary sacrifice of abstract rights not inconsistent with the sincerest love of political or religious liberty. “Prudenter igitur Ecclesiastes hoc in loco [cap. viii. 1, &c.] monet privatos ne cum rege contendat; nam etiam cum divite, cum potenti quovis, ut plurimum damnosa contentio est.” First Defence, vii. 82.

—6 affairs] For Milton's opinion of the value of the Scriptures as teachers of political wisdom:

Their orators thou then extoll'st, as those
The top of eloquence, statists indeed,
And lovers of their country, as may seem;
But herein to our prophets far beneath,
As men divinely taught, and better teaching
The solid rules of civil government
In their majestic unaffected style
Than all the oratory of Greece and Rome.
In them is plainest taught, and easiest learnt
What makes a nation happy, and keeps it so,
What ruins kingdoms, and lays cities flat;
These only with our law best form a king. PR, iv. 353-364.
